Against Democrats

Platform Has Many Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Republican platform on Saturday accused the Democratic administration of weakness before communism and of fostering "a potentially fatal parity" of military power instead of clear superiority over the Soviets.

The GOP platform writers, torn among themselves over the writing of a civil rights plank, issued the first half of their platform — the half on which agreement came relatively easily—in the form of an "indictment" of the Kennedy-Johnson administration.

The campaign document:

—Charged that "federal extremists" in Washington have burdened the nation with $26 billion in deficits in four years with "still more debt to come;" and have curbed individual freedom and creative enterprise.

—Made the Bobby Baker case a campaign issue by accusing the administration of impeding "investigations of suspected wrongdoing which might implicate public officials in the highest offices in the land."

—Accused the administration of having "exploited interracial tensions by extravagant campaign promises, without fulfillment, playing on the just aspirations of the minority groups, encouraging disorderly and lawless elements, and ineffectually administering the laws."

—Blamed the White House for having fostered "discord and trust" in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and for opening "a hot line first with a sworn enemy rather than with a proven friend."

By delaying development of advanced weapons systems, the platform charged, the Democrats have "confronted the American people with the fearsome possibility that Soviet advances, in the decade of the 1970s, may surpass America's present lead."

The half-portion platform was released with a promise that the rest, containing the specific planks by which Republicans hope to unseat President Johnson, would come Sunday.

But the 100-member Platform Committee was embroiled in battle behind closed doors between the majority forces backing Sen. Barry Goldwater and the outgunned but still scrapping backers of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton.

Russians Launch 2 Sattelites

Second Time For Double Launching On Single Rocket

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union took its space exploration program a step further Saturday by launching twin space stations into widely spaced orbits atop a single rocket. It was the second time Russian scientists had achieved a double launch on a single rocket.

It hurled the stations—Electron 3 and 4—into orbits that took one 10 times as long as the other to circle the earth. Tass, the Soviet news agency reported. It was the latest in a series of Soviet probes into the hazards future travelers in space will meet.

It is just over a year since the Russians put their last cosmonaut into space. Valentina Tereshkova, first woman to travel in space, went up June 16, 1963.

Since then the Russians have continued their program of unmanned probes, sending up 35 satellites in their Cosmos series, while the "astronomical station" Zone 1 presumably is still heading deeper into space. It was launched last April 2 to investigate, the Russians said, problems of distant interplanetary flight. At last report—May 18—it was eight milllion miles from the earth.

The Russians launched their first twin probe—Electron 1 and 2—last Jan. 30. The reported mission was the same as that of the latest pair—to study radiation belts, radiation from cosmic space, the earth's magnetic field and the physical conditions in the upper layers of the Electron 3 was swinging out on an elongated orbit taking it 4,-365 miles from the earth at its farthest point and 251 miles at its closets. It was making the round trip in 2 hours 48 minutes.

Electron 4 was taking the longer way around and going deeper into space—out as far as 41,076 miles and in to 285 miles. Its orbiting time was 21 hours 54 minutes.

Tass reported the radio-telemetric systems aboard the two space stations were operating well, feeding information back to scientific listening posts in the Soviet Union.

Eisenhower Is Struck By Sign But Not Hurt

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—Former President Dwight Eisenhower was struck Saturday by a sign tossed into the air near the rear platform of the train he was riding to the Republican national convention.

As the train was leaving the station Eisenhower was on the rear platform in response to calls from the crowd.

As the rear car passed a small group, a placard was tossed into the air and hit Eisenhower in the side as it fell. Eisenhower doubled over and was helped inside the car.

The Amarillo Globe - Times said it was informed Eisenhower was not injured.

The sheriff's office arrested two young men, identified as students at West Texas State in nearby Canyon, Tex., in connection with the incident and later released one of them.

Tom L. Cunningham, 24, of Anton, Tex., who was released, told newsmen, "We tossed the sign up, but didn't intend to hit Ike. We didn't know he was on the platform at the time, or we would not have tossed the sign."

The name of the other student was not released.

73 More Than Needed

AP Poll Gives Goldwater 728 First Ballot Votes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Active backers of Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination look confidently to Wednesday for the big pay off on their months of intensive delegate-hunting.

That's the day the GOP convention, which opens in San Francisco Monday, is scheduled to call the roll for its presidential nominee.

Goldwater has been gathering delegates since late February and the Associated Press survey at the end of the final week of pre-convention activity showed Cthe senator with 730 first ballot votes. That's 75 more than the 655 needed for nomination if they don't defect.

The AP poll of 1,308 delegates showed this first ballot lineup based on commitments, instruction, pledges and stated preferences:

Goldwater	730
William W. Scranton	165
Nelson A. Rockefeller	102
Henry Cabot Lodge	45
Margaret Chase Smith	15
Richard M. Nixon	2
Favorite sons	47
Uncommitted	202

Of Goldwater's total, 118 come from delegates committed by primary election laws, 257 instructed by state or district conventions, 60 personally pledged and 295 favorable but not officially bound. None of Scranton's delegates are committed or instructed.

Goldwater began his campaign Jan. 3. It bore its first fruit at state conventions in North Carolina and Oklahoma Feb. 28 and 29 when he picked up 46 of 48 possible votes.

He kept winning delegates throughout the spring, some of them in primary elections, most of them in the comparative quiet of state conventions.

Most of Goldwater's support comes from the South, Southwest and Far West and, to a lesser degree, the Midwest. He could win the nomination without a vote from any of the 12 Northeastern states and District of Columbia. But even in the Northeast he has scattered support.

Nationwide, the AP survey shows at least one first ballot vote for Goldwater in all but Alaska, Maine, New Hampshire, Oregon, Wisconsin, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

While Driving Alone

Negro Educator Is Mysteriously Shot

COLBERT, Ga. (AP)—A Negro educator from Washington, D.C., was mysteriously shot to death in early morning quietness Saturday as he drove through rural north Georgia.

Lemuel A. Penn, 49, director of Washington's five vocational high schools and a lieutenant colonel in the Army reserve, was shot in the head as he drove along Georgia 172 about 10 miles northeast of here. The killing brought swift action in Washington and Atlanta, the state capital.

President Johnson called Gov. Carl E. Sanders to seek federal-state cooperation in the hunt for the killer. And the Justice Department announced that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy had ordered the FBI into the case.

In Atlanta Sanders quickly issued one of the strongest statements he has made since taking office.

"I am ashamed for myself and for the responsible citizens of Georgia that this occurance took place in our state," he said. "This unfortunate nonsensical occurrance today represents the inflammatory reaction of a person with a demented mind.

"If we want to see our state destroyed, our citizens demoralized and the very foundation of our nation undermined, we have only to let this type of individual assume greater prominence and eventually take over and this will be the end of America."

The slain educator completed two weeks of summer training at Ft. Benning, Ga., Friday and was on his way back to Washington with two other Negro officers, Maj. Charles E. Brown, 44, and Lt. Col. John D. Howard, 42, both of Washington, D.C. Neither was hurt. All three had completed the same refresher course at Ft. Benning.

An Army spokesman said Penn left the base, at Columbus, Ga., shortly after midnight Friday. He and the others traveled north in a 1959 Chevrolet owned by Brown.

Petitions Circulated

KANSAS CITY (AP) — City firemen Saturday began circulating petitions seeking repeal of the city's earnings tax.

Stanton Gladden, president of the firemen's union, said the organization is protesting that Kansas City has not lived up to its promise to hike salaries by $700,000 for the fire fighters.

Carleton F. Sharpe, city manager, claims actual salaries have been increased $365,000 this year, since the earnings tax went into effect. But Gladden says the hike is only about $150,-000, claiming the city manager is counting anniversary increases.

Forsee A Strong Ticket

Missouri Republicans Are Watching GOP Convention

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — When the big show opens in the Cow Palace at San Francisco Monday, Missouri Republicans will have some special reasons for watching the developments with keen interest.

Republican leaders believe they will head into the November election campaign with the strongest state ticket in many years.

Ethan Shepley, former chancellor of Washington University, is regarded as almost certain to be the nominee for governor. And Jean Paul Bradshaw of Springfield has solid organization support for the nomination for U. S. Senator.

This is Shepley's first statewide race. But Bradshaw has been in the political wars before. He lost the governorship to Democrat Phil M. Donnelly in 1944 by only 30,592 votes.

The campaign is better financed than it has been for many years and the Missouri Republicans are hungry. Their last winning candidate for governor was Forrest C. Donnel in 1940. Their last senator was James P. Kem in 1946.

Since then the Democrats have swept all the top offices, mostly because of big majorities turned in by the metropolitan areas.

Actually, Missouri is not as one sided politically as the record of recent years would seem to indicate. In five of the six presidential elections in the last 20 years, the results would have been reversed if the loser had polled as little as 2.5 per cent more.

The only time there was a greater spread was when Missouri's own Harry S. Truman was the candidate.

And as Dr. Robert F. Karsch of the University of Missouri has shown in his studies of Missouri government, the state can swing either way in national elections.

From 1904 to 1960, he notes Missouri reflected the national voting accurately with only one exception. That was in 1956 when the state went for Stevenson while the rest of the country was re-electing Eisenhower.

So Missouri can go either way. The question Republicans will be asking themselves next week is what effect the outcome of the national nominating convention will have in this state.

Both Shepley and Bradshaw have carefully refrained from making any public statement about the presidential struggle. Some of the people active in the Shepley campaign, however, have voiced private fears that a Goldwater nomination would hurt the state ticket.

And a recent private poll is reported to have shown that as of now President Johnson would pile up a landslide victory over the Arizona Senator.

Will the San Francisco political quakes split the party as happened in the Bull Moose year of 1912? Some observers have said the party is almost as badly divided this year.

Democrat Elliott W. Major was elected governor that year.

On the eve of the national convention, it seemed virtually certain the Missouri delegation would go far down the line with Goldwater. One previously uncommitted delegate switched to Scranton before flying to San Francisco, but 20 others are supporting Goldwater and three are classed as leaning in that direction.

And then what happens next? Anybody got any answers?

Four-Car Collision Kills Eight Persons

ROLLA, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri Highway Patrol Headquarters report Saturday night that a four-car collision on Missouri Highway 17, five miles west of Waynesville, Mo., has taken the lives of eight persons.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred about 7:15 p.m. and involved four vehicles.

The patrol also said that six or seven other persons were injured in the crash.

Three patrol cars and ambulances were dispatched to the scene but names of the victims and additional details were not immediately available.

Delegates Swarm To City For Convention

Caucuses Should All But Give Nod To Goldwater

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rank-and-file Republican convention delegates swarmed into town Saturday and into caucuses that should all but wrap up and deliver the party presidential nomination to Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Unless there's another San Francisco earthquake along political lines this week, Goldwater is going to become the nominee on the first ballot on Wednesday. The convention opens Monday.

Undaunted by Goldwater's enormous lead in delegate strength, Gov. William W. Scanton of Pennsylvania fought tirelessly if futilely on.

Evidently the senator will be running on a platform built to Goldwater specifications. The 100 red-eyed members of the platform committee toiled Friday night and again Saturday.

They finally came through with half their campaign document, accusing the Johnson administration of "weakness before communism" and exploiting interracial tensions.

This was the first time in a century, since Abraham Lincoln insisted on one in 1864, that the Republicans nailed a point-by-point castigation of the opposition into their platform.

The first half of the platform won't stir up much trouble in the Republican legions, but the second half, due Sunday, may lead to a fight on the convention floor over civil rights and other bones of contention between Goldwater and Scranton forces.

The convention votes on the platform Tuesday.

Goldwater and Scranton whirled through conferences with delegates, held strategy sessions with lieutenants, and scurried around trying to corral the last stray delegate votes not yet committed.

Scranton was counting on pressure from the people to produce an eleventh hour surge of delegates away from Goldwater and into his camp. He contends that the average Republican doesn't want Goldwater for president, regardless of how the delegates stand.

But it is the delegates who do the voting in the convention.

Three Men Die In Fiery Crash With A Crane

CAMERON, Mo. (AP)—Three men died in a fiery crash Saturday after their car collided with a mobile crane at a bridge over U.S. 69, about 15 miles south of here.

The victims were identified as:

Donald Kaul, 46, Kansas City, Mo.

John E. Baska, 57, Kansas City, Kan.

The car in which the three were riding, burned after the accident, complicating the task of identifying the men.

Billy Anderson, 26, Fort Worth, Tex., driver of the crane, suffered arm and leg injuries and after treatment was taken by plane to Texas.

Baska has joined the two Kaul brothers earlier in Kansas City for a trip to St. Paul, Minn., where they were to visit another brother, Harold Kaul.

City Declines On 'Fire' Job At State Fair

There was no hullabaloo raised this year, but officials of the Missouri State Fair have again arranged with the Missouri Association of Volunteer Firefighters for fire protection during fair week Aug. 22 through 30.

Sedalia's fire department had provided protection at the fairgrounds during the fair and for the remainder of the year since the state fair's inception until last year when city firemen learned indirectly they had been replaced by the volunteer association.

Mayor L. L. Studer said Saturday that "at least six months ago" he, Fire Chief Emmett Vaught and former Fire and Water committee chairman Walter Jessee had met with Fair Secretary W. H. Ritzenthaler in regard to the fair's fire protection.

Ritzenthaler asked the city department to submit a bid to the fair on the fire protection service, but the city declined to bid.

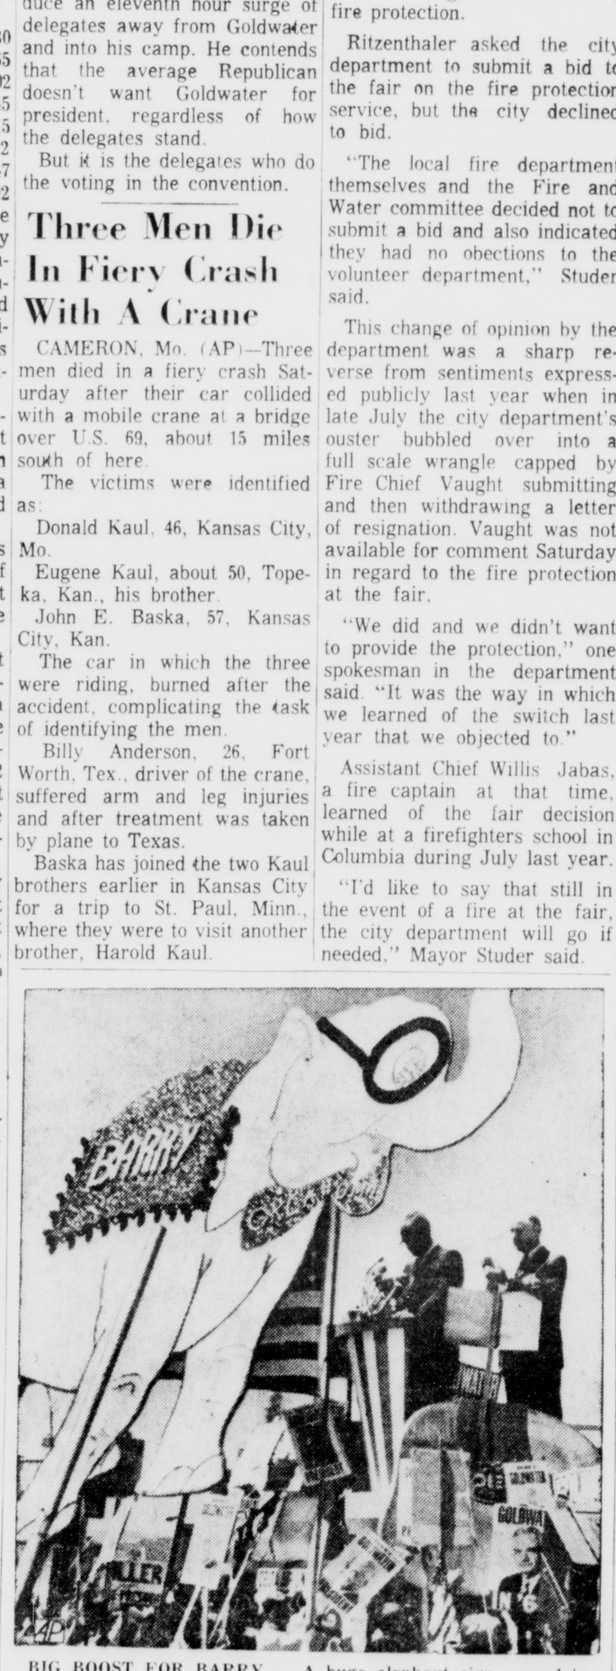

"The local fire department themselves and the Fire and Water committee decided not to submit a bid and also indicated they had no obections to the volunteer department," Studer said.

This change of opinion by the department was a sharp reverse from sentiments expressed publicly last year when in late July the city department's ouster bubbled over into a full scale wrangle capped by Fire Chief Vaught submitting and then withdrawing a letter of resignation. Vaught was not available for comment Saturday in regard to the fire protection at the fair.

"We did and we didn't want to provide the protection," one spokesman in the department said. "It was the way in which we learned of the switch last year that we objected to."

Assistant Chief Willis Jabas, a fire captain at that time, learned of the fair decision while at a firefighters school in Columbia during July last year.

"I'd like to say that still in the event of a fire at the fair, the city department will go if needed," Mayor Studer said.

Hopes Are Revived By Spurt

Congressmen Try To Finish Work By Democratic Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-week spurt since Senate passage of the civil rights bill has revived hopes of congressional leaders that the 1964 session can finish its work by the Democratic convention in late August.

President Johnson laid out a list of 30 "must bills" in a news conference June 23. The legislators, flashing unusual speed, already have sent eight of these to the White House.

Action on these measures, combined with substantial progress on the rest of the list, prompts Democratic leaders to predict that Johnson will get his "must" bills—with one or two possible exceptions.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said he was elated with the work done by the Senate since it finished its 15-week civil rights debate just three weeks ago.

Mansfield said he now is quite hopeful Congress will wind up its business before the Democratic National Convention opens Aug. 24 at Atlantic City, N. J. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the Democratic whip, flatly predicted this will be accomplished.

But some other legislators see stumbling blocks along the way and say they would be well pleased if the session could be completed by Sept. 12, two weeks after the Democratic convention.

Both House and Senate will resume work July 20 after a recess for the Republican convention in San Francisco this week.

By far the most important of the 30 bills already signed into law is the civil rights measure.

But Congress also has passed these seven other measures.

A $375-million mass transit bill, a bill increasing the debt ceiling to $324 billion, a bill preserving $1.9 billion worth of excise tax revenue, a bill to set up a food marketing commission, a bill to extend the Juvenile Delinquency Control Act, a bill authorizing an $82.5-million water resources research program, and a $5.2-billion authorization for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Increase In Fatalities Is Reported

The Missouri State Highway Patrol investigated 1,950 accidents in the Troop A area in the first six months of 1964 as compared to 1,799 accidents during the corresponding period of 1963 according to the Troop A report issued by Captain G. W. Pate. There were 93 fatalities in the first six months of 1964 as compared to 65 for the corresponding period in 1963. A total of $1,408,625 in property damage was recorded for the 1964 period as compared to $1,069,272 in the period of 1963. Out of the 13 county Troop A territory two counties showed a decrease, ten showed an increase and one remained stable.

The Troop F report issued by Captain George E. Phipps showed a total of 1,300 accidents during the first six months of 1964 as compared to 1,091 during the corresponding period of 1963. A decrease in fatalities was noted in the first six months of 1964 as compared to the first six months of 1963. During 1964 there were 34 fatalities and during 1963 a total of 38. Property damage was up with $805,987 in the 1964 period as compared to $704,037 in 1963.

The reports indicated the following information for the month of June on the counties in the troops which are in the Democrat-Capital trade area.

27 Persons Arrested

Negroes Protest Hiring Policies of Cafe Chain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty-seven Negroes were arrested in Cambridge, Mass., early Saturday during a demonstration on hiring policies at a cafeteria chain.

Five men and two teen-age girls were charged with trespassing by police after they refused to leave the Harvard Square Hayes-Bickford cafeteria when ordered by the manager.

The other Negroes, most of them picketing outside, were arrested for disturbing the peace.

A crowd of about 250 stood by and watched.

One man arrested said the demonstration was sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality.

The demonstration began Friday night. When the cafeteria closed, the group moved to another Hayes-Bickford in Boston's Back Bay until it also closed.

They then moved to a Brookline branch, and when it closed they returned to the Harvard Square cafeteria.

In other racial incidents around the nation:

One white man was shot and two others injured in a theater integration attempt at Lake City, Fla., Friday night as sporadic outbursts of violence continued in the wake of the new civil rights act.

The violence broke out after a Negro woman knifed a white youth when she was refused admittance to the white section of a theater. Negroes have been sitting in the balcony.

Negroes and white persons tangled over the knifing and Thomas E. Booth, 21, was shot in the abdomen. He was reported in fair condition.

Witnesses said white persons milling around the theater entrance used broomsticks and clubs to force the Negroes away.

A deputy sheriff said a heavy rainstorm broke up the disturbance "just in time." Extra police, deputies and highway patrolmen were called out.

As FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover visited Mississippi to dedicate a new FBI office reinforced with more agents for the state, two white men attacked and beat a rabbi and two other white civil rights workers near Hattiesburg.

Police Chief William Marable of Tuscaloosa, Ala., imposed an 8 p.m. curfew on all persons 21 years and younger Friday as a result of an incident at a city theater Thursday night.

An angry mobe of white persons stoned the theater while movie actor Jack Palance and his family were inside, believing Palance was being paid by integration groups to attend the theater. Tear gas and fire hoses were used to quell the mob and Palance and his family were given a police escort out of town.

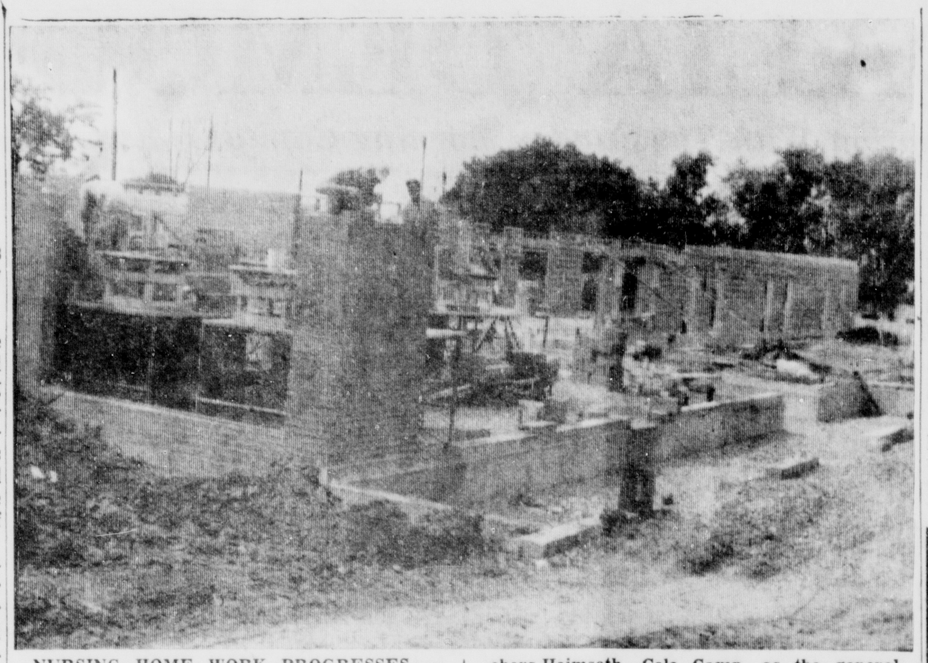

At Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Constance Baker Motley, a lawyer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, applauded several Mississippi cities in a speech to a race relations institute.

She said there has been a noticeable change for the better in Jackson, Meridian and Biloxi.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy asked federal court in Atlanta to decide on a motel owner's challenge of the constitutionality of the civil rights bill's public accommodations section.

He also asked for an injunction to compel the Heart of Atlanta motel to open immediately to all persons, regardless of race.

Lester Maddox, a restaurant proprietor, called a news conference to say he would continue to run his establishment on a segregated basis even if he was ordered to integrate.

NURSING HOME WORK PROGRESSES — Notable progress is being made on the new Fairway Nursing Home undeh construction on West 16th near the intersection of Limit avenue. The brick and masonry work is being done by Fackler-Vogel of Sedalia with Borchers-Heimsoth, Cole Camp, as the general contractors. Gerald Graham, principal stockholder in the project said the first portion of the nursing home is expected to be ready by Oct. 1 with project completion by Nov. 1. It is a 50-bed unit.

An Illinois Youth Drowns in Park Lake

He was Archie Foltz, 19, of Fowler, Ill.

Authorities said Foltz and three companions were swimming across the lake when he apparently panicked and went under. The body was recovered a short time later.

Wives a Study In Contrasts At Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mrs. William W. Scranton, who says she loves campaigning, and Mrs. Barry Goldwater, who shuns it are a study in contrasts at this Republican convention scene.

The senator's wife was getting protection Friday from two private detectives, a Goldwater staff man assigned to her, a new press secretary and two sisters-in-law.

The governor's wife was acting as her own press secretary and virtually going it alone.

Both smiling and exchanging polite chit-chat, the two women met Friday at a fashion luncheon for national committeewomen in a plush hotel.

When reporters asked the two wives what they found hardest about campaigning, Mrs. Goldwater replied frankly:

"Having to appear before television and press people. I'm not used to it."

Tall, slender, energetic Mrs. Scranton, who has been Pennsylvania's first lady for two years, hesitated a bit before she proclaimed: "I love it."

Mrs. Scranton lingered to chat after the luncheon. Mrs. Goldwater exited promptly.

Though they approach the campaign with different attitudes, the two wives have just one aim—"I'll do whatever I can to help my husband."

Durocher Might Still Have Chance

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP)—Leo Durocher, 57, still may have a chance to marry the 26-year-old actress-secretary he says he loves and asked to be his wife.

Miss Carolyn Morin, an attractive brunette, said Friday, "If the offer is still open, I might reconsider. He's a wonderful guy, you know."

Her indication of willingness to marry the Los Angeles Dodger baseball coach came during testimony in her father's $150,000 alienation of affections suit against Durocher.

Rene Morin, 51, a Middlebury bricklayer, says Durocher stole the love of his wife, Anna, 51, mother of Carolyn and two other daughters.

Miss Morin told the jury that Durocher had proposed marriage in 1961, but that she had refused.

Date Near Explosive In Baghdad

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—The heat is on again in Baghdad.

July 14 is at hand. It is a nervous date in this explosive city. Six years ago on this day the army destroyed the Iraqi monarchy and its capable old ally, Nuri Said. The people went on a gruesome rampage against "the enemies of God." Parts of royal bodies and finally old Nuri's were dragged through the streets.

Such shock waves were cast around the Middle East that the next day a hard pressed pro-Western government in Lebanon issued an alarm and the U.S. Marines rushed ashore near Beirut.

As another anniversary approaches Iraq's foreign minister accuses unnamed "imperialists" of plotting to overthrow President Abdel Salam Aref. The president himself warns of "subversive elements."

In the 1958 coup he was the partner in arms of its leader, Abdel Kerim Kassem. In February 1963, he teamed with the underground Baath Socialist party to overthrow Kassem. Nine months later he led the army in ousting the Baath. Now, at age 43, with most of the reins of government in his hands, he is called "the hero of three revolutions."

One wonders, however, if he is a popular hero.

The country's business, despite a record oil income last year of $308 million from the Western-owned Iraq Petroleum Co., is slow. Driven to despair by the late Baath socialism, businessmen have not recovered confidence in Aref's "Islamic socialism" — or "socialism with a difference."

The president repeatedly and his government almost daily announce there will be no further seizures of private property or nationalizations. Investors remain skeptical.

Aref inherited one of the most divided countries in the world, composed of mutually suspicious Sunni and Shia Moslems, rebellious Kurds and embittered Christians.

A Sunni Moslem, Aref has further alienated the Christians forming 10 per cent of the population by making it harder for them to get jobs.

His government has kept a truce in the three-year mountain warfare with the Kurds who control northern Iraq. There have been negotiations but as yet no solution to the problem of the Kurds, who make up a tough 20 per cent of the population.

Most of all, Aref has riled the country with his moves for unity with Egypt. The majority but leaderless Shias, the Kurds and Christians and many of the Sunnis have distaste for the merger of their rich Iraq with impoverished Sunni Moslem Egypt.

What worries the West now about Iraq is something else—a probable swing to the East in Iraqi foreign relations. Iraq Communists took a fearful pasting during the short lived Baathist rule. Aref would like to see the Reds continue to be well shackled at home. But he must try to get more neutral, to bring his policy more in line with Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser, who gets along famously with the Soviet Union even though he gives the back of his hand to Egyptian Communists.

Aref saw Nikita Khrushchev when the Soviet premier visited Egypt in May. Witnesses could see that the two didn't get along very well personally but the meeting opened several paths toward better relations — economic, cultural and military.

Goldwater Showed Some Reluctance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater who takes a towering delegate lead into the Republican National Convention on Monday, figured when it all began he wouldn't "get enough delegate to put under the bed."

Those closes to the Arizona senator says he plunged into the Republican presidential race with some reluctance.

He made the move, they say, because he saw no one else who could give the voters a conservative choice—and defend GOP conservatism against what he considered divisive assaults by the party's liberals.

Another factor in the decision, his associates say, was Goldwater's conviction that he could run a presidential race that would come within five per cent of capturing a majority of the popular vote.

Goldwater has said that in his opinion no Republican "as of now" could beat President Johnson—but he insists the picture will be different in November. And he insists that he is the only Republican with a ghost of a chance of winning.

For Goldwater, a man who has admitted he sometimes shoots from the hip, the decision to run was a long time in coming.

In fact, associates say, it was made only about 10 days before he announced it last Jan. 3.

Goldwater is known to have made up his mind to run against the late President John F. Kennedy, convinced that if he led the ticket the voters would have a clear-cut choice between a conservative and a liberal.

Then Kennedy was assassinated. And Goldwater's decision process began all over again. His big question, aides say, was this: Would a Goldwater-Johnson clash be a clear-cut race between a Republican conservative and a Democratic liberal. Goldwater watched Johnson's performance and decided it would.

Again he applied the five per cent rule, and decided he could meet it against the new President.

Less than a year before Goldwater had said: "I don't want the job."

As the Goldwater boom swelled, he said: "Frankly, I didn't think this thing would last two months in April or May when they started it, and that's why I didn't do more to stop it."

But there were hints that he had his mind on a presidential bid.

Even before the 1960 elections, Goldwater said if the Republicans lost he would be available for the 1964 nomination—if offered.

About 10 months ago he reserved the 15th floor of San Francisco's Mark Hopkins Hotel—now his convention headquarters.

Miller May Be Tabbed As Candidate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater has charted a no - holds - barred campaign against President Johnson if the Republican convention gives him its presidential nomination next Wednesday.

As a part of this strategy Goldwater has made the all-but-final decision to tab Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the GOP national chairman, as his vice-presidential running mate.

Goldwater considers Miller a "gut fighter." This assessment fits the pattern of the kind of strenuous attack on the President that the Arizona senator believes offers him his best chance of overturning the incumbent's present long odds of winning a first executive term.

The fact that Miller is a Roman Catholic from upstate New York, where the Republicans have to win big in order to carry the Empire State, has figured very little in Goldwater's calculations.

What he likes about Miller is the latter's ability to handle himself with aplomb on television, and to slug hard at the opposition.

Miller's attack on the popular Jacqueline Kennedy for vacationing aboard a Greek millionaire's yacht and his assertions that the Kennedys were demeaning the dignity of the presidency by permitting their kin to be pushed into swimming pools are examples in point.

With Miller as his political slugger, Goldwater could take a statesmanlike attitude toward the issues of the day. The senator finds it distasteful to deal in personalities although he is no mean infighter when he feels compelled to it.

The expected selection of Miller involves a Goldwater decision to ignore the protests of Republican liberals and to conduct a campaign geared toward arousing the country's conservatives to a fever pitch.

Convicted Man Correspondent In a Divorce

LONDON (AP) — A former U.S. airman serving a life term in the United States for slaying his wife has been named as a correspondent in a British divorce proceeding.

Alan Taylor was granted a decree because of his wife Cynthia's adultery with former M. Sgt. Marcus M. Marymont while he was stationed at Sculthorpe in Norfolk County, England, in 1958.

In a sensational trial that year Marymont was convicted of poisoning his wife with arsenic because of his love for Mrs. Taylor. The shapely brunette, then 23, was the key prosecution witness at the court-martial.

Taylor's attorney said he was not pressing a claim for legal costs against Marymont because it would be futile. Taylor also admitted adultery.

Mrs. Taylor said afterwards: "I have no plans to remarry. There is definitely no question of marrying Sgt. Marymont now."

Marymont, now 42, continued to maintain his innocence after his conviction and said at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., in 1960, he would like to marry Mrs. Taylor.

Hearnes Asks Democrats To Give Him Nod

MEXICO, Mo. (AP)—Warren E. Hearnes called upon Audrain County Democrats Saturday night to nominate him for governor and "make Aug. 4 the Independence Day of the Democratic party in Missouri and the people of Missouri."

It was a continuation of his campaign against what he has called "the Establishment" and has said is headed by the Central Missouri Trust Co. in Jefferson City. Hearnes, secretary of state, said the establishment is backing his chief opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor in the Aug. 4 primary, Lt. Gov. Hilary A. Bush.

In a speech prepared for a Hearnes for Governor rally, he said "Missouri's choice for governor must be a free choice — a choice dictated by the will of the people and not the willful men of the establishment. I am your opportunity to elect a governor to serve you and not the establishment.

"If an officer of a bank wishes to be governor, let him hoist his own banner, wage his own campaign, propose his own platform. Let him run for the office as all other Missourians.

"Let him cease to hide behind the facade of a bank as a child hides behind its mother's skirts."

Contract Agreements Reached Between Union And Companies

CLEVELAND (AP)—Contract agreements were reached Saturday night between the United Rubber Workers union and two giants of the "big five" of the rubber industry.

A settlement with Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. was reached two hours after the URW and Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. agrees to terms on a pact ending a 19-hour strike by 17,000 Firestone production workers in eight cities.

A URW spokesman said all agreements dealt with new pension, hospitalization and insurance contracts and were similar in nature. Early Saturday General Tire & Rubber Co. became the first in the rubber industry to arrive at an agreement covering 3,500 employes in Akron (Ohio) and Waco, Tex.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—A terrorist hurled a bomb into a movie theater showing two Indian films last night, killing three women of Indian extraction. Twelve other persons were injured.

A 43-year-old Kansas City woman is in critical condition at Bothwell Hospital as the result of a one-car accident on rain-slick Highway 65 north of Warsaw early Saturday morning.

She is Mrs. Derendinger, who was the driver of a southbound 1964 Volkswagen sedan, which went out of control on the slick pavement, ran off the road on the left side, hit a ditch and overturned. The mishap occurred at 5 a.m. about three miles north of Warsaw.

Mrs. Derendinger was accompanied by her husband, Edwin, 55, at the time of the crash. She sustained the most serious injuries apparently when thrown into the windshield. Mrs. Derendinger received a severe laceration of the head and scalp and possible other injuries.

Her husband sustained a neck and shoulder injury, but after treatment at the hospital did not require admittance.

An accident occurred Friday at 10:25 p.m. at the junction of Highways 50 and 127 at LaMonte.

Involved was a 1959 Rambler sedan driven east by Gary D. Crater, 21, LaMonte, and a 1955 Oldsmobile sedan being driven east by Thomas K. Stricklin, 29, of Lexington. Both cars were pulling boats and trailers. The Rambler stopped at the intersection and waited for oncoming cars to pass so he could make a left turn on 127 when the Oldsmobile came in from the rear and was unable to stop, striking the boat trailer of the first car.

The impact knocked the boat partly off the trailer and up on the rear end of the Rambler, resulting in damage to the boat, boat trailer and the rear of the Rambler.

Both cars were driven away under their own power.

The driver of the second car was given a summons for following too closely.

Two cars were in collision in the 800 block of South Ohio at 9:12 p.m. Friday.

Police reported a 1962 Pontiac, driven by David L. McCune, 21, Route 1, Sedalia, was preparing to make a left hand turn into the driveway leading to Garst's Drive-In when struck in the rear by a 1955 Chevrolet, driven by Robert Lee Shackles, 21, Houstonia.

Damage was listed to the left front fender of the Shackles auto and to the right rear fender of the McCune car.

An accident occurred 5.7 miles south of Sedalia on Highway 65, Saturday at 9:30 a.m., when a 1964 Chevrolet coach, driven south by Mrs. Patricia Kay Williams, 23, Route 2, Sedalia, attempted to pass a 1960 Pontiac sedan, driven south by Cyril E. Muckenthaler, 38, Prairie Village, Kan., and in swinging out to pass skidded on the pavement which was slick from light rainfall, and the left rear side of the car struck a sight board on the west side of the road doing considerable damage. The Chevrolet then went out of control and the right rear bumper struck both of the left doors of the Pontiac, spun around and went off the west side of the road.

Minor damage was done to the Pontiac but extensive damage was done to the Chevrolet.

Only minor damage occurred to two vehicles involved in an accident at 3:10 p.m. Saturday in this world who lightens the burden of it to anyone else.

— DICKENS
To some, the life and work of a funeral director may appear to be an unhappy one. We do not share this feeling. We feel, rather, that ours is the opportunity to lighten the burden of those who have come to us in their time of need.
With complete respect for those bereaved, we quietly attend to the many necessary details so that minds already overburdened need not be further disturbed.

National Guard Pulls Out Of Cambridge, Md.

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — National Guard troops left Cambridge today, exactly one year from the night of racial violence that brought them.

The 50 men were up before dawn for breakfast. About two hours later, as the sun was breaking through a hazy sky, five jeeps and two 2½-ton trucks rumbled across the Choptank River which flows past the town.

With the Guardsmen went the modified militia law they established to keep a tense racial peace.

One or two officers will remain for several days "to make sure we do not owe anybody," as Col. William Ogletree, troop commander put it.

Also staying was Capt. William Harris, Baltimore, a Negro deputy U.S. marshal in civilian life. He has been working on a recreation program for Negro children in the community of 12,600.

No townspeople turned out for the departure. One white woman came to the National Guard armory Friday to say how much she appreciated what the troops had done.

The troops were first sent in by Gov. J. Millard Tawes June 14, 1963, after three nights of shootings and fire bombings. They were removed July 8, however, only to return four days later. That time the stay was a long one.

It has cost Maryland taxpayers about $800,000 to keep them here.

Castro Grip On Cuba Is Still Firm

HAVANA (AP) — Despite many harsh economic setbacks and political crises, Fidel Castro's grip on Cuba appears to be firmer than ever.

This is the judgment of both Communist and non-Communist diplomats and many pro- and anti-Castro Cubans.

In his mercurial way, Castro often alienated friends and annoyed allies, but he has confounded and crushed his enemies as they arose.

Cuban and foreign observers see no possibility now for any internal uprising and no chance of success for any attacks by exiles.

The army, estimated at 80,000 to 100,000, is said to be strongly armed and well-trained. Fidel's brother Raul is minister of the revolutionary armed forces but Fidel holds the title of commander in chief. The army is backed by militia and reserve forces of unknown military capacity numbering around 200,000, according to observers.

The militia — men and women in khaki trousers and blue denim shirts, armed with pistols or rifles — are seen everywhere. They stand sentry duty on street corners or in front of buildings. Most work in the buildings — hotels, ministries, government offices, factories. They put in about eight hours guard duty weekly and attend military training courses.

The state security service, the central investigation and police force, has a widespread network watching against counterrevolutionary activity. Keeping eyes on nearly all citizens are more than 100,000 committees for defense of the revolution.

These are the neighborhood committees of Castroite zealots — a committee on just about every city block — whose duty it is to know who lives there and what he or she is doing and why.

The control apparatus is extended further by Communist party cells in offices, farms and factories.

The members of the Union of Young Communists are spread throughout schools, universities, stores and offices.

Women are organized in the Communist Federation of Women, headed by Vilma Espin, wife of Raul Castro.

This complex, penetrating system of control of thought and action explains why Cubans, although they may still grumble, are careful — "talking a lot less these days," one commented.

The number of political prisoners in Cuba is unknown. Estimates by foreign observers range from 25,000 to 40,000.

U.S. broadcasts to Cuba are jammed on the medium wave broadcast band in Havana. But the Florida stations are heard clearly in other parts of the island and in Havana many listen to the Voice of America's short-wave broadcasts.

TRIUMPHAL MOMENT — The Gold Cup, most coveted trophy of Ascot Week, rests between Jeanne Moreau and Rex Harrison as they leave the track. It's a key scene filmed near Elstree, England, for "The Yellow Rolls Royce." Action takes place in the 1930s.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Industrialist Howard Hughes has lost a round in his efforts to regain control of Trans World Airlines.

The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday refused to permit his Hughes Tool Co. (Toolco) to acquire $92.8 million in TWA sinking fund notes from Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

The acquisition would have enabled Toolco to regain its 78 per cent controlling shares of TWA, now held in a voting trust.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has presented the Distinguished Service Medal to Adm. Harry D. Felt for his six years of service as commander in chief of American forces in the Pacific.

Felt is retiring after 44 years in the Navy and Johnson said in a cabinet room ceremony Friday that there is no way to reward him fully for his service.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has named Dr. Winston Edward Kock to be director of electronics research center to be built in the Boston area.

Kock is a vice president of research for the Bendix Corp., Detroit. He is a scientist and inventor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has turned down an appeal signed by some 5,000 college and university professors for neutralization of North and South Viet Nam.

"Under the present circumstances," the department said, "We see no alternative to our policy of assisting South Viet Nam to the maximum to resist Communist aggression."

The educators' appeal was circulated by the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy.

Buzzard May Cost Airline $150,000

MERIDA, Mexico (AP) — A buzzard sucked into the engine of a Pan American jet Friday may cost the airline $150,000.

The bird was drawn into the jets motor as it took off from here. The pilot was forced to land again.

The plane blew out two tires on landing and Pan American had to put the passengers up in a local hotel while it sent for a new engine.

GOP Platform Drafters Complete Half of Task

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republican platform writers completed the first half of their 1964 campaign document early Saturday. It reportedly was met with satisfaction from supporters of both Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. William W. Scranton.

However, backers of the rival candidates for president predicted a fight later in the day when the 100 - man platform committee convenes in closed session again to write the last half of the platform.

Goldwater forces remained in firm control of the committee's operations with the Scranton backers fighting stubbornly to rescue some of the underdog candidate's planks from the scrap pile.

Meeting behind closed doors for about five hours, the drafters wrote a statement of belief for Republicans and an indictment of the Democrats.

This was the less controversial half of the document.

The committee arranged to take up recommendations on foreign and domestic affairs. Scranton is pushing for certain provisions in these fields that are unacceptable to the Goldwater forces.

Committee Chairman Melvin Laird of Wisconsin said the text of the completed half of the platform would be issued sometime during the day for release in Sunday morning papers.

Apparently the civil rights issue had been injected into a discussion of general principles, which were to be set out at the beginning of the document. Also, numerous committee members were reported eager to add accusations against the Johnson administration to the platform.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, convention manager for Gov. William W. Scranton, told newsmen that unless the committee restores some of the Scranton material excluded from the platform, a fight on the convention floor is likely.

Supporters of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, predominating on the committee, had succeeded in keeping out of the rough draft three major planks for which Scranton had pleaded.

And the tentative civil rights plank omitted the declaration Scranton urgently sought, that the 1964 law—against which Goldwater voted—is constitutional.

Although argument within the committee seemed certain to continue, Scranton hopes of getting a platform that would embarrass Goldwater apparently have been doused.

Extremism, right-towork laws and civilian control of nuclear weapons were the subjects of the three planks the Scranton backers couldn't get by the executive committee.

They wanted a repudiation, by name, of the John Birch Society. Goldwater has declined to disown the support of members of that group.

The Scranton followers sought a declaration against laws prohibiting union shop contracts.

Finally, the Scranton people wanted a firm statement against any relaxation of the present law and policy reserving to the president the decision on use of any nuclear weapons. Goldwater, agreeing with this policy so far as big nuclear missiles are concerned, told the platform committee Friday he is concerned about delays that NATO forces might encounter in fighting back against an attack limited to small, tactical nuclear weapons.

This Is The Year For An Election of

WARREN E. HEARNES

Democratic Candidate for Governor

HEARNES BANDWAGON ROLLS

by Delton L. Houtchens, State Campaign Manager, Hearnes For Governor

The Hearnes bandwagon is rolling. Support in the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County is overwhelming. Of the 28 St. Louis City wards, 20 can be counted on to carry Hearnes, 8 may carry Bush. Of 11 rump groups which have sprung up in the wards, 9 are active for Hearnes in the wards supporting Bush and only 2 for Bush in the wards supporting Hearnes.

In St. Louis County the township organizations have made their endorsements. 10 have endorsed Hearnes and only 6 his opponent. Of these 6, only 2 are counted to carry his opponent.

Thus with the 20-8 majority in the City wards and the 10-6 count in the County townships, influenced by the powerful editorial support of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Hearnes can now expect a St. Louis City and St. Louis County majority of, at least, 35,000 to 40,000 – more than enough to offset any majority his opponent may collect in Jackson County.

Confident that the St. Louis and Kansas City majorities of the two candidates will, at the worst, cancel each other, Hearnes predicts his 15 to 20,000 majority from the 10th Congressional District, Southeast Missouri, will set the pace for an overwhelming victory at the polls.

Our outstate support more than matches that of our Jackson County opponent. It is apparent that a bandwagon movement has reached almost unbelievable proportions in the past two or three weeks. This bandwagon movement is noted both in support and finances.

"Our total majority may well exceed 50,000 votes on August 4. We have had wonderful workers – and the people are with us. We can't lose."

WARREN E. HEARNES

is earnestly solicited and will be greatly appreciated.

NAMED TO HEAD HEARNES GROUP

James T. Blair III Chosen Chairman of St. Louis Committee

A Hand From Musial

Former Baseball Star Is Backing Secretary of State

By Henry Clay Gold
(The Star's Jefferson City Correspondent)

Jefferson City — James T. Blair III, son of the late governor of Missouri, was named chairman yesterday of a St. Louis metropolitan citizens committee which is supporting Warren E. Hearnes, secretary of state, for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Blair said the state needs a change in government in Jefferson City and Hearnes is the man to bring about the change. Hearnes compiled an outstanding voting record as a member of the Legislature on such matters as education, mental health and industrial development, Blair said.

By calling for a change in Jefferson City, Blair aligned himself against most long-time party leaders here and throughout Missouri who are supporting Hilary A. Bush for governor and who supported the late James T. Blair, jr., in his successful campaign for governor in 1956.

Among the executive committee of the group headed by Blair, who is a St. Louis insurance executive and sportsman, is Stan Musial, former baseball player for the St. Louis Cardinals and now director of President Johnson's physical fitness program.

Musial said he still does not have any political ambitions for himself, but does have an interest in the quality of persons who seek and hold political office. He said he is supporting Hearnes on the basis of his experience as a legislator and as secretary of state.

Hatfield Still Pitching For The Party

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Mark Hatfield, Republican, ran for governor just after Oregon Democrats became the majority.

He won. The loser's campaign manager said he did it by "exploiting to the fullest his great personal charm."

He also exploited his great desire. "I had an ambition in my junior high school days," he said. "I dreamed of being governor."

He was just 36 when he made it, six years ago.

His charm continues. He is darkly handsome, just under 6 feet, trim at 154 pounds. His black hair is closely cut. His smile is wide and friendly and frequent.

The charm shows well through television cameras, a point not lost on those who named him keynoter of the Republican National Convention, opening July 13 at San Francisco.

The keynoter's job is to open the convention on a bright note, arouse party fervor in the delegates, and help sell the party to millions watching on television. Sometimes the keynoter is selling himself. This might be so in the case of Hatfield, who has been mentioned as vice presidential timber and even as a candidate for the presidency sometime.

There is an image in Oregon of Mark Hatfield as the all-American boy from humble origins; foe of liquor and tobacco and gambling; devout churchman; devoted young husband and father.

His biographical memos for the press invariably note that his father is a retired railroad blacksmith; his wife's father a Yuogoslav immigrant and longshoreman. He neither smokes nor drinks and as a legislator he tried to outlaw parimutuel gambling at horse and dog tracks.

But Hatfield is more than a Prince Charming.

He is a tough, shrewd politician who rarely loses. He got where he is by plotting a course and staying with it. In two years he must give up the governorship as he cannot succeed himself after two terms. Perhaps the Senate then? "I just don't know," he says. "I have had several offers to go back into educatiton."

No one really believes he will give up politics.

He rang doorbells for GOP presidential nominee Wendell Willkie in 1940 when he was 18. He majored in government at Willamette University, took a master's degree at Stanford on Herbert Hoover's labor policies, and joined the Willamette political science faculty after wartime service in the Pacific.

In 1950 he was ready to start moving up the ladder; he was 28, a war veteran, a bachelor, an instructor in government.

He was elected to the Oregon Legislature and promptly began building the image: he worked for civil rights legislation, for improved educational facilities and fought a proposed loyalty oath for teachers.

Accidents

Sedalia police car 7 was involved in an accident at 7:32 p. m. Friday on the parking lot located at Third and Lamine.

According to the police investigation made by Sgt. Jewell Riley, a 1954 Cadillac driven by David Russell, 40, 707 South Lafayette backed into the front of the 1963 Dodge patrol car driven by Officer Don Shipps, 26, 320 East Saline. The report indicated that Shipps was in pursuit of the Russell car with the red light and siren on when Russell turned into the parking lot. Shipps pursued him north and the Russell car stopped and then backed into the police car. The pursuit began when the officer attempted to stop the car and serve a warrant signed by Russell's wife that resulted from a disturbance earlier in the evening.

Neither of the drivers were injured. Damage was to the rear of the Russell car and the right front of the police car.

Russell received a police summons for careless and imprudent driving and is to appear in police court July 13.

Police Reports

Four hub caps valued at $40 were reported stolen to police Friday by Robert Bryson, Route 2. The hub caps were taken from his 1962 Chevrolet sometime Thursday evening while parked in the 600 block of East 13th.

Twins 5, Athletics 4

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Home runs by Zoilo Versalles and Don Mincher helped Camilo Pascual gain his 10th pitching victory Saturday as the Minnesota Twins edged Kansas City 5-4.

Pascual checked the Athletics on five hits and led 5-1 until the ninth when a walk and singles by Rocky Colavito, Nelson Mathews and pinch hitter Manny Jimenez produced three runs. Bill Pleis came on and yielded a two-out single to Wayne Causey before Johnny Klippstein struck out Ed Charles to end the rally.

Versalles had a double and two singles in addition to his ninth homer. The Minnesota shortstop doubled and scored the Twins' first run in the first inning. He homered with Earl Battey on base in the fifth.

Mincher hit his 14th home run, a solo shot, in the second. The Twins' final run, which proved decisive, came in the sixth when Tony Oliva walked, moved around to third on an error and a fly ball and scored on Bob Allison's sacrifice fly.

Orioles 7, Indians 4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jackie Brandt and Brooks Robinson drove in three runs each, Brandt clouting two homers and Robinson one, and led the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Brandt and Robinson each hit two-run homers in the fourth to chase rookie lefthander Tommy John and give Oriole hurler Dave McNally all the runs he need for the victory.

Brandt, who also singled in the first, came back in the fifth with another homer, his 10th of the year, and Robinson's single added another run in the same inning.

Yankees 3, Senators 2

WASHINGTON (AP) — The York Yankees converted three hits off Dave Stenhouse into three runs Saturday afternoon and beat the Washington Senators 3-2 behind pitchers Jim Bouton, Steve Hamilton and Pete Mikkelsen.

The defeat extended the Senators' losing string to seven straight, longest in the American League this season.

Stenhouse gave up two runs in the first on a walk to Bobby Richardson, a pair of singles through the infield by Mickey Mantle and Tom Tresh, and Roger Maris' run scoring infield out.

The only other run off Stenhouse through the eight innings he pitched was Tony Kubek's fourth home run in the fifth inning. He retired 12 out of 13 before Kubek's blow, and the last 10 Yankees he faced.

Moose Skowron tagged Bouton for his 13th home run in the second inning, and Stenhouse drove in the other Senator run with a two-out single in the fifth, following singles by Don Lock and Mike Brumley.

Sparma, 3-1, blanked Washington on four hits last Sunday. Bob Tillman's homer in the eighth for the Red Sox was the first run off Sparma in 22 innings.

Jake Wood, Don Wert and George Thomas hit homers for the Tigers who now have won nine of their last 11 games. Wert's was a two-run blast in the sixth inning while Wood and Thomas connected leading off the third and seventh, respectively.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dean Chance pitched his fourth shutout of the season and Joe Adcock belted his 11th homer Saturday, bringing the Los Angeles Angels a 1-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The loss dropped the third-place White Sox four games back of the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles and 1½ games behind second-place New York.

Chance, who pitched three scoreless innings in the All-Star Game last Tuesday, allowed only four hits, two of them in a runner past second base.

Adcock's homer, a fourth-inning shot off Fred Talbot, was his first this season at home.

Angel catcher Bob Rodgers, who broke a club record by running his hitting streak to 17 games Friday night, made it 18 with a fifth-inning single off Talbot.

Cardinals 11, Mets 4

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals capitalized on a rash of errors and rolled over the New York Mets 11-4 Saturday.

St. Louis broke it open with five runs in the third inning, the last three unearned, and got another in the fifth after loading the bases on three straight Met errors.

The final two Card runs in the third scored on the Met monstrosity of the day. Ken Boyer, on third, and Mike Shannon, on first, started a double steal, but Boyer was trapped in a rundown. However, he ran right over Met catcher Hawk Taylor for a run and while Taylor lay supine, the ball rolling away, Shannon raced across.

Four hits and another error produced the last three Card runs in the ninth.

CHICAGO (AP)—The surging San Francisco Giants moved to within one percentage point of first place in the National League Saturday, trouncing the Chicago Cubs for the fourth straight time, 7-0, as Willie McCovey and Jesus Alou each drove in two runs.

The victory gave the Giants a .614 percentage while league-leading Philadelphia's 3-1 loss to Cincinnati dropped the Phillies to .615.

Bob Bolin blanked the Cubs, scattering seven hits and striking out 12 as he evened his record at 3-3.

The Giants, leading 2-0, erupted for three runs in the fourth. Jose Pagan singled and was sacrificed to second. Willie Mays was walked intentionally before McCovey drove a two-run double into the center field vines. Orlando Cepeda then singled in McCovey.

Ty Cline opened the 11th with a single off Tommy Sisk and went to third on Mike de la Hoz' hit. Then Mathews singled up the middle and Aaron beat out an infield hit.

The Pirates came back with three singles and a walk but could score only one run, when Bob Clemente singled Bill Virdon across.

Mathews drove home the go-ahead run in a four-run Milwaukee rally in the ninth that gave the Braves a 7-6 margin, but the Pirates tied it up in their half of the ninth on a walk, a sacrifice and Bob Bailey's single.

HOUSTON (AP) — Two-run homers by the Davis boys — Willie and Tommy — powered the Los Angeles Dodgers past Houston 11-9 Saturday night.

Willie Davis broke a 7-7 deadlock with his fifth homer off Claude Raymond in the sixth. He connected after Derrell Griffith singled.

A ninth-inning Colt rally fell short. Singles by Joe Gaines and Kasko sandwiched around Bob Aspromonte's double with none out brought in two runs. But Jim Brewer relieved Ron Perranoski and after walking Jerry Grote, retired the side.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds cut loose for three runs in the sixth inning and beat Jim (Perfect Game) Bunning and the Philadelphia Phils 3-1 Saturday.

Lefty Joe Nuxhall and reliever Sammy Ellis held the Phils to five hits in steamy Connie Mack Stadium. Nuxhall and Bunning hooked up in a scoreless duel until the Reds came alive in the sixth.

They scored on singles by Frank Robinson, Vada Pinson, and John Edwards and Leo Cardenas' double toright.

Both Nuxhall, now 7-4, and Bunning, who lost his first game since his perfect no-hit performance in New York three weeks ago, were soaked by perspiration by the fourth inning as the temperature hoavered in the 90s. Bunning is now 9-3.

Nuxhall was in charge completly, allowing three hits, striking out six and walking one before he left the game because of the heat in the bottom of the eighth.

Swim Meet To Be Held At Surf Club

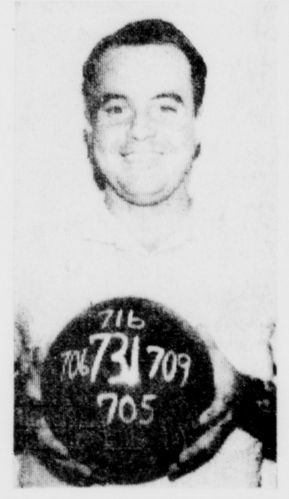

Plans are going forward at the Surf Club for the Mid-Missouri Invitational Swim Meet to be held at the Sedalia club, July 18.

It is anticipated that around 200 swimmers will participate in the aquatic event with invitations being sent to Marshall, Mexico, Fulton, Whiteman AFB and to several swim clubs in Columbia.

The meet will have events for boys and girls in the four competitive strokes, as well as relay events for the teams. Ages are expected to range from 6 to 20 with some very talented swimmers to be found in each age bracket. It is known that some of the Columbia swimmers have some of the faster times in the state so local fans will have an opportunity to witness some exceptional swimming in this meet.

Approximately 25 members of the Sedalia Surf Club team will enter the competition in an effort to capture some of the awards. The meet will start at 9:30 a.m. and will continue until the 70 events have been completed.

Anyone interested in competitive swimming is invited to observe the meet.

DON POTTS BOWLED over 700 on five different occasions during the past year. Potts had series of 705, 706, 709, 716 and 731. This is believed to be a record breaking performance for a one year period by a Sedalia bowler.

Sports Scraps

A proud grandpaw is Ross Bothwell, 724 West Seventh, whose grandson, Charles Bothwell, 17, son of Buddy Bothwell, won the Pompano Beach, Fla., City Championship in golf recently. It's "like grandpaw, like grandson" in this golf business.

Grandpa Bothwell was quite a golfer in his day, and burned up the Sedalia Country Club for many years — in fact up to only a few years ago. He will be recalled by the old time golfers at the club as a pressure golfer, always playing hard to win and did so successfully.

Charles, in the Pompano Beach tournament, took his first round as tournament medalist from his opponent Roger Woonten 1-up. He sailed on to the championship, defeating Carter Briggs 3 and one.

Young Bothwell a Junior at Pompano Beach High School is a member of the school team, and his victory made him the youngest champion to win the tournament which began back in 1954.

He carded a 148 total — four over par — for the 36-holes, to pace the men. His opponent Briggs placed second with a 150.

He was having a hot 36-holes and was only two over par for the 35 hole.

Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Bothwell kept Grandpa Bothwell well informed on the tournament, sending his clippings of the results.

Charles entered the Florida State Junior Tournament held July 6-7 at Umittla, Fla.

Bothwell placed second with a 29-69—148. He will accompany Bill Harris of Ft. Lauderdale, who scored a 144 for first place to South St. Paul Minn., Aug. 3-8, for a shot at the National Jaycee title.

Bothwell, who won the Jaycee driving contest with a 285-yard clout, hit 16 greens on the first day, but took 41 putts to reach his 79. His Tuesday scorecard recalled he hit 15 greens and took only 31 putts.

"It was very simple," Charles summarized. "I just couldn't sink a putt the first day."

THE constant switching of top honors in the Sedalia Rod and Gun trap shooting Wednesday night league, isn't blamed on any difficulties of the men on the firing line each week. As "top dogs" the squad on top of the league are forced to do their shooting from the back line of 26 yards while other teams are firing from the 18-yard line for the bottom team, the next low team shoots from the 19, and so on up.

To explain it more thoroughly, the leading team stands on the 26, second spot on the 25, third on the 24, fourth on the 23rd, and a yard closer to the front line of 18.

Actually as the season rolls by, the gun handlers become more accustomed to the distances. As a result the teams nearer the halfway mark of the season become better on hitting the "rocks" and as a result competition gets tougher and tougher. However, those farther back have a greater chance for misses while those closer get a better eye on the clay pigeons as they fly out of the traps and naturally their scores often carry them from a very low in the weekly standings one week to a much higher standing the next.

The sport is attracting a larger number of sportsmen in gun handling each year. In fact the interest is becoming so that already members of the R and G Club are pushing for the installation of three additional traps.

If the club does install these traps, Sedalia could become a site for some of the top trap shoots of the central states.

New Rowing Teams Wins Olympic Spot

NEW YORK (AP)—The Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, a crew put together in the last four weeks, shattered American collegiate rowing supremacy Saturday and won a trip to the Tokyo Olympics as the United States' eight.

Whipping over the 2,000-meter (about 1¼ mile) Olympic course at Orchard Beach lagoon in perfect weather, the fourth-seeded Vesper stroked home one length in front of Harvard in 6 minutes, 1.3 seconds.

California's previously unbeaten eight, stroking furiously at the rate of 44 to a minute, was third one length back of Harvard and 1½ lengths in front of Yale in the four-crew final.

American rowing honors have been strictly a collegiate closed shop in recent Olympics. College crews from the U. S. had won every Olympic final from 1920 until Navy was beaten by Germany's Ratzburg eight in 1960. In the early days, the clubs did represent the U. S. In fact, Vesper won at Paris in 1900 and at St. Louis in 1904, when the event was listed as a demonstration.

Spero finished a good two lengths in front of Cromwell of the New Rochelle, N.Y., Rowing Club. Cromwell barely held off the strong challenge of Jim Storm of the San Diego, Calif. Rowing Club. Spero's time was 7:18.2. He is a Cornell grad, doing graduate work in physics at Columbia.

McKinley Favored To Sweep Title

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP)—Top-seeded Chuck McKinley is favored to score the first three-in-a-row National Clay Courts title sweep in 26 years this week.

The week-long championships opening Monday for 128 men and 64 women has particular significance this year because the Davis Cup challenge round also will be played on composition courts at Cleveland Sept. 24-26.

Last year when McKinley and Dennis Ralston, seeded No. 2 here, returned the Davis Cup to America the challenge round was played on grass in Australia.

Thus, the scramble at River Forest, expected to produce a replay of last year's final between McKinley and Ralston, will serve as a clay court priming for the Davis Cup competition.

McKinley, pegged to become the first man since Bobby Riggs to win three successive singles crowns, heads a high-voltage field of most of the top U. S. men players. Riggs did it in 1936, 1937 and 1938.

The top-seeded woman entry is Nancy Richey of Dallas, defending champion. Her chief rival appears to be second-seeded Carole Caldwell.

Riessen is No. 4 in the men's seeding, behind McKinley, Ralston and Frank Froehing.

Arthur Ashe, another 1963 Davis Cupper, is seeded No. 5; Huck Pasarell of Puerto Rico, No. 6; Jim McManus, No. 7, and Cliff Buchholtz, No. 8. The No. 1 foreign seed is Abe Segal of South Africa.

Dates For Horse Show In Windsor

Eight events and 13 classes will highlight the Windsor Society and Western Horse Show Monday and Tuesday night, July 27-28, at the Windsor Fairgrounds.

The horse show, which is sponsored by the Windsor Fair Board, will get underway both nights at 8 p.m. John Brand, Lawrence, Kan., will judge the Society Horse Show Monday night, Dick East, Sedalia, will be the announcer Monday night and Charles Dowdy will do the announcing the following night for the Western Horse Show. Ed O'Melia, Liberty, will be the organist for both shows.

The open cutting class in the Western show is expected to draw a large number of good horses. The Western pleasure event will probably produce elaborately dressed riders and horses. Another event which appeals to the audience is the reining class.

Other events in the Western show include 4-H horsemanship, which is open to 4-H members in the four-county area; the popular barrel race; horsemanship and novice pleasure.

The 13 classes in the Society show will include two-year-old walking horse; children's pony under 14-2; amateur five-gaited; youth walking horse; children's horsemanship; three-gaited open; junior walking horse; fine harness; pleasure horse, saddle type; roadster horse open; walking horse and five-gaited.

Chiefs On Top In Tangle With Merchants, 10-4

The Sedalia Chiefs tangled with the Sedalia Merchants Friday night at Liberty Park and came out on top, 10-4.

It took ten innings before the Chiefs could rally the winning run. The Chiefs tallied four runs in the first inning and failed to score again until the tenth, when they scored six runs.

The Merchants, in the meantime, kept fighting back and finally tied the score, but to no avail, for the Chiefs took charge in the tenth to wallop the Merchants.

The Chiefs will play a doubleheader against the Chillicothe Chiefs on the Liberty Park diamond. Game time is 1 p. m., Sunday. The locals will be trying to preserve the 15-0 record in what promises to be a heated contest.

Tuesday night the Chiefs will again take on the Merchants. The Merchants are on top in the series, 2-1, but the Chiefs will be out to even the score. Game time is 8 p. m.

Golfing Pair May Cause A Traffic Jam

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A pair of golfers with the biggest bankrolls and the biggest fan followings in the game, a southpaw champion and a little 50-year-old guy whose reputation still is bright enough to draw crowds may cause a traffic jam at the Columbus Country Club Thursday.

Arnold Palmer, Ben Hogan, Bob Charles and Jack Nicklaus are scheduled to start play Thursday in the first round of the 46th PGA championship within a span of 24 minutes from 1:08 to 1:32 p.m. (EST).

In the second round Friday, Palmer leads off at 9 a.m. with the others following at eight-minute intervals.

Starting times of the first two rounds of the 170-man field were released Saturday by the PGA.

Nicklaus, the defending champion and the present leading money winner, figures to be the main attraction in his home town. This husky 24-year-old was the second player to win the PGA championship before he was eligible for full PGA membership. Gary Player, who will be right behind him on the course, was the first.

Nicklaus also has won the U.S. Open and the Masters in his brief pro career. This year he has collected more than $83,000 in tournament winnings to top Palmer by about $10,000 and Tony Lema by $8,000.

Palmer, who has won about everything but the PGA title, skipped the British Open to concentrate on this one after Ken Venturi's victory in the U.S. Open wiped out his chance of scoring a grand slam of golf. Charles is the New Zealand southpaw who won the 1963 British Open. Hogan, no longer a regular tournament competitor, won two PGA titles, three U.S. Opens and the British Open.

Prize money is set at $50,000 minimum but a record $80,900 was paid out after last year's championship at Dallas. Nicklaus received $13,000 for winning.

Playoff Is Forced In Tournament

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (AP)—Blonde Ruth Jessen rallied again and again and wound up in a tie with Mickey Wright Saturday to force an 18-hole playoff Sunday for the United States Women's Golf Championship.

The two San Diego favorites finished the 72 holes with a total score of 290, two strokes under par for the distance, in a dramatic finish that went down to the final green and the threat of a three- or four-way deadlock.

The playoff is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. EST, over the San Diego Country Club's 6,400-yard par 36-37—73 course.

Three-time winner Mickey finished with a 73 and Miss Jessen, with a 71.

Miss Jessen, from nearby Bonsal, moved into the top spot with a brilliant second shot on the par-4 18th, that stopped two feet from the flag. She holed out for the birdie.

Miss Wright, in the twosome just behind, then needed a birdie to win and apar to tie. Her partner Marilyn Smith, would also have deadlocked if she had gotten a birdie.

Mickey's second shot landed in the trap, but she came out three feet away and got her par.

Tied for second were Miss Smith and young Shirley Englehorn, each with 74.

Sandra Haynie had a 74 for 295, Peggy Wilson, a 74 for 296, and Joann Prentice closed with a 71 for 298.

Vic Power Suspended Ten Days

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Infielder Vic Power, accused of spitting in an umpire's face, was suspended 10 days and fined $250 Saturday by American League President Joseph Cronin.

The 32-year-old Los Angeles infielder denied the charge. Angel General Manager Fred Haney said he would ask Cronin for a hearing.

The incident occurred in the eighth inning of the first game of a Friday night doubleheader won by the Chicago White Sox. cago White Sox.

Floyd Robinson led off the inning with a double and Gene Stephens bunted. Catcher Bob Rodgers fielded the ball and threw to Power at third but Robinson was called safe by umpire Jim Honochick on a close play.

"Power didn't show much emotion at the time," Honochick said Saturday. "But a little later Tony Cuccinello (the Chicago third base coach) told me I'd made the call 100 per cent right."

Honochick said that set Power off.

"He bumped me three times and spit in my face," Honochick said, "deliberately and wilfully."

Power said:

"Spit on him? How could I do that? Do I look like that sort of person?

"I cursed and I got close to him but I don't spit on him.

"I didn't even think any spit came out of my mouth accidentally while I was talking to him. My mouth was so dry."

Drowns In Creek

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A teen-age youth fell in Moline Creek at suburban Ferguson Saturday and apparently drowned, Ferguson police said.

They said the youth was identified by witness as Jim Eligschlaeger, 14, of Cool Valley. Police said the boy was playing near the creek (at 422 suburban) and fell into the water.

Police said the water was high and swift because of afternoon rains. Officer said rescue boats from the suburban Florissant fire department were aid-in the search for the body.

Boy Drowns In Stream

JOPLIN (AP)—Michael Alleger, 17, of rural Columbus, Kan., drowned Saturday in a stream on a farm south of Joplin.

A companion said the youth had been plowing a field nearby when he decided to go into the water. He could not swim, the companion said.

Distance Proposal

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — American actor Tom Stern says he proposed via trans-Atlantic telephone to British actress Samantha Eggar—and she accepted.

The two met when Miss Eggar was here to film "The Collector." The actress, 21, has since returned to London.

Stern said they'd be married in October.

Wilkens Inks Pact

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Hawk guard Len Wilkens has signed a contract for his fifth season in professional basketball, the National Basketball Association Hawks said Saturday.

Wilkens, 26, score 938 points in 78 games last season for the Hawks. His field goal average was .413.

More Troops Called To Aid Search

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP)—Additional National Guardsmen were called in Saturday to search nearly two miles of wooded hills separating the wreckage of a United Air Lines plane and the body of one of the victims who fell from the smoking Viscount before it crashed.

George Baker, head of the Civil Aeronautics Board investigation into the Thursday crash, said 125 guardsmen were looking for wreckage which might give a clue to the cause of the crash that killed all 39 persons aboard.

Baker said the angle at which the four-engine plane struck a wooded hillside eight miles northeast of here indicated it had not hit another ridge before the fatal crash.

Thus far, he said, there were no indications why Dr. Robert Hall, Washington, D.C., fell to his death approximately 1¾ miles ahead of the crash site.

Other witnesses told of seeing the low-flying plane in trouble before the crash. Some witnesses said it exploded in the air. Mrs. Boyce Gammon, who lives five miles away, said the plane was so low she thought it would hit her house. She said it made no noise and appeared to be gliding.

CAB spokesmen said that while not ruling out sabotage, as of now there was no reason to believe a bomb caused the accident.

Guard Troops Leave After One Year

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—National Guard troops withdrew from this racial trouble spot Saturday, one year after the violence which brought them.

A year ago, 400 Guardsmen were rushed to the community by Gov. J. Millard Tawes after a night of racial rioting in which six persons were shot.

Saturday, there was no fanfare as the 50 remaining troops climbed aboard trucks and jeeps and rolled out of town in the quiet of early morning for the 80-mile trip to Baltimore.

The most violent recent outbreak came last May, when Gov. George C. Wallace brought his campaign in the Maryland Democratic presidential primary to Cambridge.

Several hundred Negroes tried to march to the hall where Wallace had spoken. Police used tear gas to break up the demonstration.

The new civil rights law may have ended all of that.

Last Tuesday, when the governor ordered the troop withdrawal, integration leader Stanley Wise said he would wait to see "what progress Cambridge is going to make."

Since then, five Cambridge restaurants formerly for whites only served Negroes without incident.

Bob Lunn And 149 Challengers Ready

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Bob Lunn of San Francisco and 149 challengers tee off Monday in qualifying rounds for the National Public Links Golf Tournament.

The event, held here for the first time since 1947, goes on at Gross, a city park course shortened by one stroke for the tournament to play 35-35—70. The layout measures 6,303 yards.

Also in the field is Bob Oppermann, Lunn's fellow San Franciscan who was runner-up last year.

Brick And Rolling Pin Competition

STROUD, Okla. (AP) — Residents of towns named Stroud in four countries heave bricks and rolling pins next Saturday in another display of international competition — and friendship.

At each of the Strouds in Oklahoma, England, Canada, and Australia men will pitch bricks for distance while women toss rolling pins.

Results from each town will be exchanged by telegraph to determine the international team champion. England is defending champion in both brick throwing and rolling pin tossing and has "the world's champion brick thrower" in Tony O'Neill.

He heaved a brick 126 feet last year. Mrs. Beryl Abbott of Stroud, Australia, is queen of the rolling pin hurlers with a toss of 119 feet 6 inches.

In preliminary competition July 4 to determine the American team, Bill Roper had the best brick throw of 150 feet 10 inches, while Mary Centrell's 99-foot heave was the best rolling pin throw.

The contest began in 1960 when Stroud, Okla., discovered there was a Stroud, England, and that both towns had brick plants. The Canadian and Australian Strouds were added later and the rolling pin throwing for the women was begun last year.

15 Millionth Visitor Is St. Louis Woman

NEW YORK (AP) — A St. Louis, Mo., housewife who "has never won anything" in her life became the 15 millionth visitor to the World's Fair.

Mrs. Harry S. Ackerman and her 11-year-old son were greeted at the gate Saturday by Gen. William E. Potter, executive vice president of the fair.

They were given $500 worth of sporting equipment by the American Machine and Foundry Co., builders and operators of the monorail at the fair.

The Ackermans plan to return home Sunday.

In 1857, Elizabeth Barrett Browning addressed a petition to Napoleon asking him to remit the exile sentence passed upon Victor Hugo.

Claude M. DeVorss of Wichita, Kansas, was elected President of Lions International at the Association's 47th annual convention in Toronto, Canada, July 8-11. Lions International, with 720,000 members in 124 countries, is the world's largest service club organization.

Lions International is best known for its many youth programs, community service projects, sight conservation activities and aid to the blind. Last year Lions Clubs around the globe completed more than 400,000 individual community projects.

Turks Land Secretly In Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—The United Nations reported Saturday that its patrols spotted Turkish military personnel landing secretly in Cyprus, but said a similar buildup in support of Greek Cypriots was far larger and included artillery.

An official U.N. spokesman disclosed U.N. patrols saw the Turks landing during the past five weeks. He said U.N. patrols also had seen about 3,000 personnel from Greece landed on this eastern Mediterranean island torn by strife between a Greek Cypriot majority and a Turkish Cypriot minority.

The clandestine landings of Turkish army officers and men on the northwest seacoast of Cyprus is part of a secret military buildup on the island by both Greek and Turkish armed forces, the spokesman said.

The United Nations also reported that artillery fire, so far missing in the undeclared communal war, may soon boom out over the island.

A U.N. spokesman said U.N. headquarters was informed by telephone by the government of Greek Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios that field guns will be test-fired soon. The spokesman said the U.N. was told the firing site would be at an old British firing range north of Lefkoniko, near the island's northeast neck.

Minister of the Interior Polycarpos Georgadjis admitted the government has field guns but denied it informed the United Nations it intended to test the equipment.

The artillery is believed to have come from the United Arab Republic, which probably means it came from the old British base in Suez.

The Turkish Cypriots are reported to have nothing more powerful than heavy mortars and bazookas.

Brothers Back Home

MONETT, Mo. (AP) —Two adventuresome brothers, aged eight and ten, were back home Saturday after a three-day trip, launched on their combined capital of $6.

Police in Springfield, Mo., found the boys early Saturday morning, notified their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Storer of Monette, and the boys were in their own beds shortly after 3 a.m.

The brothers, Hutch, 10, and Kenny, 8, had been missing since Wednesday. They were reported a little bit worse for ware but otherwise happy. So were Mr. and Mrs. Storer.

Gas Truck Crashes Into Spectators

BERGERAC, France (AP)—A gasoline truck hurrying along ahead of the Tour de France bicycle race crashed into a crowd of spectators on a bridge Saturday. Officials said eight persons were killed and 12 injured.

The truck — carrying fuel for a gendarmerie helicopter hovering over the race, a three-week marathon that rates as one of France's biggest sporting events broke through the stone balustrade and plunged into a canal. Several dozen persons, lined several ranks deep along the railing, also were swept into the water.

Four of the injured were reported in critical condition.

The scene in the canal was what witnesses described as a sea of people when the 81 cyclists still in the race arrived. They stopped voluntarily and watched for five minutes, then pedaled off to finish the day's run in this 19th of a 22-leg race.

Witnesses said the truck missed a sharp right turn on the approach of the old stone arched bridge. The driver leaped to safety as the truck plunged upright into the canal, sinking to window sill level.

Some reports said the angry crowd beat the driver but he managed to escape. He was slightly injured in the leap to safety.

Ambulances rushed the injured including three survivors with skull fractures, to the Bergerac hospital. All the victims were residents of the canal-side village of Port de Couze or the immediate area.

Police Reports

Police charged four youths with disturbing the peace by fighting after answering a report of a fight in the 200 block of East Second at 11:40 p.m. Friday night.

Charged were John Dewayne Williams, 23, Cleveland, Okla.; Ronald Gary Gloth, 23, 1501 West 20th; Roy James Pottorff, Route 1; and Golder Copas, also of Sedalia. The four were jailed for a time and at 1:15 a.m. Copas was taken to Bothwell Hospital and treated for a head injury.

Later all were released on $25 bonds except Copas, who posted a $100 bond, through Bradshaw Bonding Company. They are to appear in Police Court on Monday, July 13.

Bunnie Fisher told police Saturday morning that two glass windows in the front of the Main Street Bar, Main and Lamine, had been broken by rocks apparently sometime during the night Friday.

Prowler reports popped back onto the police blotter overnight Friday and officers were following up some leads in the reports Saturday morning.

Police received prowler reports from addresses in the 1000 block of East 13th and from the 200 block of South Moniteau. One woman told police a man shone a flashlight through the windows in her home and then tried to break into the doors.

She said she was unable to get to the telephone at that time and notify police.

Police began receiving calls about a prowler in the vicinity of 14th and Brown at 9:20 p.m. Saturday. The investigation is continuing.

Patricia Fry, Route 1, Smithton, told police the battery was stolen from her 1963 auto while it was parked at the Twin Acres tavern on South Highway 65. The report was given at 1:45 a.m. Saturday.

Tool Company Will Give Up Its Control

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Hughes Tool Co. will give up control of Northeast Airlines —if a plan satisfactory to the Civil Aeronautics Board is devised — in order to gain back control of the giant Trans World Airlines, a vice president of the company said Saturday.

R. M. Holliday, vice president and member of the three-man executive committee running the vast holdings of Howard Hughes, said Saturday work will start at once on devising a method of divorcing Hughes Tool from Northeast.

The Civil Aeronautics Board said Friday it would not object to the Hughes Tool Co. (Toolco), Houston, from acquiring $92.8 million in TWA notes held by two insurance companies

But it added that to do this Hughes must relinquish control of Northeast Airlines.

Struggle to Recover

STOKE MANDEVILLE, England (AP)—Physicians said today Dr. Roberto Arias still is holding his own in a struggle for recovery from bullet wounds in the chest.

His wife, Dame Margot Fonteyn, the famed ballerina, who has been at his bedside, said, "I am staying close to him."

The 46-year-old Panamanian politician-diplomat was shot by a disgruntled political associate in Panama June 8. Already paralyzed, he took a turn for the worse Thursday.

"He is putting up a tremendous fight," his wife said.

Burning Of Negro Church Investigated

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Federal agents Saturday investigated the burning of a Negro church near Greenwood which civil rights workers hinted it destroyed with racial motives.

The concrete-block and wooden Pleasant Plan Missionary Baptist church was leveled by fire before dawn Saturday.

The Council of Federated Organizations — COFO — implied that white persons might have burned the structure, but Greenwood fire officials reported no reason to believe arson was involved.

The church pastor, J. R. Rouse, said the fire "could just have happened." He said the church had contained gas heaters.

FBI agents and Deputy State Fire Marshal Louis Hoskins moved into the investigation.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover left Mississippi on Saturday after beefing up the FBI setup for the state.

In connection with the latest fire, COFO said a white man had unsuccessfully sought to buy the church, which is in the path of an expanding white residential area.

The civil rights group also charged that a fire truck had stood idly by while the building was gutted.

However, Asst. Fire Chief L. C. Shepard said the truck was not used because no fire hydrants were available and the supply of water in the truck was saved in case the flames spread to surrounding buildings.

Seek Hotel Thief Who Made Big Haul

BADEN - BADEN, Germany (AP)—Police combed this fashionable south German spa Saturday for a hotel thief who stole jewelry and cash valued at about $250,000 from a New York woman.

Police said a small yellow leather case, secured with three locks and a combination, was taken from the hotel suite of Eugenie Hitt, New York. They believe the theft occurred last Tuesday.

Police who first said the value of the jewelry and cash was nearly $500,000 later cut their estimate in half. American insurance agents, who flew from New York, assisted police in their investigation.

Mrs. Hitt, who remained in the fashionable Brenners' Park Hotel while police questioned the staff and guests, refused to talk to newsmen about the theft.

Soviets Announce Two Space Firings

MOSCOW (AP)—A powerful single booster rocket launched two scientific space stations into widely differing orbit today, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The vehicles, Electron 3 and Electron 4, followed a similar launch Jan. 30. The Electron series is apparently unmanned.

Tass said the stations carried instrumentation for research. No mention was made of the size, weight or power of the satellites or the rocket.

Tass said Electron 3 separated from the last stage of the booster rocket during powered flight. The last stage continued to reach the necessary speed an then orbited Electron 4.

The news agency said all systems were functioning normally.

Tass said preliminary data indicated Electron 3 was in a lopsided orbit which comes as close as 251 miles to the earth and as far away as 4,365 miles. Electron 4's orbit was even more extended, 285 miles at its nearest point and 41,076 at its farthest.

Crash Victim Found Burned About the Face

KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP)—A body which fell from the crash-bound United Air Lines plane on Thursday more than a mile from the impact area was burned about the face, the Kingsport Times-News said today.

The newspaper quoted William Huff Jr., 14, who lives on a farm near the site of the crash near Newport, Tenn., as saying he led two National Guardsmen to the body.

Huff said the body was that of a man. He told the Times-News the Guardsmen also determined that there were burns on the face of the body, which was found in a dogwood tree.

Huff, who watched the plane with his father, said smoke was streaming from the tail section of the low flying aircraft.

The father was quoted earlier as saying he saw what looked like a body fall from the plane, which was coming over the Huff farm at about 500 or 600 feet.

Investigators declined comment on the Times-News report.

Pentagon Says Ouster Attempt Waste of Time

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pentagon officials said today that a San Francisco taxpayer is wasting his time by trying to oust Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., from his Senate seat because he is an Air Force Reserve major general.

But several senators have publicly questioned the constitutionality and propriety of members of Congress serving as military reserve officers.

Involved is a constitutional provision which says "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

The taxpayer, Robert Schaff, filed a federal district court suit in San Francisco contending that Goldwater, front-running candidate for the Republican presidential nominaiton, had "defrauded the United States government for years" by serving as senator while an officer of the armed forces.

Schapp asked that Goldwater's Senate seat be vacated and that the senator repay the salary he had drawn while serving there.

Pentagon officials reported that 90 to 100 members of Congress hold active reserve officer commissions in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. And they said another 75 to 100 are inactive or retired.

Two Killed When Auto Hits Train

HANNIBAL, Mo (AP) — Two young women were killed and two other persons were critically injured Friday night when their car collided with a Brulington railroad train at a crossing on a county road three miles south of Hannibal.

Dead are Kathy L. Davis, 18, of Illasco, Mo. and Mrs. Frances Ellen Bush, 20, of Hannibal.

Glen Douglas Wisehart, 22, also of Hannibal, the driver, and a third passenger, Sammy Bush, 22, husband of Mrs. Bush, were injured.

The highway patrol said the Wisehart auto struck the last car of the train, then was carried about 20 feet down the track where it sheared off a pole and lodged between part of the pole and the train.

New Playwrights View 'the Scene'

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Where do playwrights come from? What makes them tick?

Let's look at two impressive newcomers who are of strangely matched backgrounds, and who share hard-nosed resolve to make it alone.

"An author should stand or fall on his own terms," says Frank Gilroy, 38, who with Irish intransigence went through five sets of producers and turned down big money to get "The Subject was Roses" to Broadway precisely as he wanted it.

"I realize I might be considered a spokesman," declares LeRoi Jones, 29, whose ancestors were South Carolina slaves. "But I'm not like any other Negro and I speak only for myself."

While Gilroy has resisted lures of money, Jones has been standing fast against bids from militant causes since his "Dutchman" opened off-Broadway.

That brief, fiery play relates a violent encounter between a white girl and a Negro youth. Jones insists its values are emotional rather than polemic.

"Unfortunately," muses the bearded, soft-voiced author, "as soon as you put a Negro on stage these days, people regard it as being about race struggle."

Critical praise for both Jones and Gilroy was lavish, and there are tangible rewards. Jones next fall adds a course on theater arts at Columbia University to his other activities as a teacher, music critic and editor. Gilroy has managers vying for future originals which he may do while on sabbatical from writing television scripts and movie adaptations.

Most important for Gilroy, "The Subject was Roses" is developing box-office health after the shakiest of Broadway starts. It opened with an advance ticket sale of $162, teetered precariously for a couple of weeks at the Royale, and since has been climbing steadily if slowly out of the red ink.

"It took two years to get the play to Broadway," Gilroy reports, "and that was a lot less time than the five years it took to get a production of 'Who'll Save the Plowboy?' "

The latter, an off-Broadway presentation in 1962, won a prize but scant revenue.

Both "Plowboy" and "Roses" concern the post-service adjustments of GI's. The current exhibit is "more autobiographical" as it tells of a Bronx youth who returns to dreary tenement life.

Gilroy lives with his wife and three sons in rural Orange County, N.Y., 75 minutes from the metropolis. He maintains a writing hideout in Goshen, 10 miles from home—a distance he considers ideal "for simmering down after writing."

Most important dramatic influences on him have been Chekhov — "He's a man, Shakespeare's a monument — and Eugene O'Neill.

LeRoi Jones also holds O'Neill in high esteem—and, like Gilroy, his work has been greatly affected by service in uniform, as a weatherman-gunner in the Strategic Air Command.

"Sitting there in the underside of a B36," he recounts, "I'd get a chance to read from 10 to 12 hours a day—that's where I got a lot of my education."

Jones grew up in Newark, N.J., graduated from Howard University at 19. As a lad he wrote science fiction, which found its way into school magazines, then became more and more interested in poetry.

"I'm still a poet, basically," Jones says.

Seven years ago, he crossed the Hudson, worked in an assortment of jobs, started a poetry magazine and settled down with his wife, Hettie, and two daughters in an ancient tenement in the mildly Bohemian precincts of downtown Cooper Square.

There have been several books published — including poetry and a history of blues music — and in 1960 Jones turned to one-act plays. "Dutchman" is his first professional production, and he is now at work on a three-act play.

In an era of civil rights headlines, Jones is aware that some of the attention his work receives can be exaggerated and erroneous.

He is critical of groups taking part in the campaign for civil rights: "Most of the Negro organizations don't represent most Negroes, only the middle class. I think the most articulate spokesmen for the great majority are those kids who kick out subway windows at night.

"If there was a Negro uprising I'd get into it, but for my art, I say and do what I want. I'd rather meditate than hit anybody."

ONE OF FEW special recognition certificates awarded by Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC commander-in-chief, for outstanding support from civilians to national Armed Forces Day activities recently went to Mr. Keith Jones of Warrensburg, Mo., (left). The presentation of the award to Mr. Jones was made by Col. John T. Allen, 351st Combat Support Group commander, (right), on behalf of General Power in Colonel Allen's office this week.

Chevrolet dealers sell more cars than anybody
Because they sell great cars

Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe

Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

Chevy II Nova Sport Coupe

Corvair Monza Club Coupe

Chevrolet has brought a whole new kind of excitement to everyday driving this year.

And whether you're cushioned in the bucket seat of a luxurious Chevrolet Impala Super Sport or behind the wheel of the surprisingly roomy Chevelle, you'll feel it.

Whether you're gobbling up a hill in a thrifty Chevy II or making tracks on a sandy beach with the rear-engined Corvair, you'll feel it. Whether you're just looking at a Corvette or kicking up some dust on the desert with one, you'll feel it.

Altogether you've got five different kinds of cars and up to 45 different models to choose from. And each one is looking even more attractive as the '64 car-year closes out.

You couldn't pick a better time to build on the model you like either, for behind each one is a list of special Chevrolet options and accessories as long as your arm.

So why not stop in at your Chevrolet dealer's now and see what all the excitement is about. Get behind the wheel of America's most popular car. Or all five wheels. And don't be surprised if you see your neighbor doing the same thing.

A Touch of the Old West In Sedalia

THEY CALL THIS SPORT? — Riding a "wild" Brahma bull in this scene is Frank Hottenspiller, president of the Sedalia Rodeo Cowboy Association. Frank explained that his position is called "in time." When the bull raises up in front, the rider is supposed to lean forward; when the animal comes up in the rear, the rider leans backwards. Hottenspiller says the bull would kill him immediately after a ride like this, but would eat out of his hand the next day. The animal becomes mean as efforts are made to negotiate him into the chute.

Rodeo Group Spurs Plans For Big Arena

Expect Annual Show To be Staged Here Starting Next Year

By W. D. HILL

A SHORT DISTANCE from the spot where Texas cattlemen aimed their herds of steers nearly a hundred years ago on the long trail to Sedalia from deep in the heart of . . . a new corral has been built.

Large shiny belt buckles glisten in the bright July sunshine. Strapped to high-top boots, partially covered by blue denim trousers, the jingle of polished spurs can be heard.

"Outside!" That's the familiar cry of the rodeo cowboy that echoes from the chute in a far corner of the corral as a touch of the old West returns to the west central Missouri town that was once as familiar to cattlemen from Kansas to the Rio Grande as their own north forty.

The sound isn't coming from cattle drovers this time. A new breed of cowhands has taken over the range with a promise to give TV's Stoney Burke a run for his money in the rodeo arena.

Judging from recent workouts, about the only thing Casey Tibbs and Jim Shoulders, all-time rodeo greats, have on this group are money, titles and a room full of trophies.

But the group, known as the Sedalia Rodeo Cowboy Association, aims to reduce the separation margin in the months ahead as they apply their shiny spurs to plans to produce a gigantic rodeo by May or June of next year. It is to be an annual affair with professional rodeo stock, well-known rodeo cowboys and a star-studded cast on the side.

The association, a lifetime dream of professional rodeo cowboy, Frank Hottenspiller, 1616 West Tenth, president of the group, is being given an additional boost by Dr. A. L. Lowe who has donated 40 acres of land to the cause, situated west of the city. The arena is to be patterned after Camdenton's world-famous rodeo.

"The idea for the association kinda grew like a young colt," explains Hottenspiller, who is also a professional horse trainer here. "My father-in-law, Miles Evans, and I, built this corral just off West 32nd Street, so we could work out horses. Passers-by became interested and the next thing you know we had enough people working out there to form an association. That was two years ago.

"I picked up that big Brahma from professional rodeo stock in Oklahoma, got us four calves and two bulldogging steers and the show was on the road."

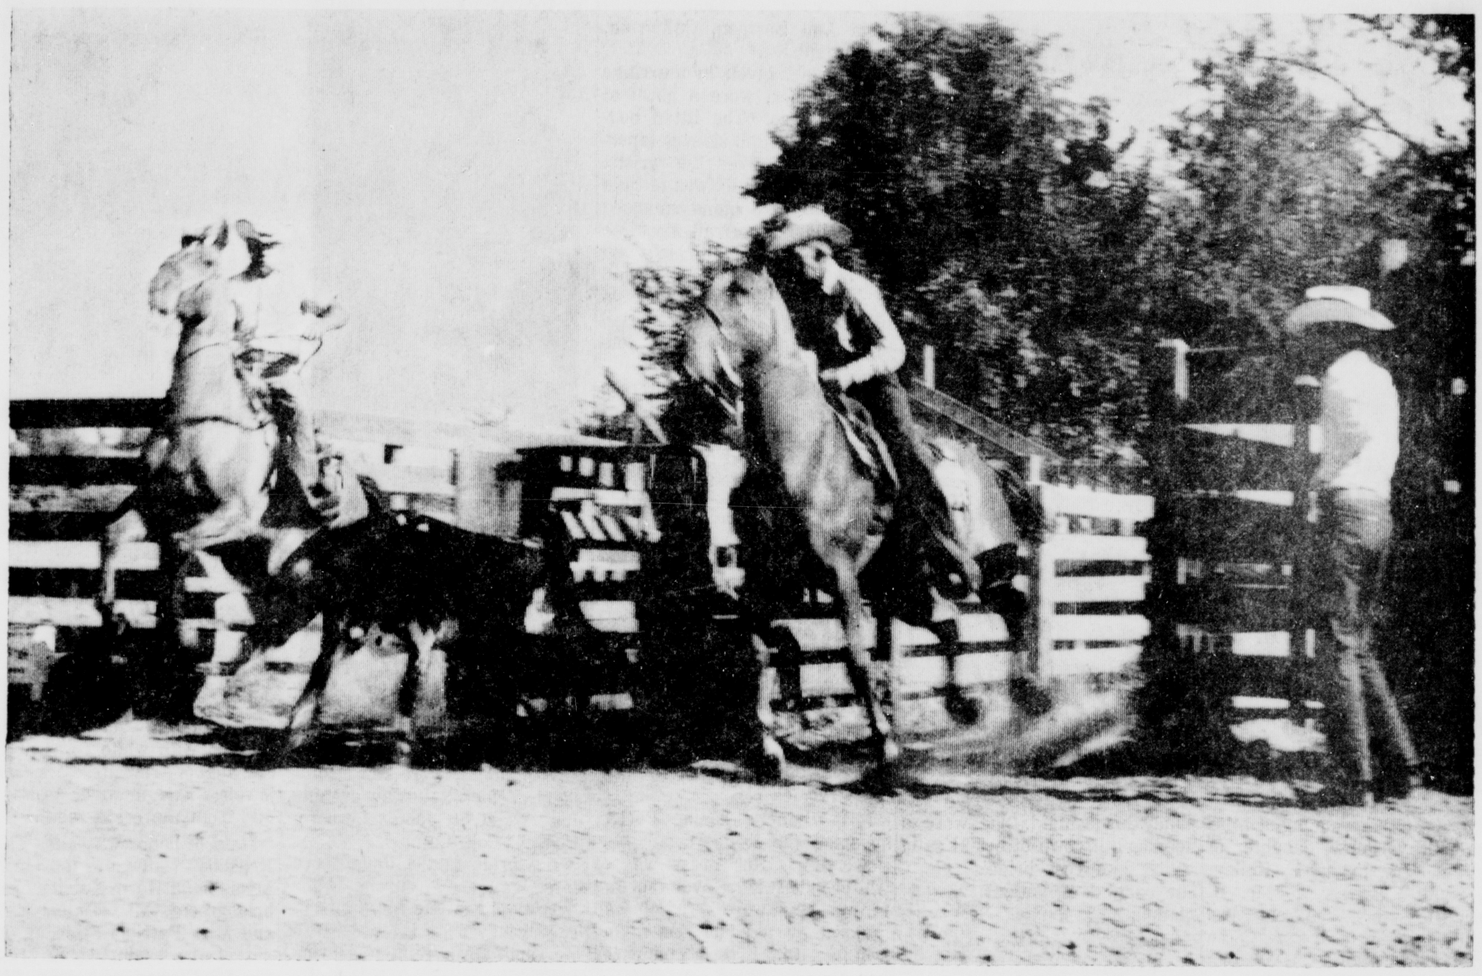

Hottenspiller, a native of Versailles, Mo., became interested in professional rodeoing as a youngster and while working the rodeo circuit from Canada to Florida was accepted as a member of the Rodeo Cowboy Association in 1954. He says he got most of his instructions from Casey Tibbs and Jim Shoulders. He is primarily a bull rider, but association members say he "sits" a horse as good as any hand.

Although the rodeo business is among the top ten on the list of risky professions by insurance companies, Hottenspiller says the local group has not had a serious injury in the three months they have been working out. "A few cracked ribs, or minor hurt is about all that's happened so far."

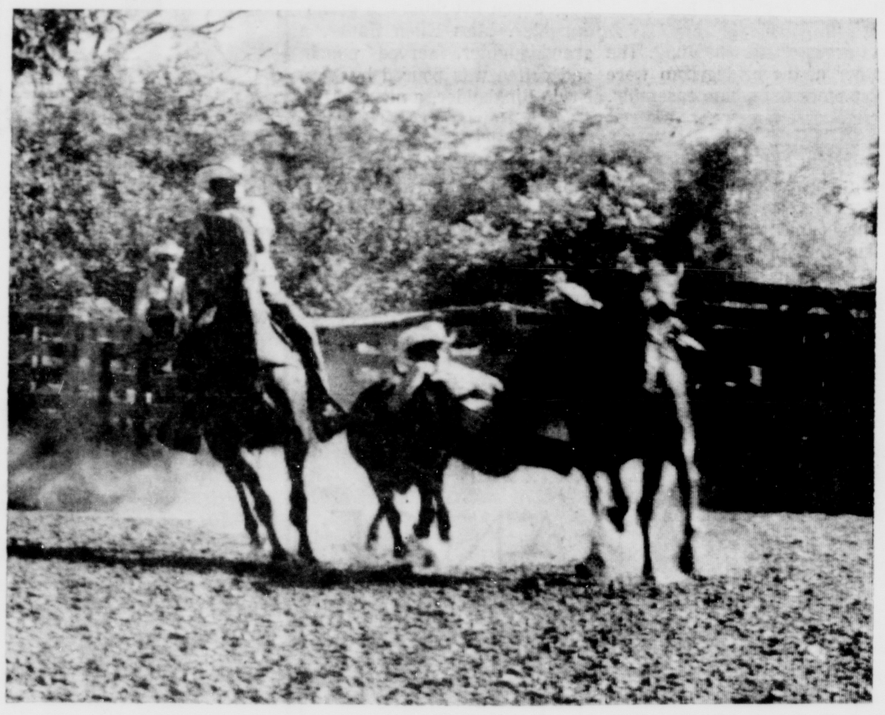

The local group has been working the rodeo circuit in a five state area. This is necessary, Hottenspiller explains, "because we won't accept a member unless he has worked at least one professional rodeo event."

So how do you work up to

(Please turn to page 9, col. 3)

END OF THE TRAIL DOGGIE — Billy Hottenspiller (right) is caught in this well-timed shot as he separated company with his horse during a bulldogging practice session. Seven seconds elapsed from the time the chute opened until the doggie was down. Buck Banner is working the "hazing" position.

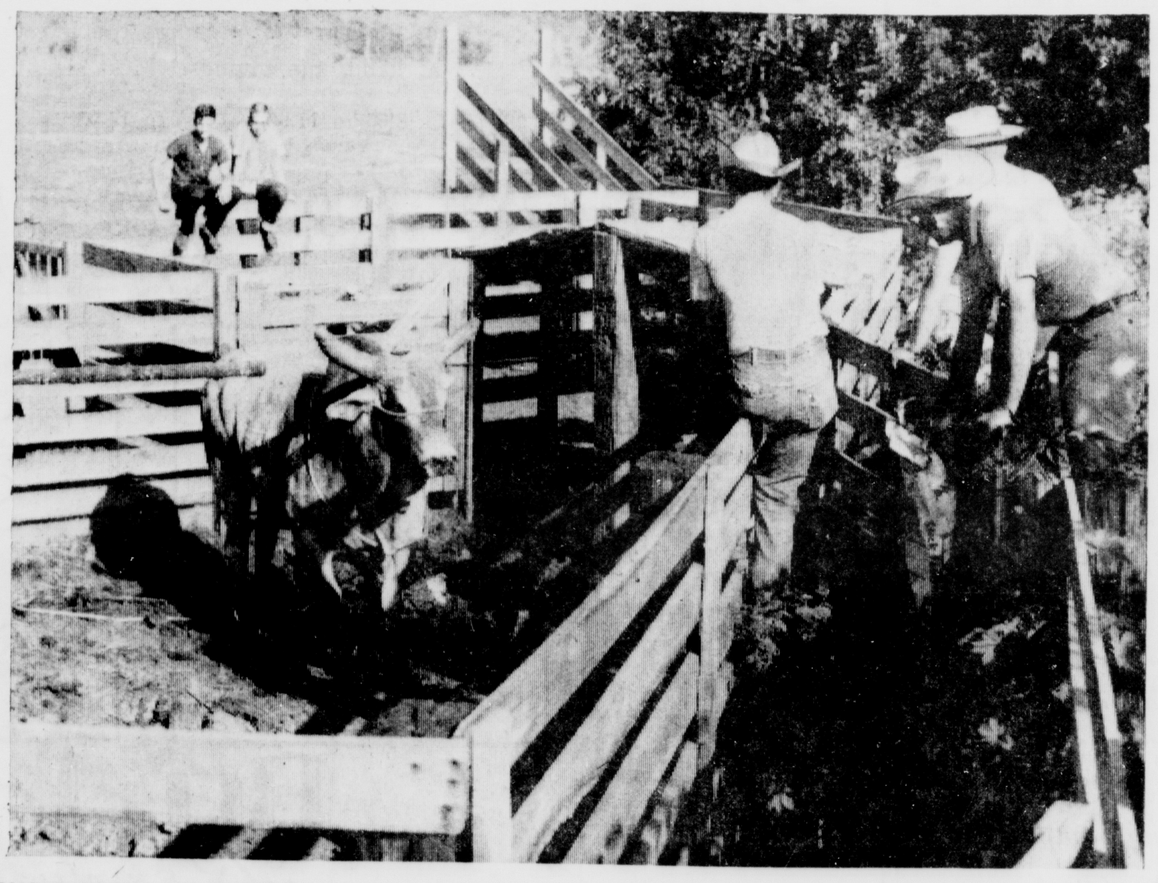

'OUTSIDE!' That's the cry, as Hottenspiller calls for the chute to be opened to turn the big Brahma loose in the arena. Note three cowboys at lower right holding the chute gate in a closed position.

STUDY OF A COWBOY — In wide-brimmed hat, high top boots with shiny spurs, Hottenspiller presents a striking pose of a typical cowboy watching an event in the arena. He had just completed a ride on a Brahma bull when this photo was taken.

MAD BRAHMA — It took some doing to get this two-ton Brahma to enter the chute at lower right. He was roped from three points and was finally "spooked" into entering the chute. The rodeo cowboys at right were using some persuasive language at this point. Youths in the background were maintaining a safe distance between them and the bull. Hottenspiller calls the bull Charmin, "because he's so gentle the day after I ride him."

ALL TIED UP — Frank Hottenspiller demonstrates the finale to a roping event where the calf is tied by at least three legs. Our photographer was inclined to pity the calf until Frank turned him loose. An unscheduled calf-photographer racing event followed.

Mrs. H. Jerry Hessefort

The afternoon wedding of Miss Sharon Kay Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest E. Kelley, 321 South Engineer, to Mr. H. Jerry Hessefort, son of Mrs. Lucille Hessefort, Graton, Conn. and Mr. Herman J. Hessefort, Cameron, was solemnized at the Pentecostal Church of God, at three o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 4. The Rev. Robert L. Kelley, brother of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Lee W. Rowden.

A gold arch entwined with huckleberry and finished with a large satin bow, two emerald green palms, and two 15 branch spiral candelabra entwined with huckleberry and holding white tapers, completed the setting. A white carpet graced the center aisle. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mr. Bill Long, organist, played traditional wedding selections preceding the ceremony and accompanied Mrs. Paul Harris, who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Preceding the ceremony, candles were lighted by Mrs. Janice Mabry, and Mrs. Walter Clark, cousins of the bride. Their gowns were yellow and styled like those of the bridesmaids.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional wedding gown of silk mist taffeta and tulle. The slender silk bodice was styled with an oval neckline and long tapering sleeves over the hands. Over a voluminous gathered skirt of tulle, which flowed to a chapel train, an apron of silk curved up at each side into draped panniers. Appliques of Alencon lace framed the neck and garlanded the front and sides of the skirt. The bride's headpiece was a tiara of seed pearls which held her veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of white gladioli, centered with a white glamelia.

The bride chose as her maid of honor, Miss Donna Garrison, Kansas City, her cousin. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Amos Semkin and Mrs. Carl Smith, sisters of the bride, Mrs. Donald Kelley, Kansas City, and Mrs. Robert Kelley, sisters-in-law of the bride. They wore floor length gowns of pastel satin. The fitted bodices featured rounded necklines with matching jackets which buttoned down the backs with tiny fabric buttons. Bell shaped skirts had matching organza overskirts. The pastels were peach, blue, orchid, mint green, and pink respectively. Their headpieces were circlets of tulle with matching fabric bows. They carried crescents of gladioli in shades matching their gowns.

The bridegroom chose for his best man, Mr. Walter Von Holtin. Groomsmen were Mr. David Bearden, Piedmont, Mr. Burton Ives, Mr. Amos Semkin and Mr. Junior Mabry.

Ushering duties were performed by Mr. Donald Kelley, Kansas City, Mr. Jerry Kelley, Paulshore, N. J., brothers of the bride, and Mr. Leroy Hayes.

Miss Karen Bearden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bearden and niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a blue gown styled like the bridesmaids. Master Steven Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donold Kelley, and nephew of the bride was ringbearer.

Miss Pam Ives, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Ives was junior bridesmaid. She wore a floor length gown of bridal satin styled like the bride's gown. She carried a white nosegay of gladioli.

Following the ceremony, a reception for approximately 150 guests was held at Holiday Inn. Serving at the bride's table were Mrs. Sid Mabry, Mrs. Woodrow Garrison, aunts of the bride; Mrs. Lee Rowden, Mrs. Theodore Todd, Kansas City, and Mrs. Leroy Hayes. The table was covered with mint green net over white linen. White satin bows caught up corners of the cloth. The three tiered cake, surrounded with huckleberrry, centered the table. At either side of the cake were crystal candelabra holding lighted white tapers; and two crystal punch bowls. The gift table was covered with ivory lace.

Presiding at the gift table were Mrs. V. J. Taylor, sister of the bride, Mrs. Bud Bozarth, Mrs. David Bearden and Mrs. Burton Ives, sisters of the bridegroom. Mrs. Jerry Kelley attended the guest book.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Springfield, Bagnell Dam, St. Louis and now live at 322 West Seventh. For her going away costume the bride wore a full skirted organza over taffeta dress. She selected white accessories and a white glamelia corsage.

The couple will reside in Centertown.

Mrs. Cecil Louis Harms

Miss Karen Fritsche is Married To Cecil Louis Harms June 27th

Miss Karen Fritsche, Altenburg, and Mr. Cecil Louis Harms, Ionia, were married at seven o'clock Saturday evening, June 27, at St. John's Lutheran Church, Cole Camp.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Walter E. Fritsche, Altenburg, and the late Mr. Fritsche. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Harms, Ionia.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Pastor W. J. Boehne and Pastor L. R. Krout gave the address.

Mr. Leonard C. Schnell provided the wedding music and accompanied Miss Ann Burgdorf, cousin of the bride, who sang "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Benediction."

The bride wore an empire gown of silk organdy and rose patterned French lace. The silk bodice, styled with long tapering sleeves, was overlaid with lace, forming a high Sabrina neckline and defining the lifted waist. Lace appliques highlighted the voluminous silk skirt and edged a redingote styled overskirt. A wide band of bordered lace formed the hemline and lengthened at the back to a chapel train.

A crown of pearls held her French pouf veil of silk illusion and she carried her maternal grandmother's velvet hymnal covered with white roses and a cascade of ribbons. Her only jewelry was a silver cross, a gift from the bridegroom.

Maid of honor was Miss Faith Fritsche, sister of the bride. Miss Sheila Harms, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Betty Ebke, and Miss Patricia Stimson, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Flower girl was Miss Terri Lynn Keele.

Bridesmaids and the flower girl wore dresses like that of the maid of honor, except that each was in a different pale shade of the rain bow, green, yellow, pink and lavender. The attendants carried wicker flower baskets containing painted daisies in deeper shades of the gowns they wore.

Ushers were Mr. Orlyn Heimsoth and Mr. Winston Borchers. Miss Myra Kay Harms, cousin of the bridegroom, attended the guest book.

Mrs. Fritsche wore a light blue dress of silk shantung. The mother of the bridegroom wore a two piece navy blue ensemble. Their corsages were of red roses.

The gown's slender basque bodice was fashioned of lace with long tapering sleeves and a Sabrina neckline, highlighted with iridescent sequins. Deep tiers of organdy, edged with scalloped lace, formed the great fullness of the skirt which lengthened to a chapel train.

Triple tiers of the wedding cake were separated by swan columns and were decorated with yellow roses and bows. A small bride and bridegroom stood on the highest tier. Smilax encircled the base of the cake, which was flanked with two three branch silver candelabra, holding lighted tapers.

What's Garbage or Trash?

There may not be any loopholes in garbage but there can be in the collection thereof; hence, the admonition that an earnest effort be made to patch them before city council passes an ordinance abolishing free garbage collection and instituting a $1.00 per month fee.

The proposal came to public attention last week after a recommendation to council by Mayor L. L. Studer. Immediately it became the prime topic of conversation in Sedalia.

In a supplemental press announcement by the administration Thursday it was revealed that under the proposed fee system the city's definition of garbage will apparently remain as loose as in current practice. In other words, the sanitation department now collects cans, bottles, newspapers, boxes, etc., which are deposited in cans along with the garbage.

The city's definition of garbage appears loose enough to satisfy reasonable public demands, but to clear the air on this delicate subject it may be relevant to reproduce Webster's definition for future reference if it becomes necessary:

"Garbage is refuse animal or vegetable matter from a kitchen, market or store; often loosely, offal mixed with other refuse, as ashes, paper, tin cans, etc., hence anything worthless or filthy."

As to offal it is anything that is thrown away as worthless such as refuse, rubbish, garbage.

If garbage pickups by new ordinance embrace these definitions at $1.00 per month then all should be well in Sedalia.

However, there is considerable talk concerning whether garbage collection should not include trash collection, too. Householders were quite indignant that there was no city-wide trash collection as usual this spring. But then the budget for that purpose was busted—so we can't have everything.

Sedalians are hopeful that with the payment of $1.00 per month for garbage collection some official provision will be made in the ordinance to include periodic trash collection also.

Which brings us to the question—what is trash? Trash is something no longer useful or usable; tattered, worn out, broken up or otherwise worthless; refuse, rubbish or household trash.

That's about as loose as anyone could expect, yet one wonders how all this collection can be underwritten by a $1.00 per month collection charge. Maybe the fee would be more realistic at $1.50. Is that rumble we hear the reverberations of thunderous protests?

But, then, let's leave this up to the mayor and council to decide after they have analyzed all the definitions of garbage and trash and how loosely they should apply them on the non-free system of collections.

Just in Case Anybody's Thirsty

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Conservative GOP Platform Chairman

By DREW PEARSON

SAN FRANCISCO — If you want to see what is going to come out of the GOP platform, take a close look at its chairman, the likeable barren-beaned congressman from Wisconsin, Melvin Laird.

Laird was considered so conservative that Richard Nixon, then Vice President, vetoed him as platform chairman for the 1960 convention and he had to be content with vice chairman. Chuck Percy, the Bell and Howell Camera man from Chicago, a liberal Republican, got the top post.

Later, when Nixon and Rockefeller got together in Ricky's Fifth Avenue penthouse overlooking Central Park and wrote their own GOP platform, there was such a storm of resentment that Laird took over the gavel from the inexperienced Percy, who was more accustomed to quiet board meetings than tumultuous political pow-wows.

Nixon had turned thumbs down on Laird because he voted against many of Eisenhower's key measures and was a bedrock member of the Dixiecrat-Republican coalition. He even served on a secret task force in 1960 to fight the Eisenhower budget.

The ultra rightwing Americans for Constitutional Action considers Laird a great congressman; says he has voted "right" 91 per cent of the time since he came to Congress. But the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education rates Laird as a very poor congressman who has voted "wrong" about 90 per cent of the time.

During the past two years Laird has opposed practically every major bill favored by Kennedy and Johnson. He voted against tax reduction, the farm bill to aid cotton and wheat roduction, the farm feed grains bill, vocational education, federal aid to colleges, area redevelopment, and the foreign aid bill.

Acrobatic Mr. Laird

This year, Laird has made one significant concession to the changing times. He executed an amazing straddle on civil rights by voting to gut one of the most important sections of the rights bill, then bragging to his constituents how important civil rights were.

The congressman from Marshfield, Wis., was able to get away with this, thanks to a teller vote, during which congressmen were counted as they walked down the center aisle but did not have to be officially recorded for or against.

Laird's interesting straddle was on a key provision of the civil rights act setting up a three-judge court, including one member of the Court of Appeals, to hear cases where Negroes were refused the right to vote. With a three-man court, voting discrimination can be appealed immediately to the Supreme Court, and the Dixiecrat coalition tried hard to get its Republican friends to knock this out.

Laird voted with the Dixiecrats. They were defeated 176 to 125.

Two days later, Laird wrote in his newsletter to constituents: "The key to the effective advancement of human rights can be found in insuring the right to vote. . . Those who sincerely are FOR effective action should concentrate their support and efforts first on that area which will promise greatest returns. That area is the voting section."

Laird has taken with him to San Francisco, to draft the Republican platform, William J. Baroody, Jr., whose father is president of the American Enterprise Institute for public policy research, a tax-deductible front for studying national problems the way big business would like to have them studied. This organization receives heavy contributions from a gilt-edge list of corporations ranging from General Motors to General Electric, all of the contributions tax-free.

Pew Oil Lubricates

The biggest contribution and one of the most significant — $100,000 — came last year from J. Howard Pew of Sun Oil, who is now busy inside the Pennsylvania delegation trying to switch votes from Scranton to Goldwater.

Congressman Laird's own thinking, judging by his book "A House Divided," is not far off from the right-wing contributors to the American Enterprise Institute — in fact, very close to Goldwater's. In addition, the trustees and officers of this big business front include some of Laird's strongest political backers in Wisconsin.

One trustee is Walter Harnischfeger, the Milwaukee industrialist, who was such a staunch supporter of Joe McCarthy; protested against the war crimes trials of German Nazis; and has advertised for "gentile, white Protestant" employees. Harnischfeger has been active in Wisconsin Republican politics for fifty years and a trustee of the American Enterprise Institute for over twenty years.

Another trustee from Laird's home state is Harry Bradley, chairman of the Allen-Bradley Company, which takes advertising space in American Opinion and other rightwing publications, is a big backer of Dr. Fred Schwartz's Christian anti-Communist crusade.

The Allen-Bradley Company has given $145,000 to the American Enterprise Institute, largely at the taxpayers' expense.

Another Wisconsinite with entree to Laird is the chairman of the American Enterprise Institute, Carl N. Jacobs, who contributed $2,500 to the committee for a conservative congress in 1962.

Another trustee is Peter O'Donnell, who is not only chairman of the Draft Goldwater Committee but active in the rightwing "Young Americans for Freedom" and the "Human Events Political Action Committee."

It was the indefatigable Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana, Tex., now probing foundations, who unearthed the amazing list of giltedge contributors to the American Enterprise Institute who have been writing off their gifts as a business expense.

Looking Backward

FORTY YEARS AGO

A petition for closing the local theatres on Sunday was submitted to city council. It bore signatures of about 1,500 persons, principally members of local churches and was presented by a delegation of 40 persons, mostly women. The petition which declared the operation of shows on Sunday to be "a desecration of the Sabbath" was accepted and filed.

—1924—

Clarence H. Smith, secretary of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce the past two years, tendered his resignation at a meeting of the board of directors at Hotel Liberty. He stated he had recently purchased some land in the Ozarks and was going into business for himself.

FINDING THE WAY

Thought for Dark Hours

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In a fascinating article concerning his insomniac tendencies, a brilliant American anthropologist pointed out a familiar perversity. "It is true," writes Loren Eiseley "that as an educational administrator I can occasionally be caught nodding in lengthy committee meetings, but so I have observed, can men who come from sound nights on their pillows. Strangely I, who frequently grow round-eyed as an owl at the stroke of midnight, find it pleasant to nap in daylight among friends." Well, many of us have had that experience! It's a perverse business.

But there are others. There is the problem of the conversation or the debate when you seemed suddenly to be tongue-tied. It was a strange condition, for at home you could speak. Then, in the silent darkness of your own privacy, you could experience:

Oh how I regret in the night,
With a pain that will never abate
That brilliantly crushing remark,
I thought of five minutes too late.

The writer of the letter to the Romans knew perversity. He talked of a great faith and enormous ambitions for righteousness. Yet even this saint could confess, "For the good that I would, I do not; but the evil which I would not, that I do." It's a paradoxical business.

We are a complicated people and a part of the escape from the dilemma is in the possibility of redeeming the problem. Eiseley tells of redeeming his sleeplessness. "At night one has to sustain reality without help. One has to hear lest hearing be lost, see lest sight not return to follow moonbeams across the floor, touch lest the sense of objects vanish. Oh, sleeping, soundlessly sleeping ones, do you ever think who knits your universe together safely from one day's memory to the next? It is the insomniac, not the night policeman on his beat." It is a whimsical touch, but it has the note of transcending the problem.

Paul laid hold of this perversity in the human being, insisting that it was his companionship with sin that kept him from being what he knew he ought to be, thanking God for God's grace which can make it possible for man's perversity to be redeemed. Even this kind of a complicated fellow can delight in the law of God instead of serving his own selfishness.

It is a time of many perversities. We espouse freedom and deny many human rights. We proclaim the need of education and deny the budgets of the schools. We insist that religion is basic in the fabric of society, and then make it only a civic gesture.

Yet the insistence that transforms the insomniac, gives tongue to the silent and redeems the good man who sins—that patient, persistent grace can transform these other perversities if we begin to understand them. To recognize that they are not final is the first step.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Planning a Vacation? Check Immunizations

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.,
Newspaper Enterprise Association

If you are planning a trip, you will be wise to check with your doctor about immunizing shots. Nothing can spoil a vacation like an illness.

If you expect to spend some time in outdoor sports, get your tetanus toxoid injections or, if you have had them, a booster. Get smallpox vaccination if you plan to leave the United States. Without a valid certificate of vaccination you will have trouble getting back into this country.

If your trip will take you into areas where the water supply is polluted, you should have typhoid and paratyphoid shots. These are usually combined. And if you have any reason to believe that you might get infectious hepatitis, have an injection of gamma globulin. All these things should be taken care of three or four weeks before you start.

While on vacation there is always a tendency to overeat. Use common sense and avoid eating more than you customarily eat at home. The object of your trip is to relax and have a good time—not to put on excess weight.

Take appropriate clothing with you — especially comfortable walking shoes. Remember that it gets cold in the mountains at night even after the hottest days. If you wear glasses you should carry an extra pair.

Although most medical items you may need can be picked up in the nearest town, it is well to take a kit with you because you may need some of the following items when the stores are closed:

Tweezers will be handy for removing splinters or holding a pad of sterile cotton if you have to clean a wound. The cotton is also useful, when dampened for removing dirt from the eye. I wonder how our forefathers ever got along without adhesive bandages.

Paregoric is still the best treatment for diarrhea or abdominal cramps. But if the diarrhea persists for more than two days you should find a doctor. If you are going to be in one place, your family doctor may be able to recommend a doctor in the vicinity of your visit. Otherwise, have the local medical society suggest two or three names (they are not permitted to recommend one name only). You should, of course, carry with you a supply of any drugs you are taking regularly.

Have fun but don't overdo it. If you try to soak up a week of sunshine in one day you will wish you had stayed at home. And if you try to play more holes of golf or more sets of tennis than you are accustomed to, you will wake up with sore muscles and stiff joints. Plan to return home refreshed instead of feeling that what you need most is another vacation.

It's Summertime

It's summertime—when the weather's hot,
A time when we work — but we'd rather not —
When we cook out doors and eat outside
And amateur chefs show off with pride,
Or we work all day fixing chicken and stuff,
Always worrying if there'll be enough
Till the picnic table usually looks
Like an all day marathon for cooks;
Yes, it's summertime — when the chiggers bite,
Folks think you're unhealthy if your skin is light,
When people are as red as the morning sun
Or brown as a roast that's nice and done,
The assortment of clothes that are on parade
Look like a Halloween masquerade;
Mom and dad, grandparents, the family all
Must be on hands to see Junior play ball;
It's summertime when the weather is warm,
To parks and resorts does everyone swarm,
It's recreation in every form
That's only stopped by a summer storm,
We look with reluctance at mower and rake,
We head for the swimming pool or lake
We sit or play in the hottest sun,
We eat and swim and have more fun—
But home and office changes our disposition
It's simply too hot without air condition.

Democrat Pick-ups

ON THE TABLE was the woman's speech and it was only shortly before the program. Another, who had gone over to the head table to talk to her, in some manner, accidently turned over the cream pitcher and the cream went all over the table and certainly all over the speech.

"Well," commented an onlooker as she watched the speaker trying to wipe the cream off the soaked pieces of paper, "that's one way to clean up a speech." — H. L.

JUST AS the young woman started her car after being parked down in the business district, and nosed it out into the traffic, the gears locked and there she was not able to do anything. The worst part of it, it wasn't her car, it was her dad's. So she certainly did not know what to do about it.

Beside her sat a co-worker who does not drive.

"Just shut it off and then turn it on again," the co-worker told her, just as though she knew what she was talking about.

The driver looked at her. "That won't do any good," she said.

"Do what I told you to do," the co-worker insisted, "and see if it doesn't work."

It sounded silly, but she did it. She turned it off and then turned it on again, and sure enough the car began to roll and they went sailing on down the street.

"How did you know about that?" asked the perplexed driver. "You don't drive. How could you know what to do?"

"Oh, I don't drive," replied the co-worker, "but I know about cars."

That evening the co-worker told her husband and another man, who really do know about cars, and they both laughed. There was certainly no logical reason for that car to start they said and why it did, after the gears locked, they just didn't know.

Well, some women can do more with hairpins and intuition, than men can do with brains. Men would have tried to figure out what made the gears lock and try to fix it. She didn't bother her brains on why it happened, or how it could be fixed. She just had a silly idea that had no rhyme or reason, insisted her friend try it —and — behold — it worked. —H. L.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Cleaning of Teeth As Preventive Dentistry

By William Lawrence, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Is it necessary to lose a pint of blood," a man recently asked, "every time you have your teeth cleaned?"

I'm quite sure he was being somewhat extravagant in his estimate. It isn't likely that his dental hygienist was trying to kill him; it's more likely that his gums were inflamed and infected; and this could have been because he neglected to have his teeth cleaned for too long a time. Tartar that collects on teeth irritates gums and causes easy bleeding.

Prophylaxis instruments are of a variety to suit every operator, every tooth, and indeed every surface of every tooth. If they are kept sharp and used well, teeth can be relieved of tartar with little bleeding.

Gums are attached to necks of teeth. They are not, however, attached at their very edge but about a millimeter or two below. This unattached or so-called "free margin of the gums" is as deep as it's necessary to go in thoroughly scraping debris from teeth.

Forcing instrument blades beyond this attachment lacerates gums, causes bleeding and possibly infection. If deep scaling or curettage is required, it should be done by the dentist.

Dental hygienists are valuable aides in any dental office. They are well prepared, dedicated and highly competent operators. Their formal education, after graduation from high school, consists of two years of study in an approved school of dental hygiene. Here they are instructed in medico-dental sciences and spend much time in clinical work and on-the-job training.

Hygienists are often the key to a smoothly run dental practice in which patients are recalled periodically for cleaning and examination.

The prophylaxis visit is an important one; it's pleasant and painless. Patients say it's a comforting feeling to run their tongue over newly cleaned, smooth, polished teeth. This is also the best time to examine teeth since all surfaces are free of debris and cavities are easily seen.

X-rays, one on each side of the mouth, should be taken so that areas between teeth and under old fillings are exposed to view. Small cavities so discovered can be filled before they get big enough to cause toothaches or worse.

This is preventive dentistry at its best!

Men Talk, Women Win

By Ruth Millett
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Scientific studies on man-woman relationships are always coming up with conclusions that any female, feminine dame could have told the scientists in the first place.

For instance, a sociology professor has been testing husband-and-wife teams to find who has the most influence on family decisions — husband or wife—and why.

The thing he discovered that any smart, influence-wielding wife could have told him was that a wife can let her husband do most of the talking about a decision that is to be made, and still get her way in the end.

As a matter of fact, the easiest way in the world for a wife to influence a decision is to let her husband talk on and on, agreeing with him until he gives her an opening for putting in just the right few words to start him thinking the way she wants him to.

Since she is so willing to listen to his ideas, so quick to agree with him, so ready to give him credit for being the brains of the family, he soon lets his guard down. He thinks it is going to be a breeze to sell her on the idea he is trying to put across.

He isn't even suspicious when she slips a small doubt into his mind, or suggests an attractive alternative (what she wants), so gently he accepts it as another of HIS ideas or stalls him with feminine delaying tactics.

It's kind of a sneaky way to handle a man, perhaps. But its the way women have been getting their own way in big decisions since the beginning of time. (In small decisions, of course, a smart woman graciously lets her man have his way. And keeps him off guard when an important matter has to be decided.)

In short, as the professor discovered and what most women already knew, a wife doesn't get her way by out-talking her husband. She gets her way by outsmarting him.

In Ranks With Area Servicemen

PFC Ronald W. Head, son of Mrs. Gestrude Head, 1204 South Grand, has been selected Berlin Brigade Soldier of the Month of June, 1964, according to a letter received from Frederick O. Hartel, Brigadier General, USA, commanding officer, dated June 30, 1964.

Being selected Berlin Brigade's most "outstanding soldier" for this month is a fine achievement, the letter said. Berlin Brigade, through the Soldier of the Month competition, seeks to single out the finest soldier of the command. This constitutes appearance and bearing, military knowledge, proficiency in assigned duties and overall performance record which were examined and graded by a selection board of senior officers.

"Nowhere in the United States Army," General Hartel states, "is competition as keen as it is here in the Berlin Brigade."

PFC Head was awarded an engraved wrist watch, a seven day leave at a recreation center with all expenses paid, a $25 United States Savings Bond and a year's membership in the association of the United States Army.

Jordan River Project End Big Secret

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's controversial water scheme to deliver Jordan River water from the Sea of Galilee to the thirsty Negev Desert is expected to be fully operational in near secrecy.

First tests have proved successful.

For weeks now Israeli engineers have pumped water through the $100 million system 220 miles of canal, 48 miles of pipeline and 5 miles of tunnel.

The project is under heavy guard.

The exultant engineers can't or won't say when the tests will end. But there will be no announcement when they do, officials say privately.

Israel would never have announced the tests if a Cabinet minister hadn't let it slip in a speech in June.

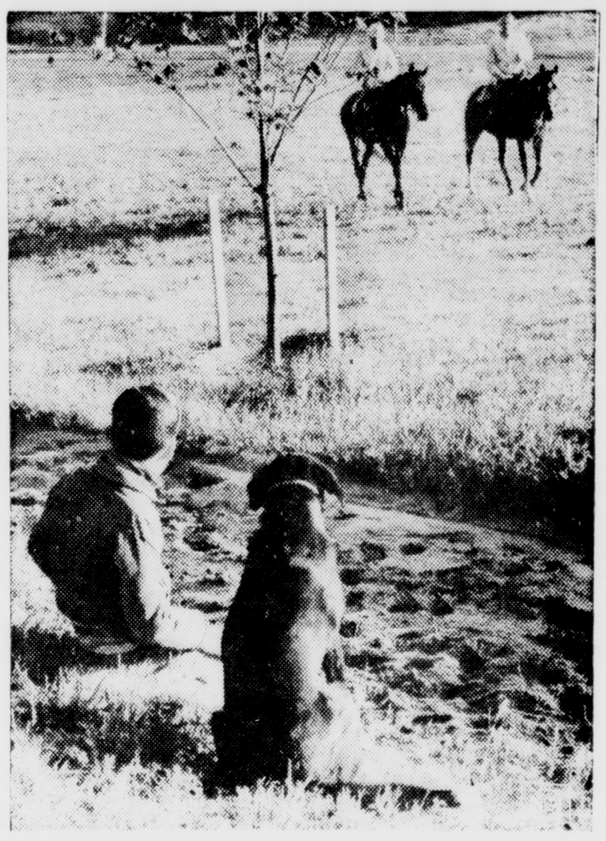

"We need water, not propaganda," was the way one Israeli put it.

The Arab world's hostility toward the Jordan project—in the works for more than a decade—is behind the Israeli hush-hush attitude.

The Arab states in a counter-offensive have announced plans to divert headwaters of the Jordan before it reaches Israel. United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser said last week nothing had been done about this, however. Such action, warns Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir, would be considered an act of aggression.

"World public opinion would be against the Arabs if they diverted the Jordan into the sea or some place it wasn't needed just to spite Israel," said a government spokesman.

Arab leaders say they fear an influx of millions of new settlers in the Negev, expected to bloom under irrigation. They say it's a violation of United Nations resolutions and the armistice agreements. They contend agriculture in the lower Jordan Valley faces ruin from increased salt in the Jordan.

The Great War: Death of An Era

EDITOR'S NOTE—A half-century ago this summer, Europe marched off to war. Before the fighting ended, 37 million people were casualties and four empires had fallen. One new one had been founded, by an obscure man named Lenin, and the world was never the same.

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

World War I—The Great War—The European War—The War to end War—The War to Make the World Safe for Democracy—began 50 years ago, as the German statesman Otto von Bismarck predicted it would, with a "damned foolish thing in the Balkans."

On June 28, 1914 a Serb student named Gavrilo Princip, 19, assassinated Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary. Within five weeks, nearly all the armies of Europe were attacking one another.

The war ended 4½ years later. By the end of 1918 there had been 37 million casualties, more than 9 million of them fatal.

Four empires had been destroyed: Germany, Russia, Austria-Hungary and Turkey.

Another great force, the United States, had for the first time taken a major place in world's affairs.

The war in the Balkans was only a sideshow, though bloody.

After the assassination Austria-Hungary sent an ukimatum to Serbia in the hope that it would be rejected. It was. Russia then mobilized in support of Serbia, its "little Slav brother." Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany had promised to stand behind Austria-Hungary, and he too gave the order of mobilization.

That was virtually a declaration of war against France, which was bound by treaty to support Russia and hoped besides to get back the lost provinces of Alsace and Lorraine from Germany.

The decision that meant death for millions was made by Czar Nicholas II of Russia, Kaiser Wilhelm and Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary — representatives of an outdated system of imperial rule, and not particularly brilliant ones at that.

In the West, fighting began with a sweep of the German armies through Belgium and into France. That brought Britain into the war. The British were shocked by the invasion of Belgium, whose neutrality Germany was pledged to uphold. Capture by Germany of the Belgian and French ports would have been a grave threat to Britain.

Turkey cast in its lot with Germany. Italy at first remained neutral, then joined the Allies in return for secret promises of territory.

By the end of the war nearly the whole world was lined up against Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria.

In Belgium and France the conflict started as a great war of movement, but a month later the German advance was stopped on the Marne River, and the front was stalemated.

Barbed wire and the machine gun gave the defense a tremendous advantage. One side would use heavy artillery to destroy the barbed wire and drive the defenders from the trenches. But the attackers would lose heavily to the machine guns. Then the same process would be repeated in the other direction.

This kind of warfare brought enormous casualties.

To counter the barbed wire and machine gun, Winston Churchill pressed hard for the development of the tank.

But when the British first used them in 1915, they failed to provide needed breakthrough.

The Germans had much the same experience with poison gas. At first it was effective, but the advantage was not followed up. Then the Allies began to use it too and efficient gas masks were developed.

Airplanes were used to some extent for bombardment and reconnaissance but spent a good deal time fighting one another. The Germans made a sensation with Zeppelin raids on England, but these were not decisive.

Nor were submarines a surprise, though German skill and ruthlessness in using them were. Submarines nearly strangled Britain but were licked by the convoy system and the entry of the United States into the war.

Much of the food and munitions for Britain and France came from the United States, bought with loans from Americans. President Woodrow Wilson appealed early in the war for neutrality but he sympathized with the Allies.

After 114 Americans died in the sinking of the British liner Lusitania in 1915, German leaders tried to appease American opinion by ordering submarines not to attack passenger liners without warning. The new policy did not last. Pressure from the military made Germany announce it was resuming unrestricted submarine warfare early in 1917.

Unfortunately for the Germans this was also the moment when a revolt overthrew the czar's government.

And so America came in on the side of the Allies.

Within a week the Germans made a decision of their own, altering the direction of the world ever since. They helped Lenin get back to Russia.

The Germans had won stunning successes on the Eastern Front. Hundreds of thousands of Russians had been captured. Other thousands died. The Russian system was so corrupt many soldiers went into battle without rifles or shoes.

Now that the czar had been overthrown Russian political leaders were free to argue for peace.

Chief among these leaders was a bald little professional revolutionary named Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov. In his exile in Switzerland he used several other names, including "N. Lenin."

Lenin did get Russia out of the war, but by then it was too late for a German victory in the West. And the bringing back of Lenin — "like a plague bacillus", Churchill said — led to a serious infection in Germany, too.

Seven months after Lenin arrived in Petrograd — the city now named Leningrad in his honor — he was the head of a Communist government.

The czar and his family were murdered, apparently on order by Bolshevik officials, in July 1918. By that time their fate was an anticlimax.

On the German side the old world made its last stand in the spring of 1918. The Russians had surrendered. The wheat of the Ukraine was at Germany's disposal, improving the desperate food situation caused by an Allied blockade. The Germans were able to shift troops to the Western Front for a new offensive.

The offensive was smashed with the help of masses of fresh troops from the United States.

By July the Parliament of Austria-Hungary was listening to members who were proclaiming their intention of destroying the empire.

By August German troops on the Western Front were beginning to surrender in large units under slogans like "Peace and Bread" — the same ones the Communists had used in Russia.

Turkey surrendered at the end of October. Austria - Hungary asked for an armistice and was dismembered somewhat as Turkey was. A small, weak Austrian republic was proclaimed—and gobbled up by Adolf Hitler 20 years later. Hungary was stripped of much territory and proclaimed independent.

An independent Czechoslovakia, first proclaimed by exiles in Pittsburgh, was formed from the bulk of what remained of the empire. Other pieces went into two new countries: Poland and Yugoslavia.

Romania, which had fought briefly and unsuccessfully and on the Allied side, got the best territorial deal — a big slice that had belonged to Hungary, and pieces of what had been Russia and Bulgaria.

Germany was the last to surrender.

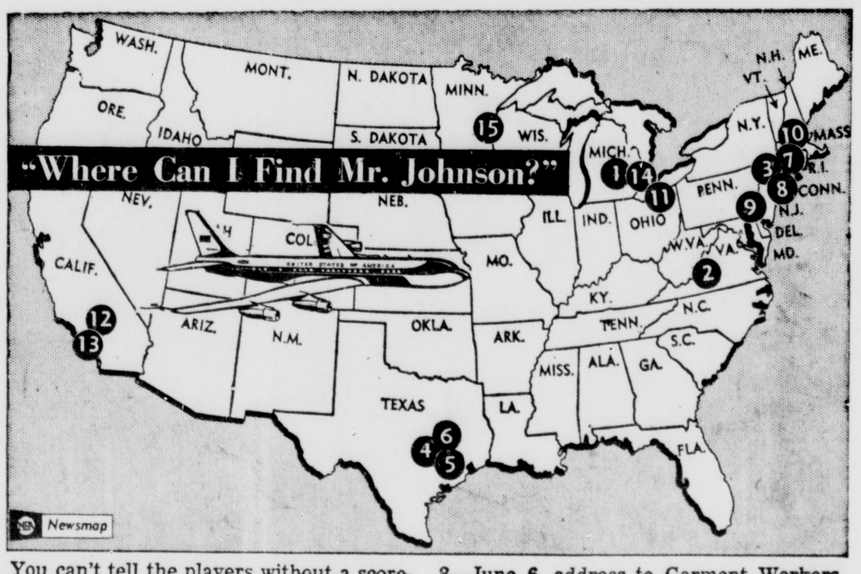

The Germans had to return Alsace and Lorraine to France and give up some territory in the east to the new Poland. Their colonies were parcelled out to Britain and France.

Russia had to submit to the amputation of Finland, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia and the chunk given to Romania. All this territory, except Finland, came under Communist rule after World War II.

So did the areas in Eastern Europe given up by Germany and Austria, plus Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Albania and a big part of Germany itself.

Although social and governmental systems changed enormously in the upheavals of World War II, territorial settlements are much as they were left by the treaties that ended World War I. The chief differences are that Russia has taken back the three Baltic states, Bessarabia, and eastern Poland—compensating the new Communist Poland with parts of what had been Germany. The Russians also have taken some of Germany, part of what had been East Prussia.

The peace treaties have often been criticized as laying the basis for World War II.

here's why we can do it:

4% per annum current rate

AS A SPECIALIZED financial institution, First State invests in long-term, mortgage loans on owner-occupied homes. Not only are thees sound, stable securities . . . they also pay a high yield!

First State's management can also operate economically and efficiently, since First State serves individuals and families (instead of business) and needs few departments and personnel to handle financial transactions.

These two factors — high-yield investment and low operating cost — mean substantial net incomes for the association's saver-members. The savers are owners, so more of the profits—after providing for ample safety reserves—go to them in the form of generous earnings at our current annual rate of 4%.

Five More Leases Inked For State Fair Center

THINGS TO COME — This is a scale model of the sign that will be installed to mark the State Fair Shopping Center. The old State Fair Floral Co. greenhouse smokestack has been preserved to form the center of the new sign. The circular portion at the bottom of the sign will carry the message selected by the Center, rotating to attract attention. A brilliant display of vari-colored lights will play around the stack to draw attention to the familiar landmark. (Democrat-Capital photo)

Five more firms have leased space in the State Fair Shopping Center, according to W. E. Bingaman. The Center is scheduled for completion late this fall on a 15 acre tract at the southwest corner of 14th St. and Limit Ave.

These additional merchants bring the total of leased space to 50,000 square feet. Previously announced firms include Bing's United Supermarket, Cash Hardware and Paint Company, and Mattingly Brothers Variety Stores.

The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, better known in the Sedalia community as S & H Green Stamps, will move their redemption center from its location adjacent to Bing's No. 2 store at Broadway and Emmet, into expanded space of 6,700 square feet in the new Center. The new store will feature the most modern trends in store fixtures and design.

State Loan & Finance Management Corporation, doing business as the American Finance Corporation, has procured space for a consumer loan office. Although American Finance will be a newcomer in Sedalia, the firm now has in excess of 550 offices across the United States.

Charles McCutcheon, of Fayette, Mo., announced that he has contracted for the operation of a coin-operated laundry and dry cleaning establishment. McCutcheon's store will feature a new type of dry cleaning equipment on which McCutcheon holds the patent. His equipment is now being manufactured and distributed nationwide.

Francis Nash, operator of the Sedalia School of Hairdressing at 123 South Ohio, has leased 1,000 square feet in the new Center for the operation of a high-fashion beauty salon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Norman, Kansas City, have acquired 1,500 square feet of space for use as a "Betty Brite" professional dry cleaning establishment. The Norman's now operate three such stores in the greater Kansas City area.

Officials of the Charles F. Curry Real Estate Company, leasing agent for the new Center, say that only a small amount of space remains unleased in that portion of the shopping center scheduled to open in the fall.

People In The News

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP)—The father of the Fischer quintuplets has confirmed that his wife is expecting a baby—their 11th — but says reports it may be another multiple birth are unfounded.

"Only God knows," said Andrew Fischer, 39, Thursday in Aberdeen. "No Xrays have been taken."

The quints will be one year old Sept. 14. The Aberdeen American-News said Mrs. Fischer, 31, is expecting in early fall.

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower will receive the second annual Family of Man Award of the Protestant Council of the City of New York.

The council said Thursday he will be honored at a dinner Oct. 28 for his "life-long dedication and contributions to the principles of freedom and humanity throughout the world."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, asked if he favors any candidate for president, said Thursday: "I haven't even told the Lord my thoughts yet."

Graham, in Columbus for a 10-day crusade, said he has never given any encouragement to those urging him to enter politics, because he feels that his role is in evangelism.

"Both parties do need prayer," he added.

NEW YORK (AP)—James M. Landis, former dean of the Harvard Law School, has been suspended from practicing law in New York State because of income tax violations.

The State Supreme Court's appellate division ordered the action Thursday on petition by the Bar Association of New York City.

Landis, 64, served a month in jail after pleading guilty last Aug. 2 to charges of late payment of taxes.

Multilateral Force Idea As Workable

LONDON (AP)—In every capital of the North Atlantic alliance, Cabinet ministers surrounded by official documents and attended by admirals ask this question:

What will you get if you mix together sailors of various nationalties on surface ships armed with strategic nuclear weapons?

You get an expensive, largely useless gimmick, say some. A solution to man alliance problems, others contend. A unique blending of diplomatic and military factors with a vast potential for increasing NATO solidarity, enthusiasts claim.

The United States government devised the Multilateral Force (MLF) idea. Except for West Germany, America's European allies are either cool or opposed to the idea.

Under the MFL scheme the allies would send a surface fleet of 25 ships to sea at a capital cost of $500 million. Each ship would carry officers and enlisted men of more than one nationality. Each vessel also would have aboard eight Polaris rockets.

President Johnson inherited the MLF idea from the Kennedy administration. Despite allied reluctance, Washington is keen to see the plan realized.

Sailors from various nations already are coming aboard the U.S. guided missile destroyer Biddle, designated as a floating laboratory for the concept. Operating out of Norfolk, Va., the Biddle will attempt to prove such a crew can be welded into a cohesive unit.

It used to be argued half humorously that a mixed manned ship would be a sort of comic strip vessel with Italian sailors complaining about German cooking, Dutch helmsmen scrambling steering orders while Americans and Britons knocked heads together on boisterous shore leaves.

No one believes that now. Even before the Biddle has been put through her paces there is widespread confidence that her hand-picked crew will function well.

Deck and engine room techniques are much the same in various navies. International airlines have shown the unifying results obtained by using English as an operations language.

Yet a survey of NATO capitals shows the West Germans as the only Europeans particularly pleased with MLF, and even Bonn has some doubts. A few Germans believe the project will cost too much and that West German interests, in any event, would be served best by going in for a Eruopean atomic force under French leadership.

The French have turned thumbs down on MLF. President Charles de Gaulle does not want the distinctive national quality of French armed forces blurred in any way.

The British, never enthusiastic, have proposed so many modifications that some Americans suspect Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's government hopes to stifle the whole thing in amendments.

The Americans push the MLF setup as the safeest and easiest way to give the NATO allies a feeling of participating in the nuclear strategy of the alliance even if the United States president still retains the ultimate finger on the trigger.

Mother-Daughter Give Program At Wesleyan Guild

Mrs. Eldon DeMott and her daughter, Miss Karen DeMott, the latter a student at Central Methodist College, Fayette, presented the July 7 program for Wesleyan Service Guild, Epworth Methodist Church, at the home of Mrs. Cecil Glenn. They discussed "Recruitment — A Concern of the Whole Church."

Mrs. DeMott gave devotional. In addition to the program, Miss DeMott presented a review of her last summer's mission tour for young people. Mrs. DeMott, a registered nurse, commented how, at times, the field of nursing is liked for her with mission work.

Mrs. Shelley Hunter presided. The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. Orpha Wheeler. Miss DeMott closed the meeting with prayer.

The next meeting will be Aug. 4 at the home of Mrs. Wheeler, guild coordinator. Reports will be given from delegates to the School of Missions.

ABWA Annual Recognition

'Woman of Year' Honors To Club's President

Sedalia Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association conferred the honor of "Woman of the Year" upon its president, Mrs. T. E. Gasperson, 1001 South Grand, for the year 1964. The award is made annually to a member of each local chapter and is based on the progress of the member in her chosen field and upon activities such as church, school, family and hobbies.

As a candidate of the Sedalia Charter Chapter Della Gasperson is a contender for the national title, "American Woman of the Year," announcement of which will be made at the National Convention of the Association, to be held Oct. 16-18 in Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. Gasperson was graduated from Thebes, Ill., high school, attended Illinois Normal, now known as Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., where she took special training in home economics, since she planned to be a dietitian, and this training proved helpful when she married and cooked for a husband and four children.

As a program director and narrator she became well known in the community a number of years ago, one of her programs best remembered being "Old Fashioned Album" presented first by men of the Missouri Pacific Shops who had made their own props. The program was presented in pantomime with Mrs. Gasperson as reader and director. Later a similar program was presented at the First Methodist Church in Sedalia and this grew into quite a business when groups from surrounding towns requested her help with programs of all kinds.

Later she went into selling Avon products and insurance.

Mrs. Gasperson is a member of the First Methodist Church, president of the Sedalia United Church Women, president of the Philathea Sunday School Class of the First Methodist Church, church soloist and a member of the choir and is past president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

She is president of the ABWA and has held the office of recording secretary in that organization. She also served as Hand of Friendship Tea chairman. She is past president of Sedalia Garden Clubs, a member of Helen G. Steele Music Club and Music Week chairman and is treasurer of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Her hobbies include music, flowers, handiwork and playing cards. She has served as soloist for the Christian Scientist Church for nine years. She learned to play the piano after eight lessons due to constant practice and the need to play her own accompaniment.

Flowers have been a special interest which led to gardening as a hobby which paid off with many vegetables and fruits which were canned to later find themselves on the family table to be given to friends or taken to those in need.

Her home has many lovely things which include beautiful and quilts which she made. She also makes her own clothes.

Mrs. Gasperson has four children, eight grandchildren and on her charm bracelet are eight silver silhouettes of her grandchildren, but now she has two great grandchildren, and the two new charms are gold.

Sidewalk Bazaar Daughters of Isabella Topic

Sedalia's forthcoming sidewalk bazaar was the topic of current interest at the regular business meeting of the Daughters of Isabella, Wednesday, July 8, at the K of C Hall.

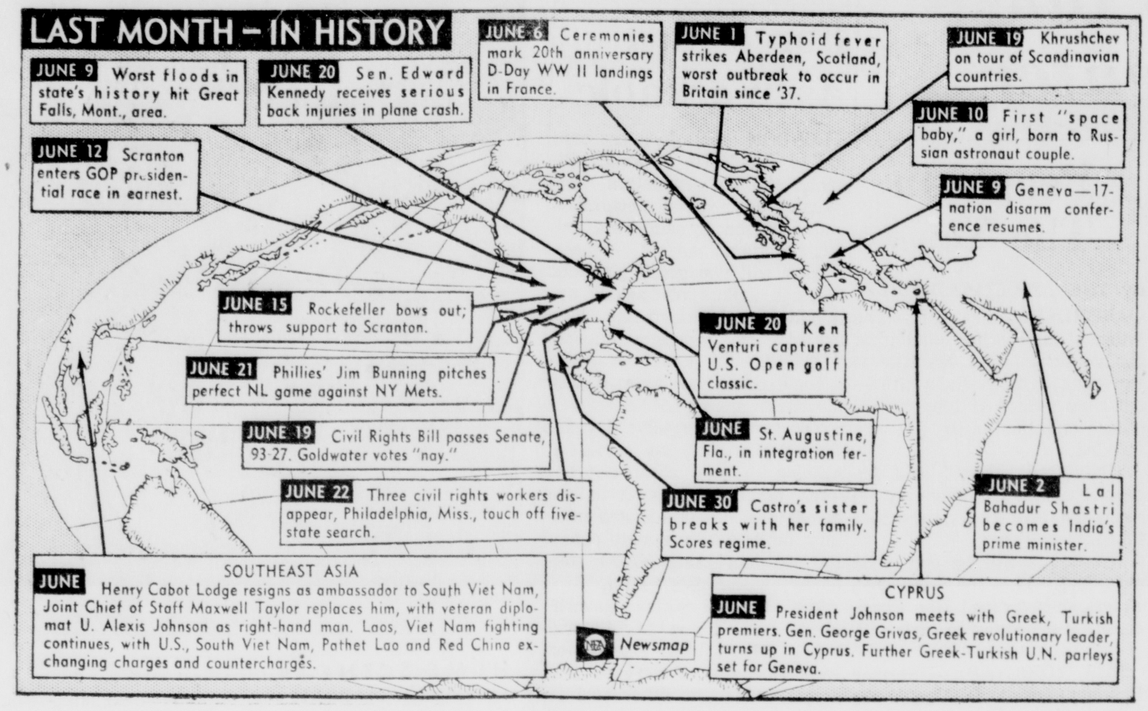

Laura Riley volunteered to be chairman of the Circle's arrangement for their booth. Those assisting her will be Bonnie Brown, Marian Butler, Lucille Cutler, Julia Riley, Lilly Stohr, Leona Voss and Marie Wiemholt.

Announcement was made at this meeting of the winners of the recent membership drive. Bonnie Brown was awarded first prize with Margaret Ann Roberts taking second.

Plans are being made for a picnic, Wednesday, July 22, for members and their families. It will be held at the West Shelter House, Liberty Park with Bonnie Brown in charge. Others on her committee will be Dorothy Askren, Marian Butler, Helen Darrah, Margery Dieckhaus, Dorothy Keck, June Klamert, Ann Meyer, Clara Mines, Anna Leona Voss and Mary Vogelsang.

After Wednesday's business meeting, lemonade and home made cookies were served by the social committee.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old with a real horrible problem. If you can solve it you are a genius.

My mother begged be to start tap dancing lessons about eight months ago. I didn't want to. She said dancing lessons would help me get poise. She also promised that if I'd take lessons, she would too, and we'd practice together. It sounded like fun so I said O. K.

Two weeks ago the dancing instructor assigned routines for the yearly recital. She made up a number for my mother and me to do together—in matching costumes. I thought for sure mother would refuse but to my shock she is very excited about it. All of a sudden she thinks she is Eleanor Powell.

I'd rather die than do a dance number in public with my mother. Please help me, Ann Landers, I can't talk her out of it. —NO SHOW GIRL.

Dear Girl: Don't try to talk her out of it. Simply tell her that you refuse to be a party to something which is bound to make the whole family look ridiculous. Let her know that if she wants to do a solo it is all right with you.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it possible to see too much of the husband you love?

My husband is a certified public accountant. When he went in business for himself two years ago we decided to have the back porch closed in and made into an office. It would save him office rent and make part of our home expenses deductable.

This worked out fine for about six months, and then he began to get on my nerves. He wants me to wait on him all day long. When he has a client I have to serve them coffee or cold drinks, or lunch. He is always after me to do a little filing, a little typing and a little telephoning. If he misplaces some papers I have to drop everything and go hunt for them.

Now that he can afford an office downtown I want him to have one. Am I being selfish as he says?—AROUND The CLOCK DUTY.

Dear Duty: Your husband is selfish to expect you to be on call 24 hours a day. He's asking you to be a housekeeper, wife, mother, short-order cook, typist, filing clerk and telephone operator—and it's too much. Some men MUST conduct their business from home but a CPA should not be operating from a back porch if he can afford a downtown office.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman executive (over 30) and considered interesting looking, competent and the independent type. I've let a few good marital prospects get away but frankly, the number of men who have dropped me first is about three to one.

The man I'm going with now is attractive, moderately successful, has excellent character and wants to marry me. Two problems: One, he talks constantly during movies, plays and concerts. It drives me crazy. Two, he is considerably younger than I am.

Please don't tell me to make this decision by myself. If I could decide by myself I wouldn't be writing to you.—GEMINI.

Dear Gem: People who have a habit of talking during performances can be silenced with a couple of sentences, so this is no big deal.

The real hooker is how MUCH younger is the man? Your ommission of the vital statistic suggests there is quite a gap, and that is the reason you can't decide. What are the facts, Lady?

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper encolsing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A Touch

"We'll let anyone work out with us that wants to, but we won't accept anyone as a member until he has been in the arena at least once."

The rodeo business is expensive. "Entry fees for events range anywhere from $10 to $50, depending on the size of the rodeo," Hottenspiller says. "A guy can take home from $90 to $1,300 if he's lucky and skillful. We charge $12 a month dues, so you gotta be interested in rodeo to be a member. We use the dues to buy stock and meet cost of our operation."

From what walk of life does the rodeo enthusiast come?

"Dentists, vets — why I once knew a preacher that worked the circuit," Hottenspiller says. "They come from all walks of life. Rodeoing is a lot like golf, hunting or fishing—it's a sport."

The Sedalia rodeo won't be an amateur event, the association president says. "We're working hard at organizing a professional show . . . one that people will really enjoy and that's why we're working the circuit now and taking a full year to build our arena, bleachers and get organized."

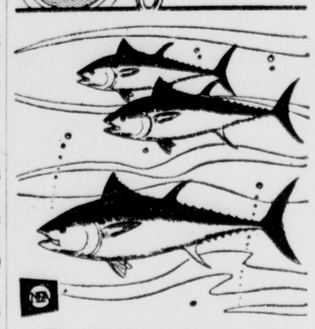

Hottenspiller explains that there are many rodeo fans but not too many really know how a cowboy is judged in the arena.

"When we enter an event, like bull riding, for example, we don't have a choice on the bull we are to ride. Each bull is branded with a number and the judges call off the rider's name, draw a number from a hat—and that's the bull you ride. Eight seconds is the usual ride duration.

"It's not how long you stay on a bull. It's how rough he is and how well the rider 'sits' and handles him. You get from 1-25 points for the way you 'sit' him and 1-25 points for how ornery the bull is. We use dull spurs on a bull to stay on and sharp spurs to make a bronc buck. A bull rider wants to draw the toughest bull at the rodeo. A good bull and a good rider — that's what wins the prize money."

Dr. Lowe became interested in the group through his two boys, Danny 17, a bull rider, and Billy, 15, a bucking bronc rider. Both boys are members of the association. Others on the group's membership roster are: Wayne Biggs, Buck Banner, Pete Young, Miles Evans, Dan Nicks and Billy Hottenspiller, a cousin to Frank.

Firefighters Expand State Fair Program

The Fire Fighters Association of Missouri has announced a greatly expanded program at the Missouri State Fair this year. A total of nearly 100 firemen from both volunteer and paid fire departments from all parts of the state will participate. The firemen will operate under the supervision of Wes Stapleton, Columbia, instructor in firemanship at the University of Missouri. He will be assisted by William Kenagy, Jr. Lee's Summit fire department chief.

In addition to providing 24 hour per day fire protection for the fairgrounds during the nine days of the fair, free demonstrations for the public are planned on both weekends and the Wednesday during the fair.

Emphasis is being placed on home fire fighting and home fire prevention. The firemen will provide a dramatic demonstration of how to extinguish fires of paper, wood, gasoline, oil, grease, and live electrical. Thrills will be provided in a ladder demonstration to perform a rescue operation and by a jump into a net from a second story window.

The following crews will provide the demonstration teams: Saturday, Aug. 22, Jackson County Firemen's Association; Captain of the demonstration team will be Grandview Fire Chief Glen Johnson. Sunday, Aug. 23, West Central Firemen's Association; Edgerton Fire Chief Don Pulliam will be captain of the team. Wednesday, Aug. 26, Warrensburg Junior Fire Department; this volunteer group is made up of teen agers from the area and is under the supervision of Fire Chief John Daniel.

A military fire department using military equipment will provide the demonstration on either the final Saturday or Sunday. One other team is still to be selected.

An exhibit of various types of equipment including several new trucks on loan from equipment companies will be under the supervision of William Kenagy, Sr., of Lee's Summit. Kenagy was formerly Chief of the Fire Department of Lee's Summit.

A third group will be set up as a race track crash crew on the five auto race days. Captain of the race track crew will be Fire Capt. John Welsch, Harrisonville.

The firefighters exhibit and demonstrations is just one of the many free attractions at the 1964 Missouri State Fair which opens Aug. 22 and runs through Aug. 30.

Henry Ford made the famous remark "History is bunk" in May of 1919.

Pill Is Major Birth Control Weapon

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

SHREWSBURY, Mass. (AP)—The pill is small — sometimes pink, sometimes orange, sometimes red, white and blue.

In a world facing a gain of 128,000 a day, 48 million a year, a population of 6½ billion by the year 2000, it is man's most ingenious means of birth control—the most effective and the most talked about.

It worries a lot of people, angers some, brings hope to others and has caused some reconsideration of social attitudes.

From the day the first woman took the oral contraceptive pill in December of 1954, it has been a subject of controversy.

Will it destroy social mores and create a promiscuous world?

Will it cause cancer in women? Is it against nature?

Despite the questions and arguments the pill has become a daily habit for six million women over the world—half of them Americans.

And in just over six years on the U.S. prescription market, it has become a major weapon in the arsenal of birth control devices. Its true usage is hard to measure.

The highest per capita use is in Australia. The Egyptian government and others pass out pills to mothers who want to limit the size of their families.

Even now, the pill and other methods of birth control are under study at the highest levels of the Vatican.

However a change in the traditional Roman Catholic view toward birth control is considered unlikely—Pope Pius XII called the use of the pill "illicit sterilization." Pope Paul VI in recent weeks indicated there was little reason to change the Catholic position.

Yet some Catholic women do take the pill—as Church leaders admit. They insist, however, that any attempt to offer statistics on the number is foolhardy.

Today, the U.S. birth rate is falling. The pill has been named as the major cause. But Dr. Gregory Pincus of the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology, Shrewsbury, Mass., thinks this unlikely. He is a co-developer of the pill, which was developed at the foundation.

Population experts agree with Dr. Pincus. The cause for the falling U.S. birth rate, they say, is simply that today's women want smaller, more manageable families in keeping with their financial status. The whole list of birth control devices and methods is used.

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher of New York's Mt. Sinai Hospital cites 1960 statistics showing that at least 80 out of every 100 American married couples practice some means of birth control—from mechanical devices to the pill, to the Catholic-approved rhythm method.

Essentially it mimics the state of pregnancy—when there can be no further conception. The pill prevents ovulation—the release of eggs from the ovaries. The woman takes a pill each day for 20 days.

In pregnancy, the hormone progesterone—and perhaps to some extent the sex hormone estrogen—inhibit ovulation. With the pill, synthetics of the natural hormones do the same thing.

Today, a woman can receive a month's supply of pills for about $2.00, Dr Pincus estimates. Newer pills on the market use diminishing amounts of the hormones, but get the same effects.

There was a recent report that laboratory animals which were fed a common U.S. birth control pill showed accelerated growth of existing tumors. But Dr. Pincus said that it has long been known that many animal cancers are dependent on hormones—can be slowed by hormone preparations in one strength and sped up by hormones in another strength.

Studies on volunteer groups of women show, however, that use of the pills may actually inhibit the normal rate of cancers of the female reproductive tract, Dr. Pincus said. He added that in Haiti and other test areas, doctors have found fewer signs of suspicious cells in regular medical checkups of pill users.

As more experience has been gained since the first licensed pill, in 1957, the pills have become smaller and cheaper. Manufacturers have cut the dosage at least three-fourths since that first pill.

There are 30 trade names available on the world market—representing about 10 separate drugs, Dr. Pincus says.

In the United States, the Food and Drug Administration's index lists four firms licensed to sell six kinds of pills, most of them similar.

There is a scarcity of information on the effects of oral contraceptives on social or sexual mores of those taking them. Dr. Pincus says this is one area where research is badly needed.

Dates Ahead

July 22, 23, and 24 — Pettis County Achievement Days, Smith-Cotton High School.

July 29 — Junior 4-H Camp, Camp Bob White Knob Noster State Park.

Aug. 1 to 4 — Senior 4 - H Camp, Camp Bob White, Knob Noster State Park.

Some 4-H Changes

Starting this year, a Share the Fun participant is not eligible to participate in any other District Achievement Day event. Only one blue ribbon item per class from County Achievement Day will go to the State Fair this year. In the past, this has been two items per class, also, the one item that is exhibited in the 4-H Building at the State Fair will not be re-judged but will receive a participation ribbon. This does not pertain to livestock and dairy entries.

The State 4-H skilled operators event will be held at the State Achievement Day in Columbia rather than at the State Fair.

You and your Job

A young man or a young woman facing the uncertainities of the world situation today asks, "Can I plan my job future intelligently?"

What about a young man who faces a tour of military duty? Should he just drift without a job plan for the future? Won't things be different when he gets out of the armed services? And what about a young woman? Should she seek a career outside the home? Or should she plan for both a job and a home?

These are significant questions today. If you are troubled by the uncertainities, you are not alone. They are puzzling many thousands of young men and young women, particularly high school seniors and college students.

But one thing is certain: Working out a practical, flexible vocational plan is the best way to build toward your future career.

Each new generation of American youth has had its own difficult problems to solve. Each has had to face new and confusing situations. Today, however, young men and young women have one outstanding advantage over those generations of youth which have gone before them. They can get advice—competent advice in planning careers.

Today, there are specialists in vocational guidance in schools; there are employment counselors in State employment offices; there are also scientific aids — new tools, some of them produced since World War II—to help youth make practical vocational plans. These advisers on career planning and the new scientific aids must be used however, if they are to be of value to you. Specifically, then what can you do now about your job future?

You can plan for your work—you can work for your plan. You can decide upon a goal and you can direct your activities toward it.

Drifting won't take you toward your goal. But without a plan you will drift, and making a job plan requires action. In your career planning you should do your best to find out what you want to do. Find out what you can do best. Find out what the opportunities are and where they are. Plan to get from where you are now to where you want to go. Take immediate steps to develop your plan and put it into action so that you can make the most of opportunities for vocational development as they present themselves.

In making your vocational plan, consider such things as your past experience — in school, on the ob, and in the community. Attempt to determine your interests, that is, what you like and dislike. Consider your aptitudes and the amount of education you now have and what your plans for additional education might be.

To determine what your aptitudes and interests are, you can get the benefit of aptitude and interest testing either at your school or at the nearest local office of the public employment service.

Today you have unprecedented opportunities to enter upon a career suited to your education and preparation, your interests aptitudes, and abilities. But the more you know about jobs, the better will be your choice of an occupation.

Your State Employment local office can give you a great deal of specific information about jobs and job opportunities, particularly for beginning workers.

As you plan your career, explore the broad fields of work and don't limit your thinking to only the work you can do now. Consider what you can learn to do.

Summer Camp

Indians, Jungle and Space Captivate Kids for a Week

There was an Indian war whoop and an announcement to clear the way — "Here comes Chief Sitting Bull!" This from Chief Sitting Bull himself.

The steed he rode was a wheel chair and on his head was a bright paper headdress with a paper feather. Along the narrow path and over two short wooden bridges, rolled the chair while groups of children from Children's Therapy Center and the Training Center for Retarded Children, along with teenage counselors, with their faces painted and wearing paper feathers, marched to the camp fire.

Of course it wasn't a real camp fire, it was where an old one had been—but then, they weren't real Indians either. It was the fourth and next to the last day of their summer camp and it was Indian Day. Monday had been the starting of the camp; Tuesday was Jungle Day; Wednesday was Cowboy Day; Thursday was Indian Day and Friday, the last day, was Space Day. Each day they dressed accordingly, named their food accordingly, and did things appropriate for the occasion.

There were 57 youngsters at camp this year and 48 counselors, all entering into the spirit of the day, whatever day it was. It was hard to know which were having the most fun, the kids or the counselors. Three of the children were in wheel chairs.

There was another war whoop from Chief Sitting Bull and Miss Janet Vavra, occupational therapist at the Children's Therapy Center, looked at him, smiled almost in disbelief. At the center he had been a quiet child, a different child from this. The camp with its woodland setting (Certainly well named for the Indian Day, because it was Girl Scout Camp Sakajawea), the gay pretending, the games, the food, the many things that went with the camp, did something to Chief Sitting Bull — he was having fun — real fun — like boys should have.

The group moved on to the camp fire around which they gathered and three of the girl counselors came out of the woods and did Indian dances around the camp fire ashes that were encircled with rock, then they called for the children and counselors in two units to join them, for they are divided up into units.

"Heel, toe—heel, toe—" sang out the leaders and the others followed in the dance.

"It's clouding up," said one of the boys on the sidelines as he looked up at the sky. And it was, too.

The little Indians had tom toms they had made from coffee cans and oatmeal boxes to beat.

Huge bright blue "bear tracks" wandered over the green grass and along the route went the Indians on a bear hunt, some little ones walking as best they could, some whose handicap was of another nature hearing or speech, running and skipping delightedly, and those retarded, laughing as they sought to track down the bear. When they reached the end of the bear track path they didn't find a bear after all but something that was much nicer—a lollipop tree. Yes, sir, a tree covered with lollipops they could pick off and eat.

John Atkinson, a 13-year-old counselor, took over explaining about the camp when Janet Vavra had to leave to see about youngsters in wheel chairs. There is a flag unit, the wood gathering unit, and he explained duties of each unit.

The day starts with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the flag flies high above from a flag pole. There is singing of a patroitic song or a hymn, the color guard, games, hikes, juice breaks, more games and music, lunch, handicraft, lunch and finally the taking down of the flag.

John showed splatter paint pictures the children had made with the print of leaves or flowers on paper. He explained, too, the tree on a large white piece of paper which had been made of real leaves for Jungle Day, and the paper monkey that hung from it. The kids, he said, went into the woods and picked leaves they wanted to use for splatter painting.

Along the path in the woods is the wishing tree, John said, which is two trees with a hollow wood growth between that fills up with rain water. You walk past it and make a wish, walk a distance without talking and your wish should come true. The children are so thrilled about wishing on the wishing well tree.

All the camps have been held at Sakajawea except Wednesday's at Liberty Park, so the children could fish in the lagoon. They were taught to fish because they will have much leisure time to use.

Another boy in a wheel chair caught a fish and he was so pleased. Several of the others caught small fish. It was an exciting experience for all of them.

At the park they learned to play on playground equipment. Most would think every child would know how to swing, but many of these children didn't. So they were taught how to pump a swing and other play methods. Now, when they go to the park with their families, they will know how to swing and play like other children.

They were taught, too, where not to walk, not to throw litter, not to stray off and to assume some responsibility.

Mealtime was always great; wood was gathered, sticks were cleaned for roasting wieners, and sometimes they had hamburgers. The first day was windy and potato chips kept blowing off their plates, but they would just reach and get some more.

Such a wonderful week it has been, every single day, but this would not have been possible if it had not been for the kind people of Sedalia. United Garment Workers of America, No. 262, at Lamy Manufacturing Co., contributed $125 to provide money for the camp. In answer to an appeal for volunteers, there were many more answers than could be used. Jaycees Wives volunteered transportation and that was a big item. Response of the youth of Sedalia was tremendous. Junior and senior high school boys and girls offered help and were accepted as counselors, as were members of Future Nurses and Girl Scouts.

What a good time these youthful counselors have had, some of them new in town. The experience has given them opportunity to get acquainted with other young people who are ready and willing to serve their community. Many adults volunteered.

Camp counselors were: Ann Murrell, Ann Durley, Janice Goodnight, Susie Amerine, Susan Lake, Kay Wells, Linda Woolery, Dana Routsong, Tonnza Handley, Linda Matthews, Joan Gibbs, Macki Silverman, Dee Dee Silverman, Lynette Loseke, Chris Chapman, Cindy Delph, Sherry Fingland, Becki Ray, Ellen Cromley, Sharon Waterfield, Stephanie Anderson; Karen Faber, Albuquerque, N. Can Science Trick Nature Into a Genteel Behavior?

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is possible perhaps that by 1970 man will be able to make it rain where he needs water, prevent rainfall where it would do damage and eliminate many lightning-sparked forest fires.

Later, when the drawbacks can be seen as clearly as the advantages, he will be able to change his climate, turn deserts into gardens and open new lands to civilization.

Some major steps in weather control have been taken since 1960, when one of the nation's leading weather scientists noted: "How can we be expected to control the weather by sowing clouds with dry ice when we can't even accurately predict when it's going to be cloudy?

Here are some of these steps:

The discovery that silver iodide is more effective than dry ice in coaxing rain from clouds. Silver iodide particles are very light and do not require bulky and expensive refrigeration. They can be released from the ground into winds which carry them, to the clouds. Dry ice must be scattered from a plane.

Navy Weather Service research has proven it is possible to create clouds by seeding clear, humid air with carbon black. This could lead to the conversion of range land — "where the skies are not cloudy all day"—to garden plots.

Tests have shown that seeding a cloud from above with silver iodide converts it to very tiny crystals, too light to fall as precipitation. Thus, clouds can be broken up, preventing rain where it would be damaging.

This process of above-cloud seeding has the same effect on hail-bearing clouds. A big problem here, though, is spreading the seed rapidly enough from ground generators and planes. Small quantities of the chemical will only increase the amount of hail.

A safer approach is to spray the clouds early in their formation with salt drops so they will "rain out" before conditions are right for hail. Damage from hail in the United States amounts to more than $500 million a year.

Many scientists believe that lightning — which causes 75 per cent of the forest fires in the Rocky Mountains — is associated with mixed clouds bearing both ice and water. New evidence shows fewer fires started by thunderclouds seeded to remove water.

Scientists agree that these are only preliminary steps. Before man can control the weather, he must understand it. Weathermen admit that when they throw silver iodide into clouds they know as much about what they're doing — and have the same chance of success — as early Indian rain dancers.

But enough time and work have now gone into weather research to convince scientists that data from isolated tests will soon fall into place to produce a better understanding of the subject.

Chief roadblocks in the weather control timetable are the chronic shortage of trained weather scientists and the lack of funds.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) is currently responsible for spearheading weather control research. It provides many university and field research grants and coordinates the work of several federal agencies. NSF's weather modification budget request is $1.5 million this year.

Learning what makes weather tick could lead to future control plans on a far grander scale. The following possibilities are deemed to have merit:

Sprinkling coal dust over the polar ice cap could absorb the sun's heat to melt it, turning the Alaskan tundra into prime farmland. But it might also flood New York, London and other low-lying areas.

Blasting the tops off the high peaks in the Rockies could change the course of the major air streams. The Arizona and Nevada deserts might become arable, but the fertile Midwest might become another Death Valley in the process.

A hurricane aiming for the North Carolina coast might be diverted by blasting a hydrogen bomb in its path. But this might only send the storm crashing into Maryland or Florida.

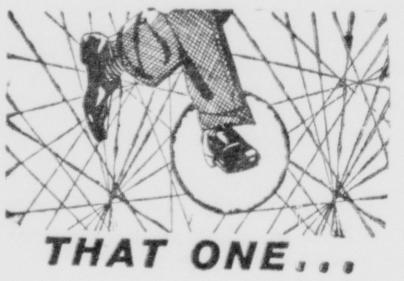

Scientists admit they still have a lot to learn about nature's reactions to man-made intrusions.

THEATER TALK — Katharine Cornell, left, visits backstage with an old friend, Eve Le Galliene, after viewing latter's performance in "The Seagull" on Broadway.

AMERICA'S SWEETHEART (AND HIS, TOO)—Mary Pickford was the movie sweetheart of all America, but the special sweetheart of Charles "Buddy" Rogers. They have been married since 1937. Recently they started from New York on a six-week voyage aboard the USS United States, to locate Mary's first films and news clips.

KENNEDY LURE — Focal point for visitors to Washington is the residence of Mrs. John F. Kennedy, in the Georgetown section of the capital. Those hopeful of spotting the former First Lady sometimes cause traffic jams on the quiet residential street. Secret Service men see to it that oglers keep their distance from the property.

CUDDLE

I ALWAYS PLACE such emphasis on the need for cuddling—which children thrive on—that I suspect it's time I made one thing clear: there is no similarity between cuddling and coddling.

The first is constructive. It gives children the security that comes from the knowledge they are loved. The second is destructive, as I hope to make clear.

I have five little patients whose mother perpetually tries to save them from all unpleasantness. She's a most intelligent woman in many ways. But she doesn't recognize that by coddling her children, she does them a disservice.

"I want my children to have friendship and affection for you," she told me. "Therefore, I would like another doctor to give them shots, take blood tests, and do anything else that they might fear or dislike."

Her attitude shows sympathetic understanding. Indulgence usually does. We should try, however, to extend our empathy beyond our children's immediate feelings to what will be best for them in the long run.

Coddling is debilitating. It retards the rate at which a child learns to entertain himself, become self-sufficient, and understand that certain unpleasant things must be faced.

Last spring I gave two of my grandsons a skiff, which I no longer used, with the proviso that they put it in shape: sandpaper, caulk, and paint it. It would have been easier to have done the work myself. But I knew the boys would take better care of the boat and have more pride in it if they appreciated the time and effort that went into conditioning it.

Parents who don't require their youngsters to help around the house and in the garden cheat them more than they "spare" them. Children, like adults, know a sense of accomplishment when they rake a lawn, weed a garden, dust a room, set a table, or do whatever else is within their scope. They're enriched, too, by a sense of participation they never know if they're pushed aside while a mother, father, or an older brother or sister does the work for them.

If we coddle our children, we turn our love from a big plus into a big minus. Often we wish to compensate for something our children lack—good health, a mother, a father, playmates, progress in school—when we begin the coddling that so quickly becomes a habit.

We need to take firm steps then to change our attitude, gradually, of course, and to remedy any harm that has been done to them.

If your child has had too much attention, you should discipline yourself to watch him less and less, comment less and less on what he is doing and how well he is doing it, and stop repeating things he has said or done, good or bad, in front of him. Children, I find, conduct themselves better—probably because they're more relaxed—when they're not smothered with attention.

Sometimes parents come to me worried because a child won't eat. I suggest they treat him as though he were one of six children (he almost never is). Eating problems in large families are rare. When there are a number of children around, they are likely to help themselves from a neglected plate or to remove it, without comment, when they're clearing the table.

Getting youngsters to play by themselves can be a problem. The best solution is to give them one or two toys they really want: toys they will be proud to have and which will stimulate their imagination.

To do this takes considerable time and careful observation. The right toy for your child is probably not the same toy your friends' children favor or even the toy that is currently having a vogue. But the time spent observing your child, discovering his secret life, so to speak, almost always proves well worth while.

Should a toy be lost or broken, it's a good idea not to replace it so quickly that the child never has a chance to miss it—a common practice when indulgence prevails.

Recently a young mother brought her five-year-old to see me. While I talked to the mother, the little girl kept trying to balance her doll on the back of the sofa. Her mother cautioned her that the doll might fall and break. But the child persisted—until the doll did fall and break.

Immediately there was a loud, despairing wail. Immediately, too, the mother jumped up and, gathering her daughter in her arms, soothed: "Don't cry, darling! Don't cry! On our way home we'll stop at Toy Town and get another doll!"

We cannot protect our children from all hurt, worry, and disappointment. Generally we shouldn't try. Instead, we should explain—simply and lovingly—how things are in this world and why they're so. The child who is thus taught to cope with reality is strengthened in spirit, character, and resistance—and grows up with a far greater chance of happiness.

Cuddle, by all means!

But, by all means, don't coddle!

BUT DON'T CODDLE!

Sheltering your child from all the hurts of the world may seem kind, but in the long run it's one of the cruelest things you can do

WHO'S WHO AT THE GOP CONVENTION?

By JERRY KLEIN

WILL BARRY GOLDWATER, the leader in delegate votes as this went to press, emerge from this week's Republican National Convention in San Francisco as the GOP candidate for President? If not, how about William Scranton, Richard Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller, Henry Cabot Lodge, George Romney, or Margaret Chase Smith? Here is a sort of "who's who" quiz about these diverse figures in the spotlight.

Q. Which of the seven leading contenders was born outside the United States?

A. Governor Romney was born in Chihuahua, Mexico, of Mormon parents whose family had moved there from Arizona. Young George was brought back to the States at the age of five. Constitutional experts have said that Romney's Mexican birth does not disqualify him for the Presidency because his parents were U. S. citizens.

Q. Which of them said, "I'm no baby-kissing, handshaking, blintz-eating candidate"?

A. Senator Goldwater. He has been known to shy away from the endless crowd-pleasing that politicking seems to demand.

Q. Can you name the Senator who is an acknowledged defense expert, having toured our overseas defense posts, but also is a great lover of flowers?

A. Mrs. Smith, who as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has visited Guantánamo, Cuba, and other U.S. military installations. She has a standing order with a florist for a half-dozen roses every week.

Q. Who dated a sister of John F. Kennedy and has political views that have been compared with the late President's?

A. Governor Scranton once dated Kathleen Kennedy, who later married an English nobleman and lost her life in a 1948 airplane crash in France. Republican Scranton went on television to congratulate John F. Kennedy when he was named the Democratic Presidential nominee in 1960.

Q. Which Republican hopeful once was a member of an expedition to the Arctic?

A. Governor Rockefeller traveled to the far north with Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell. He spent a large part of the voyage working in the ship's galley, cooking and washing dishes.

Q. Which two GOP stalwarts are next-door neighbors?

A. Rockefeller and former Vice President Nixon. They have apartments in the same building in New York, a posh Fifth Avenue cooperative.

Q. Which contender hasn't been elected to public office in the past 18 years?

A. Ambassador Lodge. His last election victory was in 1946, when he won a third term as U.S. Senator from Massachusetts.

Q. Who has the most unusual hobby?

A. Probably Mrs. Smith, who is a bird watcher, or Goldwater, a ham radio operator (station K7UGA). The latter is also an expert photographer and writer on American Indian lore.

Q. Whose 62nd birthday last week (July 5) puts him in the "senior citizen" category as far as Presidents are concerned?

A. Lodge. If elected President, he would be older at his inauguration than any Chief Executive in the past 107 years. (James Buchanan was 65 years old at his swearing-in in 1857.)

Q. Whose campaign manager has rejected claims that he is a "liberal" Republican?

A. Rockefeller's. His manager in the New Hampshire primary election said, "He's not a liberal, and we're going to prove that he's not."

Q. Did Nixon capture the women's vote in the Presidential election in 1960?

A. Yes, but according to the polls, he got only the slimmest of majorities: about 51 percent.

Q. Which candidate has seen his state budget increase 55 percent during his term as governor?

A. Rockefeller. Under his administration, New York State's budget has risen from $1.6 to $2.9 billion annually.

Q. Whose parents were afraid that he might be exceptionally small in size?

A. Scranton's. They had him eat health foods and do stretching exercises to increase his stature. Today he's a six-footer.

Q. Whose father was a barber?

A. Mrs. Smith's.

Q. Whose political career includes service as General Eisenhower's campaign manager?

A. Lodge's. He directed Ike's campaign in 1952.

Q. Have all the Republican aspirants attended college?

A. No; Mrs. Smith only went through high school in her native Skowhegan, Me. Afterward, she did some teaching there.

Q. Do all of them have law degrees?

A. No, but Scranton, Nixon, and Lodge do.

Q. Who is an expert poker player?

A. Nixon. He is said to have won about $10,000 from fellow servicemen during World War II.

Q. Who, if elected, would adopt a "hard-line policy" toward the Communists?

A. Goldwater, who has said that as President he would threaten to break diplomatic ties with the Soviet Union and resign from the United Nations if Red China were admitted.

Q. Who likes jazz records?

A. Rockefeller. Especially Benny Goodman and Glenn Miller.

Q. Did Nixon win the farm vote in 1960?

A. Yes, he had a plurality of almost 600,000 votes in Iowa, the Dakotas, Kansas, and Nebraska.

Q. Who would like to make basic changes in the Social Security program?

A. Goldwater would like to put participation in Social Security on a personal, voluntary basis. He would also like to end farm subsidies and offer the Tennessee Valley Authority for sale to private enterprise.

Q. Which Republican hopeful has held Federal jobs under two Democratic Presidents?

A. Rockefeller, under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman.

Q. Who set a record high with his state's sales tax?

A. Scranton increased Pennsylvania's sale tax to 5 percent, highest in the nation.

Q. Who resigned his Federal office to fight in World War II?

A. Lodge quit the U. S. Senate, joined an American tank unit fighting in North Africa, and eventually won six battle stars. President Roosevelt called him home after he was nearly captured by the Germans.

Q. Who, if elected President, would be accomplishing a feat unprecedented in 72 years?

A. Nixon, who, like Grover Cleveland in 1892, would be elected Chief Executive after having been defeated in the previous Presidential race.

Q. Which Republican has served as a religious missionary and is a staunch supporter of his church—though his grandfather once ran afoul of the law against polygamy?

A. Romney has served as a Mormon missionary in Great Britain. He doesn't smoke or drink and is known for giving 10 percent of his income to the church. When Congress outlawed polygamy in the 1880s, his grandfather—who had four wives—moved to Mexico.

Q. Which Presidential hopeful suffers from acrophobia—fear of height.

A. Rockefeller. Once, while hunting, he found himself on a 400-foot-high ledge, looked down, and "froze." It took him several minutes to begin backing away from the perilous drop.

Q. Who is a member of the Society of Friends?

A. Nixon is a Friend—or Quaker—as is former President Herbert Hoover.

Q. Who used to be a journalist?

A. Lodge, who worked as a newspaperman for about 10 years early in his career.

Q. Whose mother was active in Republican politics?

A. Scranton's mother was a G.O.P. national committeewoman for more than 20 years.

Q. Which hopeful is the wealthiest?

A. Rockefeller, whose fortune has been estimated in excess of $200 million. Scranton's net worth is about $8 million. Goldwater also is considered to be in the millionaire category.

Q. Who flies his own private plane?

A. Goldwater, who holds the rank of major general in the U. S. Air Force Reserve.

Q. Who would be the first President born in Connecticut?

A. Scranton. He was born in Madison, Conn., on July 19, 1917.

America's Richest Man—

And How He Got That Way

Spending money doesn't interest H. L. Hunt much, but he does get a kick out of earning it—at the rate of nearly $250,000 a day!

By FRED J. ECKERT

ALMOST EVERYONE believes that J. Paul Getty is the richest man in the United States. Everyone, that is, except Getty himself.

"In terms of extraordinary, independent wealth," Getty admits, "there is only one person, H. L. Hunt."

For a man who is supposed to be the richest man in America, Haroldson Lafayette Hunt remains remarkably unknown to the general public—and what little is known about him contains as much fiction as fact.

A nationally syndicated columnist once described him as "symbolic of the lusty Texas tycoon who flashes $1,000 bills, drapes his women in mink, and turns in his Cadillacs when they get dirty."

Nothing could be further from the truth. Although his personal fortune is about three billion dollars and his daily earnings nearly a quarter-million dollars, Hunt does not throw money around. Not only does he not "flash" $1,000 bills, he never carries any with him. After all, he feels, most places simply do not have change for such a large denomination.

The soft-spoken, 75-year-old multibillionaire drives himself to work in downtown Dallas every weekday in his medium-priced American car. Then he walks three blocks to his office. He carries his lunch in a paper bag. When he travels, it is by commercial airlines rather than by chartered plane.

Why? Hunt explains that he drives to work rather than have a chauffeur take him simply because he likes to drive. He parks his car three blocks from his office, not to save 50 cents in parking fees, as rumor has it, but in order to get some daily exercise. He carries his lunch because it saves him time and because it is the only way he can obtain the health foods he enjoys, such as low-calorie cheese, dried prunes, and bread baked from wheat of a high-fluoride content grown in the Texas Panhandle.

He doesn't indulge in a lot of luxuries simply because he is not overly impressed by them.

TO UNDERSTAND H. L. HUNT, you have to understand how he feels about money. Unlike most people, America's richest man enjoys earning it far more than he enjoys spending it. To Hunt, making money is not just work, it is his hobby, the thing he enjoys most. "For all practical purposes," Hunt says, "I regard a man with 200 thousand dollars as well off as a man with 200 million dollars." Although he himself long ago passed both those levels, Hunt still works hard at making money. There is nothing he would rather do. "There's no stopping point," he says. "I couldn't live in retirement."

If H. L. Hunt has any secret desire, it is to see whether he could do it all over again. "There are times," he says, "when I've wished I'd wake up stone broke. It would be a great adventure—to see how good I was, to see whether I could create lots of wealth again."

Hunt built his fortune from virtually nothing. With only a fifth-grade education, he left his native Illinois and roamed the West working as a farm hand, lumberjack, and cowboy. Finally, in Arkansas, he speculated in cotton land and soon found himself owner of 20,000 valuable acres. Before he celebrated his 21st birthday, he was already a self-made millionaire.

But there was a panic in 1921, and Hunt saw his fortune slip away. Broke but unwilling to bow to bad luck, he borrowed $50 and went to look into an oil boom in El Dorado, Ark. Here he again built a fortune from scratch.

To hear Hunt tell it, it was easy. "Well," he says, "when you have no cash, you have to rely on other things. Like conversation. I'd drive out to see a farmer, offer him $25 an acre for an oil lease, drive back into town, and find somebody willing to pay $35 an acre."

His formula for making money? "You have to be lucky . . . you have to be of an acquisitive nature, aggressive and thrifty. You have to be honest and fair . . . You can't do a great volume of business unless your word is accepted."

Hunt made a lot of money in Arkansas—but he struck it even richer in the 1930s when he got in on the ground floor of the East Texas oil boom, the greatest oil discovery in the world up to that time. Today he is the nation's biggest independent petroleum producer.

But oil isn't the only business the Hunts—H. L., his four sons, and his two daughters—are in. For instance, one son, Lamar, owns a professional football team, the Kansas City Chiefs (formerly the Dallas Texans). A year ago, a story made the rounds about Lamar losing large sums of money on the team, and a friend of the family supposedly asked H. L. Hunt: "Aren't you concerned about the fact that Lamar is losing a million dollars a year on his team?"

AS THE STORY GOES, Hunt's matter-of-fact reply was: "Well, at that rate he ought to go broke in about 250 years." Hunt was, of course, only teasing. Both he and his son are willing to lose money today—if it is a step toward earning more money tomorrow.

Besides making money, Hunt's interests include Life-Line, the daily public-affairs radio and tv broadcasts he organized several years ago. He is so devoted to the program that he and his family listen to the same broadcast twice daily, once on a Dallas station and once on a New Orleans station!

In 1960 Hunt wrote a novel, Aplaca, dealing with the problems of a mythical emerging country. The constitution Hunt devised for the country included such things as a provision whereby a person who considers himself poorly informed could authorize someone he considers better informed to cast his vote for him. Hunt had the book published in paperback rather than hardcover in order to achieve wider distribution.

Home for Hunt is "Mount Vernon," a reproduction of George Washington's famous mansion—only Hunt's is three times larger than the original. The mansion, located on 10 acres overlooking a lake, is the only major luxury America's richest man seems to enjoy thoroughly.

Here Hunt lives with his second wife (his first wife died in 1955) and her four young children. His children from his first marriage are all grown and have their own homes. As much as possible, the Hunts try to lead a normal family life. Often, when friends visit, they enjoy sitting around together singing favorite old tunes—including "We Ain't Got a Barrel of Money."

What's next for H. L. Hunt?

"I just want to do what I'm doing," he says. "I have a good time at it."

1. Rinse tomatoes (peel if desired) and chill thoroughly in refrigerator.

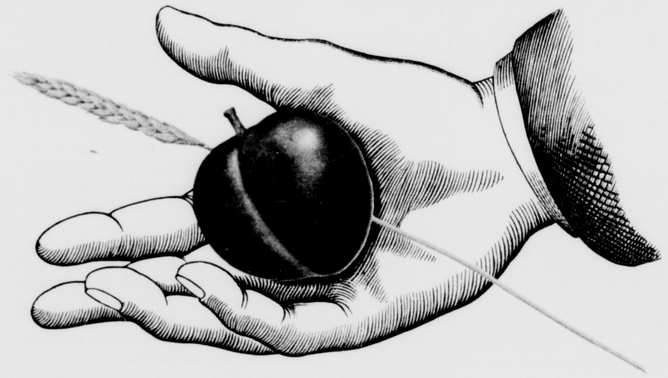

2. Drain 1 can of sardines, remove tails, and cut the sardines into pieces; reserve the other can of sardines for completing the salad. Lightly toss the sardines with the chopped eggs and capers.

3. Blend the sour cream, mayonnaise, caper liquid, dry mustard, and salt. Add to egg-sardine mixture and toss lightly to mix well. Chill mixture thoroughly.

4. When both the mixture and tomatoes are thoroughly chilled, cut a slice from the top of each tomato. Using a spoon, remove seeds. Invert shells to drain. Sprinkle insides with seasoned salt before stuffing. Fill center of tomatoes with the egg-sardine mixture.

5. Choose greenest lettuce leaves and use to line salad plates. Set tomatoes on lettuce. Place one sardine across each stuffed tomato and garnish with sprigs of water cress. If desired, place 2 or 3 additional sardines on lettuce at side of each tomato.

ON MY BATTERED DESK is an advertisement for a cracked lavabo bearing an astronomical price tag.

Almost everybody.

My desk is quite new. It has 17 drawers packed with 1,700 items, none of which can readily be found. It is solid walnut, but you'd never know it. The walnut has been pounded and pummeled and offered to termites so that it will look shopworn.

It certainly does.

The cracked lavabo is also new, but it was carefully broken before being offered for sale because these days only an unmarred lavabo is cheap.

Above my davenport hangs a piece of 150-year-old fabric with holes in it, which makes it more valuable than if it were a piece of 1964 fabric without moths.

When you shop for a new table, the furniture salesman will offer you a pock-marked specimen which, he exclaims proudly, is "distressed." You'd know that even if he hadn't told you. Everything's distressed.

Picture frames are wormy chestnut. Drapery fabric is artificially faded and worn. Wall paneling is pecky cypress, and if you can find used brick, you're the envy of your neighbor.

If you must buy something that looks new and shiny, the only alternative is to provide the children with hammers and leave the house. The value of your purchase will surely double.

The best silver flatware is now scarred. Flower containers are damaged mixing bowls. Rugs are to be dim and dilapidated. And hide the chrome in the kitchen. What's on view had better be primitive utensils like wooden potato mashers and six-foot, hand-carved hay loaders.

You know what I think about all this?

I think it's wonderful. You should, too.

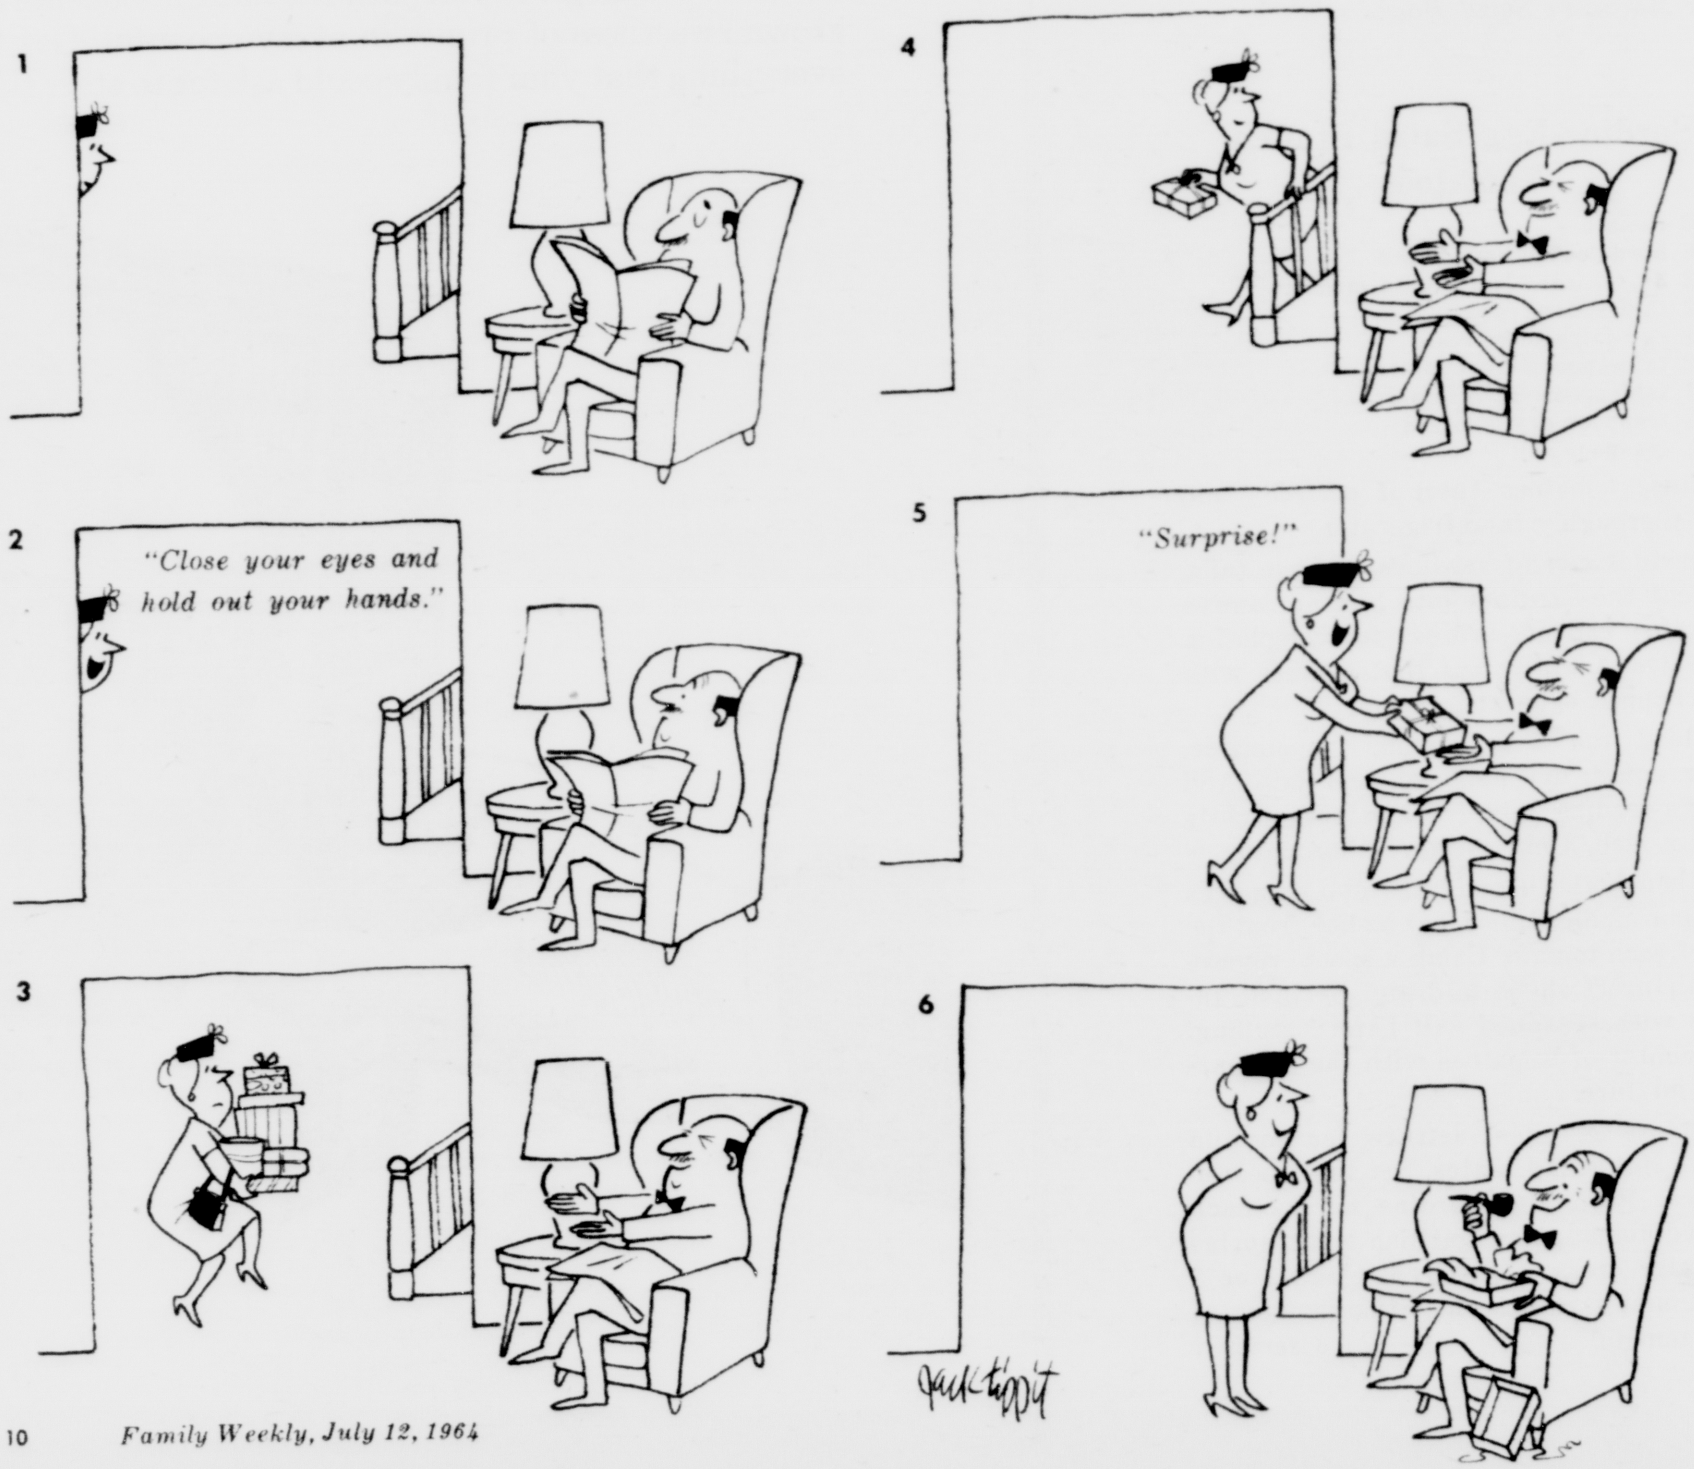

You'll never have to buy new furniture. The worse it looks, the better its rating. So it must follow that the older we get and the more "distress" we show, the more wrinkles we grow, the more precious we are.

Hurray!

THE RACE TO NAB THE No. 1 NAZI STILL AT LARGE

By LEO HEIMAN

TUVIA FRIEDMAN (left), the legendary "Nazi Hunter" who masterminded the capture of Adolf Eichmann, pointed a stubby finger at a thick, dust-covered folder and hissed angrily: "This man is alive, and I shall bring him to justice if it's the last thing I ever do!"

He brushed off the dust with the sleeve of his dark-brown jacket and took out the photograph of S.S. Lt. Gen. Heinrich Mueller, Eichmann's boss and chief of the notorious Gestapo.

"We must catch him before May, 1965," Friedman explained to me. "Israel does not want any more war-crimes trials. One Eichmann trial, which lasted more than a year and cost several million pounds, is more than enough.

"So the only place to put Mueller on trial is West Germany. But we must catch him quickly before the West German statute of limitations takes effect on May 10, 1965. After that, any Nazi war criminal can legally return to West Germany and openly boast of his crimes without fear of punishment."

Friedman told me that bull-necked, bullet-headed Heinrich Mueller began his "career" as a small-town police investigator in Bavaria. He was repeatedly reprimanded by his superiors for brutality. But the very quality that delayed his promotion in pre-Hitlerite Germany made him Hitler's top goon when the Nazis came to power.

So impressed was Hitler by Mueller's methods that he first made him chief interrogator of the Gestapo—and then top man of the entire organization. Later, Mueller expanded his "empire" to include the S. D. (espionage and counterespionage service).

It was Mueller who devised such devilish methods of interrogation as the "soft chair," which had a thick wooden screw protruding from its center. When prisoners did not respond to regular third-degree methods, the screw would be turned and its spikelike point would tear and twist the prisoner's flesh.

Mueller, who was the top surviving Nazi goon at the end of the war, calmly walked out of Hitler's Berlin headquarters on April 29, 1945, and disappeared. The next day the body of a man who looked like Mueller was found in the rubble of a bomb-blasted house near Hitler's bunker. Documents in his pocket indicated he was the Gestapo chief. But suspicious Russians later exhumed the body and examined it with X rays and other scientific equipment. They discovered it was the body of a Mueller but not the Mueller.

Eventually, a second "grave of Heinrich Mueller" turned up in the American sector of Berlin. In September, 1963, Nazi hunter Tuvia Friedman convinced West German authorities that they should open this grave. Scientific investigation by three German professors and a team of police specialists established that the remains in the grave were of three different men, all of them younger than the missing Gestapo chief!

Apparently, when Mueller learned that the Russians had not swallowed his first "killed in action" story, he collected parts of human bodies from the rubble of barracks and houses and set up another phony grave for himself.

Tuvia Friedman had pushed for the opening of Mueller's "second grave" to convince the West Germans that Mueller was not dead. He himself had been convinced of this two years earlier. His informant: Adolf Eichmann, who let the fact slip out during interrogation in 1961. Eichmann disclosed that he and Mueller had hidden in the same monastery in Italy shortly after the war.

Friedman immediately went to the Monastery of St. Michael near Udine and talked with aged monks who had been there in 1945. They had no difficulty identifying Mueller from photographs as the man who had posed as a Polish monk named Brother Stefan.

"It took me a few months and a great deal of money to trace Mueller's movements to and from the remote monastery," Friedman said. "Finally, an anonymous phone call advised me to visit the border village of Nauders in the Alps. I had some misgivings about walking into a trap—after all, the Nazis had put a price of $13,000 on my head. But I changed my name, posed as a Belgian tourist, and took other precautions as well. When I checked in at the hotel in Nauders, I received a second anonymous phone call. This one advised me to see Rudolf Blass, a local hunter, guide, and veteran smuggler.

"Blass turned out to be 86 years old, and he lived alone in a log hut, but his memory was fresh. He identified Mueller's photo and said he had guided this man across the Austrian border in June, 1945, for $500 in American money. Mueller posed as a Polish colonel fleeing from the Communists."

Two fake graves and a phony monk's habit haven't fooled the "Nazi Hunter" in his pursuit of Heinrich Mueller; now he's closing in on his quarry, but he must hurry—the legal deadline is only months away!

WANTED: Hitler's henchman, Heinrich Mueller.

From the Austrian village of Zell, Friedman traced Mueller's movements to Italy and the monastery. But where had he gone from there?

Painstaking investigation led Friedman and his associates to the International Red Cross office in Genoa. The officials who worked there in 1945-46 were dead or had retired. But one old secretary was located who could identify the photo of Mueller. She revealed that the fugitive Gestapo chief had applied for International Red Cross traveling documents under the name of Dr. Jan Bielinski, a refugee Polish physician.

"He showed us a prewar Polish passport, a medical-association certificate, and other genuine documents (stolen from one of his victims, no doubt), which convinced us he was a bona fide refugee from Communist Poland," she said. "We arranged an Argentine immigration visa for him and passage aboard a ship to Buenos Aires, for which he paid himself."

MUELLER ARRIVED in Argentina in 1946, but he didn't stay there long. Possibly there were so many Nazis around that he feared identification. In 1947 he cropped up in Spain, where he joined a munitions syndicate set up by refugee Nazis. In 1952 Mueller was identified by a German newspaperman at glittering Horcher's Restaurant in Madrid. The reporter soon was found dead, the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

Mueller disappeared for a while—and then cropped up in Egypt, where he headed Nasser's Propaganda Research Office. He held this post until September, 1963, when the publicity over the opening of his "second grave" drove him out of Cairo.

"I don't think flushing Mueller out of Cairo was a mistake," Friedman told me. "As long as he remains in Egypt, he is safe. The Egyptians won't extradite him; they like Nazis. But if he panics and runs, we will have our chance. He is 62 years old now and must be tired of running and hiding. Other Nazis may escape our dragnet. But as far as Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller is concerned, the hunt goes on. Sooner or later, we will get him."

THE MAINTENANCE MAN at a famed Las Vegas night club was visibly upset. "That life-sized cutout of Goulet outside—it's ruined. Covered with lipsticky kisses."

The shameful defacement may have caused the maintenance man to shake his head, but it brought only happy smiles to a worried team of show-business experts who have helped shape Robert Goulet into "the first genuine matinee idol of the decade" (a sobriquet Goulet winces at).

Not that the kissing fad was the first demonstration by females, young and old, for the singer whose man-sized voice needs neither sound-engineered gimmicks nor guitar-twanging. At one time, for instance, café-society ladies took to throwing their hotel-room keys at Goulet during his supper-club appearances.

But something happened last August that caused the "boys in the back room," as Goulet once called his mentors, to fear he had besmirched their carefully built image of good-natured roguishness. He got married.

Would the ladies still sigh and throw keys? The answer was smeared on the cutout. Even a headlined marriage to actress Carol Lawrence couldn't stop the steady ascent of Goulet to stardom.

He had long been separated from his first wife, Louise Longmore, when the ascent began. The legal separation allowed him to play the role of a willing-but-tied-down male among both debutantes ("I went society for a while," he explains, "because I had never met people like that before") and show-business beauties.

When his divorce became final last year, all the rules called for capitalizing on well-publicized romances. And Goulet had his private reasons for cutting loose.

DURING HIS BRIEF BACHELORHOOD (he married at 22), his handsomeness hadn't been enough to offset the fact that he was a struggling singer with cardboard in his shoes and as little as nine cents in his pocket. But now he had everything—including freedom.

"Oh, yes," he says, recalling the six months between his divorce and remarriage, "I liked the idea of being a well-to-do bachelor. And several times I walked out on Carol. But I always found myself coming back. One day I took stock of myself . . ."

"I realized," Goulet continues, pacing the floor as Man-Taking-Stock-of-Himself, "that what I'd always wanted was a family and my own home. Here I was, 30 years old, an age to settle down. And I had the girl—but she wasn't the kind to wait around for me."

Goulet's desire for a family is no recent thought. Frugal by his own admission, his one extravagance was buying a home long before his second marriage. "I had my eye on a house in New Jersey for $60,000," he says, "but my agent said it was too expensive for me and told me to look around some more. I did—and ended up buying an $80,000 home and spending $10,000 more on the swimming pool. But," he reflects philosophically, "it's a great place to raise kids."

Goulet seemingly has fixed ideas about marriage. During his engagement to Carol Lawrence, he told a Hollywood reporter: "I have told Carol that after we are married she will be first a wife and second an actress . . . I alone will make the decisions in some matters. . . . That's the way it must be!"

He shudders to hear the words now and tries to pass them off as a "joke"—but then adds, "Well, most of them."

Robert Goulet

Ladies Throw Him Keys and Kisses

He's the hottest romantic star in years—why, even taking a bride hasn't stopped the gals from swooning By JACK RYAN

Birthday party for Goulet on movie set of "Honeymoon Hotel" draws Keenan Wynn (left), wife Carol Lawrence, Jill St. John, director Henry Levin, Nancy Kwan, and Robert Morse.

His acquaintances point out that Goulet is much too affable and anxious to please to become an overly demanding husband. On the other hand, his wife is a hard-driving, ambitious bundle of talent not likely to be awed by what the couple now calls "Goulet's Law."

The superficial impressions of Goulet, easygoing but with fixed notions, and Carol, career-driven, set off separation rumors even before their wedding cake had hardened. Both went separate ways without bothering about honeymooning—Carol to club dates, Bob to Hollywood to star in two romantic comedies, MGM's "Honeymoon Hotel" with Robert Morse and Universal's "I'd Rather Be Rich" with Sandra Dee.

"They had obligations to fulfill, ones made before they decided to get married," an associate explained. "That'll change eventually."

It did. Seven months after their marriage, work schedules up to date, they honeymooned in Europe. Now they split time between Goulet's 17-acre estate and Carol's small Manhattan apartment.

"Carol cooks and I watch television," Goulet says. "She's crazy about cooking. The only way I can get her out of the kitchen is when there's a great performance on tv. Then I pull her out to watch."

There is one further point to make about the Goulets these days—they're expecting their first child in November. (He has a daughter, Nicolette, 8, by his first marriage.)

Goulet obviously prefers his country home. For one thing, Carol's apartment is laden with objets d'art and antiques which are strange to him. "Our house has roots," he declares, and you hear echoes of a youth from a closely knit family who, in recent years, has sorely missed having those "roots."

Goulet was born in Lawrence, Mass. His father, a mill hand, was an amateur performer who entertained at family gatherings. At the age of three, young Robert was horning in on the act, much to his dad's delight. But then came the awkward age, and the boy took to hiding in closets and under beds to avoid singing.

AFTER ONE TANTRUM, his father laid down the law. "You will sing. God has given you a gift for singing, and you will not throw it away." Bob never has forgotten the moment and re-enacts it frequently. After his father died when he was 14, Goulet and his mother moved to his grandparents' farm in Edmonton, Canada.

Before high-school graduation, he left classes for a whirl at radio broadcasting. Next came Canadian television and theatrical stock; then an abortive attempt to crash Broadway in 1955, which ended with Goulet so weakened by a ham-sandwich-and-coffee diet that his usually booming voice could not even be heard at auditions.

He made it big, however, in the following years on Canadian television, becoming the Dominion's No. 1 star. Nevertheless, he was singing for only a free vacation in Bermuda when his big break came—and almost went.

Something prompted him to call home "just in case." He learned that Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe of "My Fair Lady" fame had been trying to locate him to audition for the role of Sir Lancelot in their new musical, "Camelot." They'd just about given up finding Goulet when he made his "just-in-case" call.

HE GRABBED the first plane to New York and went straight to the theater. Once on stage, he belted out his favorite song, "They Call the Wind Maria."

Nowadays Goulet shakes his head at the unprofessionalism of it all. "I'd forgotten that Lerner and Loewe wrote that song. It made me seem as if I was playing up to them. Even worse, composers always think there's only one way to sing their music."

Despite this, Goulet won the role without further trials. Later, a Lerner and Loewe associate, Norman Rosemont, entered into a gentleman's agreement with Goulet to groom him for stardom. He selected Goulet's clothes (tailored so tight he can't carry a wallet), barber, publicist, lawyers, writers, and arrangers. "He's a production in himself," says Rosemont.

But Goulet questions whether the Rosemont team "shaped the Goulet image." He feels that the image was always his—they just polished the rough spots.

"Mostly, they tell me what not to do," Bob says. "I remember once when I was singing in Las Vegas, the whole organization flew in. 'Gotta have a meeting quick,' they said."

Now Goulet begins acting out a 1930-style gangster film: "It was like the Mafia meeting in Apalachin, and I was the guy being fingered. They all sat around, staring at me. Finally somebody started talking: 'Ya know, baby, we all love you. Got your interests at heart, baby.' That really worried me. 'We hate to do this to you, but we gotta. Listen, baby, from now on—no more jokes!' "

The "boys in the back room" had decided that Goulet's ad libbing on stage, admittedly heavy-handed, was marring his "class and sophistication."

"They probably were right," Goulet muses. "Anyway, I went out that night determined not to joke. But when you feel happy, when you feel people are your friends—well, I can't help it. I cracked jokes. I guess I always will."

Audiences don't seem to mind. If they can overlook their idol taking a beautiful wife, they probably can get used to his attempts at humor.

Quips and Quotes

The parents of two baby boys called in a teen-age girl to baby-sit while they enjoyed an evening out. When they returned late in the evening, they found the teen-ager quietly reading a book.

"Well, how were the boys?" the mother asked anxiously.

"Oh," the sitter sighed, "they didn't even phone." —Herm Albright

She was a demanding wife who expected her husband to be on time for everything she planned. This particular evening she had looked forward to an evening at the movies, and her husband was two hours late getting home from work.

"What do you mean coming home this late?" she shouted.

"But, darling," he answered meekly, "on my way home I was run over."

"What of it?" she replied. "Does it take two hours to get run over?"

"Doctor," a patient told the psychiatrist, "I can't get any rest. Every night I dream I'm flying a jet plane around the world."

"When that happens tonight," the doctor said, "try to wake yourself when you reach Tokyo. Then call me, and I'll fly your jet the rest of the way."

The patient left, happily delighted at the idea. The next patient the doctor had was a man who dreamed he was on a desert island with six beautiful girls. "They won't leave me alone," he complained.

Again the doctor had a solution. "Call me during the night, and I'll take them off your hands," he said.

This patient, too, was pleased, but the next morning he returned more haggard than ever. "A fine doctor you are!" he shouted. "I called you last night to take those women off my hands, and your wife said you were flying a jet over Tokyo!"
